AMERICANISM

"Americanism is unflinching love of country; loyalty to its institutions and ideals; eagerness to defend it against all enemies; undivided allegiance to the flag; and a desire to secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity."

CONGRESS IS ALSO TO BE ELECTED

Forty seven Congressmen were involved in the primaries held September, 16. The biggest turn-over was in the state of Louisiana where four Democratic congressmen were refused renomination, with three others being compelled to face run-off fights. The preliminary skirmishes have occurred in less than a dozen States.

The Senate is controlled by the Democrats who have majorities big enough to offset any losses that may take place in their ranks this Fall. But all of the 435 Representatives must run the gauntlet at the polls this fall, and no one knows at this time what the final results may be.

Should the Republicans win the lower house they will be able to control all appropriations. That would make it impossible for President Roosevelt, in case he should be re-elected, to continue the rate of spending of the New Deal.

The political fight is now being waged between the two nominees for the Presidency, and not very much interest is being shown in political circles over the general results of the Congressional elections.

DO YOUR PART

Here's a date to mark on your calendar—October 6 to 12.

During that period Fire Prevention Week will be observed this year. And that week isn't something to idly notice, then forget. Fire Prevention Week is carried on for you—and for all the other people in the country. It is carried out for your business, and every other man's

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

MAKE YOUR PICTURES POINTED

Make your pictures pointed. In this shot, the sign helps tell the story. Such details often "make" a picture.

WHEN you see an opportunity for a picture, shoot it—but don't always stop there. Think a bit, and see if there isn't a way to improve the shot and make it more pointed.

Every good picture has a point—it tells you something when you look at it. The more definite you can make the idea or "story," the better the picture. And often little added details, things that don't occur to you at first glance, yield a much-improved shot.

For example, consider the boys and their wagon-works, as shown above. Chances are, Dad supplied the tools and the idea, and shot a first picture in the backyard. Then, very likely, the "men working" sign down the street suggested a better background—one that would make the picture more effective—so the scene was changed for a second shot. Incidentally, this shot might have been even better if it included the whole sign.

That's the way a lot of good pictures are made. The first picture doesn't have to be the final one. If an idea is good, it's worth repeating later—in a different location, or with different subjects. Often times, in examining a print, you can see points where the picture might be improved—and in a great many cases, it's easy enough to get a second shot.

To make your pictures more pointed, here are some tips. First, show the action clearly, so anybody can tell what is going on. The camera position has a lot to do with this, and sometimes a shift of a foot or so to one side will make a world of difference. Holding the camera higher or lower makes a difference, too.

Second, eliminate things that don't contribute to the picture idea. If there are objects that have no part in telling the story, move them aside, or choose a viewpoint that leaves them out of the picture.

Third, keep the interest within the picture. Let the subjects look at what they're doing. Few pictures demand that the subject look at the camera, or even appear aware of it.

Try these hints, when you're shooting pictures—and when the first shot isn't perfect, get a second one. It's a poor idea that isn't worth two or more pictures.

business. It man's an intensive effort to awaken the American people to the terrible waste fire leaves behind it—and to show how fire may be conquered.

Fire Prevention Week is far more than usually important this year. Today, largely due to the rearmament drive, industrial production is on the upward curve, and it is slated to go rapidly higher as the drive gains impetus. And the record shows that the danger of fire increases as production increases.

That means that fire, if not controlled, can be a very real danger to our defense plans. It takes an intricate industrial machine to make the weapons we need today—all the agencies of manufacture, transportation and assembly must work with the precision of pistons. One bad fire in one key factory might delay for months the production of weapons which we sorely lack.

On top of that, special precautions must be taken against the arsonist and the saboteur—as our experience in other times of crisis plainly proves. Authorities expect efforts to sabotage the defence program—and fire is always regarded as a handy weapon by the purposeful destroyer.

Fire Prevention week should be observed by all of us—by every man and woman able to read and listen and learn. This is one place where all, old and young, can be of great aid to the national defence program. Do your part!

POULTRY COOKERY BULLETIN SUBJECT

"Poultry Cookery Recipes and Menus" is the subject of a new mimeograph just received for distribution at the Home Demonstration Agent office in the Court House in Hillsboro. This bulletin includes a time for the open roaster method, recipes for turkey stuffing, stuffing variations, and giblet gravy; suggestions for use of left-over turkey, and a menu for turkey dinner with recipes, according to a communication received from Kathleen McCrae, Home Demonstration Agent.

ORDERS GO OUT FOR VETCH SEED

Orders for certified Willamette vetch seed will go out the last of this week and the first of next week to farmers who have requested this seed. Requests have been filed for all but approximately 100 bags of the entire quantity allotted to Washington County. A total of 950 bags of certified Willamette vetch seed was allocated for planting in this county. This allotment of 950 bags, if it is all taken, will mean a seeding of approximately 2800 acres of this special strain of common vetch for 1941 harvest. The only restriction on the 1941 acreage of Willamette vetch is the limited quantity of seed available. Being a relatively new crop, production of seed has not reached the point where the supply is much greater than the demand for local seeding. In the south where it is used for cover crops it has shown sufficiently greater winter hardiness as compared to the ordinary common so that it is in much demand.

There are no announced restrictions of any kind to limit the acreage and production of hairy vetch seed for AAA purchase in 1941. A recent announcement from the State AAA office states that the purchase of seed under the 1941 program is contingent upon the availability of funds and continued legislative authority. At the present time there is every reason to believe that the funds and authority will be available.

Growers are daily inquiring about the advisability of increasing their Austrian winter field pea acreage for 1941 harvest. When a continuation of the legume seed purchasing program was announced, it included a reservation to the effect that Austrian winter field pea seed in 1941 might be purchased from a grower from an acreage no larger than his 1941 acreage. This has created uncertainty and still more demand for interpretation and explanation. Providing that the total acreage of Austrian peas in Western Oregon is not expanded or the yield of seed does not total too much more than the 1940 crop, probably the entire crop will be purchased even if some individual acreages have been increased. There may be, however, according to the State AAA officials, a possibility that they will not their excess acres to the Commodity Credit Corporation.

Farmers who have changed farms, who have rented additional land, or released rented lands have been asking if the Austrian pea acreage would be determined on the basis of an operator or for a farm. A statement released this week by the State AAA office states, "In the case of Austrian winter field peas, provision is contained in the program for 1941 in accordance with which the volume of Austrian winter field peas to be purchased from individual eligible growers may be limited to the production from an acreage in 1941 not in excess of the larger of (1) the acreage grown on the farm in 1940 or, (2), the average acreage grown on the farms during the years 1938 to 1940, inclusive." The above statement seems definitely to indicate that the acreage question will be determined on the farm basis and not a grower basis.

Fine Printing - -

"Do your Christmas shopping early" is good advice—if you must shop. But most of us do more shopping than is necessary. You can make Christmas or any other giving easier and pleasanter by remembering that everyone writes letters, and that fine writing paper, therefore, always makes a practical and useful gift. Properly packaged it makes an attractive and impressive gift.
