DICK'S SPORTS SLANTS

The Beaverton Beavers after coasting to another Yamhill Valley league title have an opportunity knocking at their door tonight. They have an opportunity to win a rating as one of the top high school eleven in the state if (and mind you) that little two-letter word has plenty of complications involved) they topple the Silverton Silver Foxes here Friday night.

After some difficulty, the Beaverton team finally found a post season opponent in the Silver Foxes, champions of the Willamette valley loop.

And the chips are down! The Beavers won't be able to breath through this tilt. Instead, they will have plenty to play sixty minutes of real football, and then make they can chalk up their tenth win in eleven starts.

A lot depends on whether the Beavers two ace ball carriers Gale Emmons and Glen Jones, can shake loose but a lot more depends on the Beaverton forward wall, out charging out tackling and out playing the Silverton line in every department.

I'll see you at the best high school football game staged in this section during the current season.

Low Temperature Roasting Reduces Shrinkage of Meat

RESEARCH workers in meat cookery recommend roasting at a low temperature which reduces shrinkage and assures juicy tender meat, more evenly cooked throughout.

When there is a certified performance gas range in the kitchen, it is simple to roast this easy economical way because the oven burner holds a temperature well below 300 degrees Fahrenheit—even to 250 degrees if desired. The lower the temperature used, the less fats will spatter during roasting, hence the oven remains cleaner.

The roast is placed on a trivet in a shallow pan without cover; no searing or basting is required. Due to variations in texture and age of meat, a meat thermometer is advised, then the center of the roast is cooked exactly to the desired state of doneness.
