War OR Defense

THE presidential campaign, as it grows in intensity day by day, challenges thoughtful minds more fully than any other during the last eighty years.

In the two leading contenders, President Roosevelt and Wendell L. Willkie, we have two flashing personalities. As the campaign proceeds, however, thoughtful voters will take increasing care to see to it that the brilliance of neither of them obscures the fundamental issues at stake.

Stripped of all other political questions great and small, the one paramount issue is, "Shall this, our present form of democracy, be retained or must the nation proceed with the avalanche speed of the last few years toward a highly centralized bureaucratic government, having within itself the power to sustain itself without decision on the part of the people?"

It is apparent that men and women everywhere sense the crucial import of this question, whether they have analyzed it or not. And that explains the unusual character of the fight that is being waged in behalf of Wendell L. Willkie in every state in the union.

The Willkie Clubs have sprung into existence without political leadership or party jurisdiction. Their millions of members, for the most part, are men and women who heretofore have taken little part in politics. They are made up of independent voters, small businessmen and women and young people. They fear the effect of a Third Term, not because of traditions against it, but because of the deep-seated feeling that the American principle of representative government is in danger.

But not even this historic contest between Willkie who would preserve the American principle and Roosevelt who regards it as a relic of horse and buggy days can submerge another constant thought that is in the mind of every American citizen: "Will America get into the war?"

Abhorrence of war is as deep-rooted in American life as the common love for liberty. In casting his vote on Election Day, each voter is going to ask himself which candidate is most likely to avoid war. Both have said they do not want war.

Very definitely the American public has decided that the only real security against war is in armed defense so invincible that no power will dare attack us. In times of great crisis, the people have always been moved to rely with hopeful hearts upon their government. Now they are sorely perplexed. They have questioned little, if any, of the billions of dollars that have been appropriated. They remember that war clouds have been hanging heavy on the horizon for more than a year. They have accepted with traditional patriotism a law conscripting their young men. Nevertheless, they know battles cannot be fought by men alone without guns and airplanes.

Something seems to be wrong at Washington. With all appropriations available for production, purchase and expansion of armaments, progress is slow. As late as October 1st, it was found that the army and navy together have only about 500 planes suitable for first-line fighting. The remainder are training ships or airplanes of secondary importance. At the present rate of progress, some reliable sources estimate that we will have no more than a thousand additional first-line planes by January 1st, 1942. The Army had as of Oct. 1 of this year, only about 500 tanks and one half of them are obsolete. It had 372 anti-aircraft guns, only one of which is of an approved modern type, and that is not enough to defend one city.

Voters, therefore, are asking themselves: "Can we trust the present red tape and slow-moving bureau control to get action and to get it quickly, or, in the light of past failures, is not speedy, efficient arming by the present administration merely a forlorn hope?"

Upon rapid production of implements of war, rests the hope of American fathers and mothers for the protection of their homes and the safeguarding of their sons now to be inducted into military service.

Wendell Willkie, not Franklin Roosevelt, has the experience and genius in production and in mobilization so terribly needed at this tragic time. Thoughtful voters, whether calling themselves business men or workers, want armaments now, not years hence. They want guns, munitions and airplanes in reality and not "on order."

OFFICERS ELECTED FOR EXTENSION

Officers elected recently by extension units to serve from September, 1940, until June, 1941 are:

Norwood: Chairman, Gladys Bacon; Vice-Chairman, Mrs. Stanley; Sec.-Treas., Mrs. C. Powell.

Roy: Chairman, Mrs. Jack Vanderzand; Sec.-Treas., Marion Ihad.

Rock Creek: Chairman, Mrs. Epperson; Sec.-Treas., Mrs. Warren Hailey.

Buxton: Chairman, Mrs. O. H. Stowell; Sec.-Treas., Beasie Hiddink.

Tigard: Chairman, Mrs. V. H. Meyer; Vice-Chairman, Mrs. Geo. Anderson; Sec.-Treas., Jessie Cruise.

Hillsdale: Chairman, Mrs. Read Greenwood; Vice-Chairman, Mrs. Lloyd Anderson; Sec.-Treas., Mrs. Charles P. Sellers.

Cedar Mill: Chairman, Mrs. A. R. Pearson; Vice Chairman, Mrs. Katterman; Sec.-Treas., Mrs. N. P. Johnson; Pianist, Mrs. Otto Schulz; Song Leaders, Mrs. J. C. Schweitzer and Mrs. Claude Cover.

Women who plan to remodel garments in the October and November remodeling schools are requested to enroll with the secretary of their unit as soon as possible.

These schools are scheduled for two consecutive days in each community, from 10:00 A.M. to 4:00 P.M. each day. The number is limited to twelve for remodeling. Each woman is urged to bring a helper, making it possible to include twenty-four women in each school. The women may make a child's coat from an adult's coat; rompers and aprons from men's shirts; remodel an adult's suit or coat; make a blouse from a dress; or make minor alterations such as changing neckline, refitting, or shortening of coats, suits, or dresses.

Human Bones All About

HUMAN BONES ALL ABOUT...

Travel back for a moment to that skull-shaped hill on the outskirts of old Jerusalem. All about you see the bones of murderers and such as had died by crucifixion. Look about. Over there a ways are three crosses outlined against the sky that April morning in the long ago. On the outer crosses two thieves are paying for their crimes. Now move closer. Come near and touch the beams of that third one; the sinner cross. Feel its roughness. And who hangs there? It is the Son of God. Why hangs He there with these criminals? Not for any sin of His own for His were holy days. Then what puts Him there to die that despised death? The answer is that He who knew no sin was born into this world to become sin for us. He is dying under your and my death sentence to clear us. —"Christ died for our sins." —BIBLE

Your Heart Knows.

Have you the heart-faith to say YES to the following? Was Christ the Son of God? Did He come here to die for you? Did He pay in full for all your sins? Does His blood cleanse away the guilt of all sin? Will you, from now on, look to Him for the power of a new life? If down in the depths of your heart you can say "YES, HE IS MINE," these things follow—ONE—You have the peace that passeth understanding. —"Being justified by faith—counted righteous in God's eyes—we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ." TWO—Your name is set down in God's Book of Life. THREE—The Holy Spirit takes up within you to make you Christ-like within and without.

A Throne Here And Now

You are to be an overcomer. —"They which receive God's overflowing grace and the gift of righteousness, shall reign in life through One, even Jesus Christ." See Romans, 5:17. Take your throne and hold your scepter over your enemies and you have them plenty. Old Human Nature still lives within; and without are the hard facts of life. Only Christ ever lived here undefeated and it is by Him that you are to make it through for the next hour. Take your stand —"Christ liveth in me and it is by leaning on Him that I am able to make it through for the next sixty minutes and the next and so on." You are to be fruitless, restless, defeated until you come into the secret of the Christ-quickened life here and now. Through Christ VICTORY is your rightful portion. Have you it?

Reduced Farm Tariffs
Reciprocal trade agreements made by the New Deal reduced the tariff on 152 agricultural products, despite candidate Roosevelt's statement in 1932: "I know of no excessively high tariff duties on farm products that should be lowered."

The Farm Share
On a per capita basis, the farm population of America must carry about one-fourth, approximately $11,000,000,000, of the national debt. It would take the value of all farm crops for two years to pay the farm-

Less Than Half
In 1930 the sale of American farm products to foreign countries amounted to $1,496,000,000. With New Deal reciprocal trade treaties with sixteen countries in force in 1939, our sale of American farm products had dropped to $683,000,000—less than half of the 1930 figure.

Farm Imports Increase
In 1937 this country imported 68,277,000 pounds more meat than we exported, while in 1932 we exported 146,192,000 more than we imported. In 1932 our markets for American farm products were protected.
