Mr. and Mrs. America Send Guns to British Civilians

FROM attics, closets and various nooks and crannies in the American home, guns of all types and calibre are pouring forth in response to a plea for arms which will be sent to the harassed British civilians for use in protection of the homes of England in the event the current threatened blitz invasion materializes. Request was sent out by the American Committee for

Defense of British Homes, located at 10 Warren Street in New York and just three weeks later to date the first shipment is ready to go. Above at New York warehouse where the guns are stored awaiting shipment, Major Anthony Flala, explorer and member of the Committee; and C. Snyder Cutting, Chairman, make final inspection of the arms. Latter is at right.
