

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

HUMOR IN YOUR PICTURES

He just couldn't quite make it. Humorous shots such as this add spice to your album—plenty of chances for them occur in any home.

HUMOROUS pictures are quite rare—and perhaps that is the very reason they have such lasting appeal. If you want snapshots in your album that will never grow old, then keep your eyes open for picture chances that tickle your funnybone.

There are plenty of such opportunities, particularly around homes that have children—which is not to say, of course, that grown-ups don't have their absurd moments too. And if you stay alert for such moments, with your camera loaded and placed where you can get it readily, you'll likely garner some much-prized shots for your album.

Sometimes, it's true, you'll have to re-enact things to get your picture. For example, when you find Johnny has been raiding the cookie jar again, just let him demonstrate how he did it, for the camera, and his guilty look will give you a picture that takes high rank in your collection.

When the youngest member of the family gathers his toys and toddles off to bed, find he can't quite make the grade, and drops off sleep half in bed and half out—then you have another picture opportunity well worth seizing. Such a shot, so comic yet so heart-warming, holds more appeal than a handful of routine snaps.

Some situations merit a picture but the circumstances don't recommend taking it immediately. For example, when Daddy goes to hang a picture, but hammers his thumb instead. In such a case, just wait until things cool down a bit—then shoot a picture of him blowing on the injured member, with the hammer and stepladder in the immediate background.

It's fun to think up ideas for humorous pictures. Recall funny things that have happened in the past—then re-enact them for the camera. These shots lend spice to your album—they'll give extra pleasure to you and your friends, especially if you do them realistically. And meanwhile, always keep your camera loaded and handy, ready to picture the funny little events that may occur almost any time around the home.

DAIRY SHOW TO GET UNDER WAY

Dairy cattle representing the four major breeds will be on exhibition at the Spring Dairy show at the county fair grounds June first. Judging will start at 10:00 a.m. and continue through the day. Jerseys, Guernseys, Holsteins and Brown Swiss will be shown representing an industry which annually brings the farmers of this county two and a quarter millions dollars.

Prominent breeders and cattle fanciers from neighboring communities will be present to see the judging of the classes and interest is running high, especially in the production class. The long time production record of individual cows will be emphasized.

A pot luck luncheon will be featured during the noon hour to be held in a portion of the new dairy barn now being built.

After the luncheon special judging contests for dairymen, merchants and 4-H Club members will be held. A friendly competition to show their choices of prize cattle.

G. O. P. Convention Wide Open Race Today—Gannett

(Washington Special)—No candidate for the Republican nomination for the Presidency is certain, or anywhere near certain of the nomination today, according to Frank Gannett of New York, one of the candidates.

"As things stand today," said Gannett, "the Philadelphia Convention is wide open. I have just as good a chance as anyone else."

"I will have far greater strength than anyone suspects even on the first ballot and I am confident I will gain strength as the balloting continues."

Gannett, who has campaigned throughout the country for unattached delegates to the Republican Convention, steered clear of preferential primaries rather than being party to any possibility of organization discord. He has gone into "favorite son" states only upon invitation of the favorite sons.

Much of Gannett's support comes from the agricultural regions and also on the basis that the country wants a successful business man in the White House. His long and close study of foreign affairs makes his candidacy doubly appealing at this time.

American Touring Habits Undergo Big Change in Last Decade

As what is predicted to be America's biggest motoring year gets rapidly under way, touring authorities are noting with interest the vast change that has taken place in the touring habits of the American motorist during the last ten years. In the last big touring era, in the late 'twenties, the tourist was a familiar sight along every highway, his car burdened with luggage and camping equipment, all strapped to every part of the car.

Major automotive development such as Nash's new "sleeper," have changed all this, and today's tourist is a "streamlined" traveller. He no longer needs complicated camping equipment and his luggage tucks away neatly in capacious trunks. Out of the way places are also said to be getting much more attention because these bed-equipped cars make them easily accessible.

The rear compartments of all Nash sedans may be converted into six-foot double beds in less than five minutes. No alteration of the interior of the car is necessary to use the bed and it may be left up and used by the tourist's companion as the car rolls smoothly along the route.
