Are You Interested?

If you are interested in the condition and progress of the town of Beaverton—and you certainly should be—you are invited to peruse a report prepared by Mayor McCloskey and mimeographed for distribution this week.

The report consists of five typed pages and is thus too long for reproduction here. It is full and running over with information regarding the financial and other conditions pertaining to this, the "Garden Spot of Oregon".

Mayor McCloskey is to be commended for his work in preparing this summary of the progress made and for laying the actual conditions of the town before all who wish to inform themselves. You may be handed a copy of this report but if you are not, it will pay you well to ask for one.

NOW WE CAN GO!

Now that the nomination is in the bag and the ghost of retirement at the end of two terms bogey laid to rest, we will have time to prepare some really constructive arguments for the coming battle with the villainous power trust.

Perhaps there are babies that need more milk. Well, the best way to get it for them is to kill off lot more cows. Then those that are left may hear the call and give more. Or perhaps we might ship over a few of those pigs we killed so as to feed the famine-threatened families of war devastated Europe.

Anyway we have got to buy up a lot of scrap iron and brass and lead and get it stored away where if the Germans come over they will never find it to use in making guns and shells. Perhaps we'll bury it along with the gold that has gone out of circulation along with the idea of teaching thrift and industry and economy. Why the very idea! All you have to do to get rich is to spend a lot of money. Then the other fellow has the coin and you'll be sure to get it back when he gets tired of it.

HERE'S A DUTY NOW WELL DONE

The Republican Party has fulfilled its duty to the nation by nominating Wendell Willkie for President. It was a universal hope that this year the convention would be free of pressure groups, free of "back room" influence, and free of machine control. That hope has been fully realized. Mr. Willkie is that political phenomenon, a candidate without commitments. He refused to temper his views in the slightest to secure the nomination. He was completely frank as to his position on every issue, and never stooped to evasion or took refuge in silence. He was, in the best sense of the word, a people's candidate — a man whose support came from the average men and women of America, not from political bosses with their eyes fixed on jobs and power and patronage.

AMERICANISM

"Americanism is an unfailing love of country; loyalty to its institutions and ideals; eagerness to defend it against all enemies; undivided allegiance to the flag; and a desire to secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity."

The record of Wendell Willkie is one of which every American, no matter what his partisan allegiance, can be proud. It is the typically American story of the man who, starting from humble beginnings, succeeds through his own work, his own abilities, his own gifts of mind and character and personality. Mr. Willkie, like so many of our industrial and governmental leaders, came up the hard way. He knows the real America—the America of modest homes, the America whose faith in democratic principles has never been shaken, the America which reveres our traditional liberties above all else.

The great principles for which Wendell Willkie stands are the principles of liberalism — "the faith that is America". He has made many speeches and written many articles, and all of them basically, deal with that one issue. The issue is the American way of life. It is the age-old issue of the man against the state of liberty fighting for its life against some kind of dictatorship. What Wendell Willkie abhors most is dictatorship—no matter what form it appears in, or what honeyed words are used to conceal its true meaning and intent. And he is one of the fortunate few with a personality which makes it possible for him to dramatize his convictions. Mr. Willkie is a candidate in the finest American tradition—a candidate with greatness of mind and heart and spirit.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD OUTDOOR SILHOUETTES

It's easy to take silhouette snaps such as this in late afternoon—and they add interest to your album.

SILHOUETTE pictures are easy to take outdoors, and there's an interesting, dramatic quality about these shots that makes them worth while additions to your picture collection.

Strictly speaking, a silhouette picture consists only of black-and-white—a black subject against a pure white background, with all detail eliminated. There's no need, however, to draw the line so sharply in our picture-taking. For example, observe the picture above. There's a certain amount of detail retained in the water, and this helps make the picture even more interesting.

Here's how the shot was taken. First, the photographer stood at a point where the sun was squarely behind the tree in the foreground. The purpose of this was to keep the sun from shining into the lens, for that would have spoiled the picture.

Next, the photographer set his lens and shutter for less than normal exposure. Since the time was late afternoon, the full normal exposure would have been perhaps 1/25 second at f/8; in this case, the exposure was probably 1/100 second at f/11 or f/16. A snapshot exposure at this hour, using the second stop opening on a box camera, and average speed film, would also have been just about right for the silhouette effect.

The effect of underexposure, in these shots, is to "black out" shadow detail so that you get a good strong silhouette. Naturally, a subject such as a person should usually be posed in profile, then the outline of the features will show clearly.

In taking silhouette pictures, remember always to choose an hour when the sun is fairly low in the sky, have the sun squarely behind the subject or some object in the scene, and give less than normal exposure. Follow these rules, and you'll get good silhouette snaps that will add interest to your album.

though they were still burning, on hundreds of occasions. If luck was with you, nothing happened. Had not luck prevailed, one of those butts might have been the source of a fire that would have destroyed a fine farm, grain stacked in the fields, or thousands of acres of irreplaceable woodland.

Remember the time you put a penny in the fuse box to get the electricity flowing? You were lucky that time too, if the house didn't burn down. There was a very good chance, however, that it would.

And how about the odds and ends of junk that you've stored away in attics, closets, basements, etc., figuring all the time to get rid of them on some future day? Accumulations like that may go on for years and do no harm—or if the breaks are against you, they may start or feed a destructive blaze any minute.

And don't forget those occasions when you took it for granted that you'd get away with postponing necessary heating, wiring, chimney and similar repairs until another time.

All of us have come within an ace of starting fires on more occasions than it is pleasant to count. And every so often luck turns—and life and property is needlessly destroyed as a consequence. Keep that in mind—and you won't be taking such great chances with fire in the future.

INSURANCE DOES THE JOB BETTER

It has long been said that life insurance is the safest investment open to the average man. And in these chaotic days, that is doubly true.

Incredible changes are taking place in the world we live in. The ordinary citizens, if frank with themselves, will admit their complete inability to invest their savings securely in ordinary channels. The job of life insurance is to do that for him. It employs experts, who know all that can be known about trends and prospects. It spreads its investments over the widest possible area. It can move swiftly as conditions change.

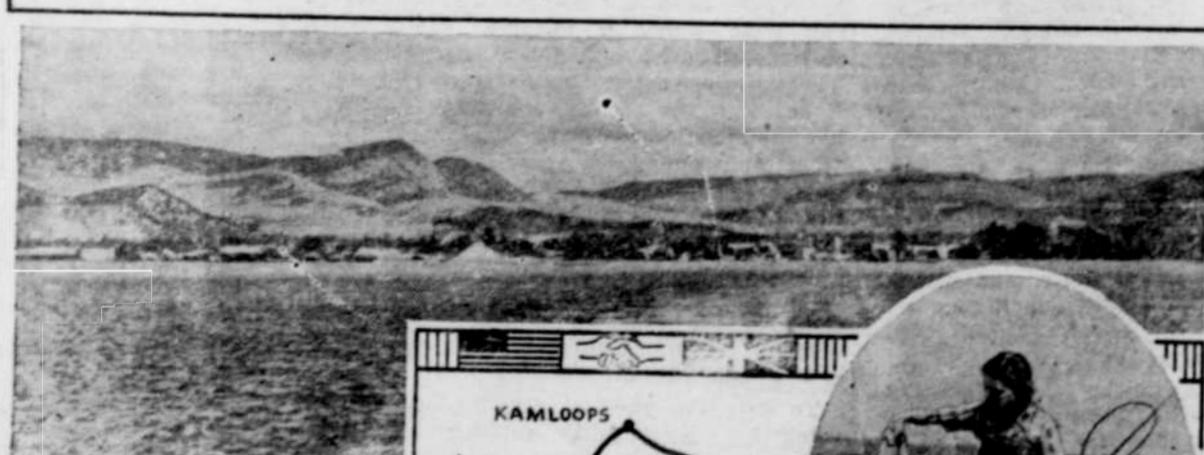

The result is that it offers the highest attainable degree of investment security. And it has demonstrated that time and again during the crises of the past.

The Huber Garden club will hold its regular meeting, July 9th at 8 P. M. in the Huber Commercial hall.

Okanagan Valley Is Garden of Canada

FOR eighty miles Okanagan Lake splits the floor of the Okanagan Valley in the heart of Southern British Columbia. This valley is the Garden of Canada, and through it winds one of the most scenic highways in the Dominion. In the Okanagan orchards, mountain and lake combine to provide the perfect picture and the perfect motor tour. In the heart of the southern interior of British Columbia, Canada, is the Okanagan Valley, the basin of lovely Okanagan Lake. Brilliant with sunshine, glowing with the warm tints of golden sands and carefully tended orchards, the Valley is a veritable "Garden of the Lord," and scenic beyond description. Pleasant little cities are ideally situated on the margin of the lake which winds for eighty miles between its flanking hills and provides marvellous vistas from every mile of the fine highway.

There is a choice of routes. Entrance may be from Vancouver, Canada's fascinating gateway to the Orient, through the spectacular gorge of the Fraser Canyon to Kamloops and Salmon Arm with its entrancing views of Shuswap Lake; or through Oroville, Washington, to the International Boundary, and thence to Penticton at the foot of Okanagan Lake. The country is well provided with good accommodations and the area is plentifully supplied with fruit.
