SHORT COURSE FOR CANNERS SLATED

Nineteen years ago Oregon State College drew nation-wide attention by holding the first short course for commercial cannermen, who were invited to leave their businesses long enough to come to college and "brush up" on newest methods. Every year since, a similar and enlarged course has been given and now the twentieth annual Canners and Frozen Food Packers school is announced for February 3 to 15, inclusive.

The course is offered in the food industries department which is recognized as one of the outstanding research centers in the country in the field of food processing. Courses will include instruction in handling frozen fruits and vegetables, a course for food industry field men, a course dealing with fruit and vegetable canning, and a mechanical course in handling modern cannery machinery.

MEET SLATED FOR PUTTING ON SKITS

"Skits" will be the subject of a meeting to be held Friday night, January 17th, at Hillsboro High School, room 108, by specialists from Oregon State College. The meeting begins at 8: P. M. Representatives of granges, 4-H clubs, extension clubs, women's clubs, teachers, churches, and others interested in developing entertainment material with little rehearsal are invited to attend, according to Kathleen McCrea, home demonstration agent. A discussion of how to develop a skit along with impromptu production of several skits will feature the evening program. Anyone interested is invited.

TIBET MISSIONARY COMING HERE

Vernon Newland, missionary from Tibet, will speak at the Beaverton Church of Christ on Friday evening, January 17 at 8:00 o'clock. Mr. and Mrs. Newland bring a message that is not only inspirational, but that gives much information regarding the customs, the religious life and the living conditions of these people in the remote mountains of Tibet. Their message is of unusual interest. At one time their home was held by bandits as a fortress while they, themselves were held prisoners. On several occasions their lives were endangered for the sake of the Tibetan people to whom they seek to bring the Gospel.

POUTRY MEETING SLATED FOR HERE

A motion picture "Poultry, A Billion-Dollar Industry," and a report of the high lights of the poultry situation in the East, are the subjects scheduled for the poultry meeting to be held in the Beaverton high school, Tuesday evening, January 21 at 8:00 pm., according to an announcement made by Palmer Torvend, Assistant County Agent. Arrangements for the picture have been made through N. L. Bennion, Extension Poultryman who will show the picture and make a short talk at the meeting. R. H. Rohe, assistant manager of the Co-op, has just returned from a trip in the East where he spent two and a half months visiting eastern markets about which he will relate some of the high lights.

All persons interested are invited to attend this meeting.

LADIES HONOR MISS WATROUS

The Kiwanis Ladies entertained in honor of Miss Watrous, President Earl Horsell's sister, at their annual party on Wed. evening, January 8. There was a delightful dinner generously served by the Rebekahs. Mrs. J. R. Talbert, wife of the Kiwanian's first president, gave some interesting details of the efforts to form the club and of their first activities.

Mrs. L. R. Richey, wife of the Lieutenant Governor of this district gave a "pep" talk on the service one could render in the group.

Miss Maurice Laber of Portland told of her trip to Japan as guest of the Japanese government. Mrs. Laber and her daughter were also guests.

Good Lighting Adds Much To Dining Room Pleasure

Despite Her Small Budget, Light Conditioning Is on the Menu.

By Jean Prentice
MAKING A ROOM PRETTY on a small budget is relatively easy, particularly if the lighting is given a thought or two.

In a recent survey of one thousand homes, lighting engineers found that many dining room lighting fixtures are not used to best advantage. But, fortunately, there are new inexpensive ways to modernize these fixtures.

For example, it took but a jiffy to improve the fixture and light condition the room illustrated here.

Before the changes were made the colors in the room appeared dull. They were distorted by the lighting from bare amber-colored bulbs in the candelabra over the table. The bulbs were also too small in size to contribute lighting cheer.

Then the turquoise and coral tints in the wall paper and deep greenish blue of the rug were lifted into lovely rich jewel tones with new lighting. The inexpensive but well-designed maple furniture took on new honey-tints.

The change was a simple one, a step that can be taken in many homes where there are candelabra fixtures or candle wall brackets. Regular 40-watt inside frosted bulbs were substituted to provide enough light for easier seeing and clearer colors. On the bulbs were slipped new shades, shown above, to soften the light, prevent glare and direct some of the light downward on the table.

Such shades can be secured in parchment or washable plastic in white, ivory and beige. They are quite inexpensive. Some even come in sets which include clean new candle husks and inner diffusing bowls to sift out glare as do the larger bowls in the floor lamps. These candellettes are particularly nice for wall brackets.

Lighted urns were also added to the Welsh dresser in the room illustrated here. They are particularly handy for soft room-light when wax candles are the only other light used.

In some dining rooms the ceiling fixture is the type in which bare bulbs hang downward. This style can be readily modernized with silver-bowl bulbs and metal shades to give indirect lighting.

Sometimes, however, a dining room has simply a single socket in the ceiling or a drop cord over the table. Then the answer is a new streamlined adaptor fixture which can be screwed in like a bulb. Some of these use a silver-bowl bulb for indirect lighting. Among others are parchment shades with an inner diffusing shield and 150-watt inside frosted bulb.

The lighting designers and engineers have worked out many other inexpensive ways in which dining rooms and dinettes can be transformed into the new modern lighting. I have described only a few but doubtless they suggest interesting possibilities to the homeowner.

Mr. and Mrs. August Dageford and daughter Lorraine, of Bell, California, visited their relatives Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gould and his niece.

Lift Up THINE Eyes

IN the five generations since 1740, we Americans have performed the heroic task of clearing, populating, farming, industrializing and civilizing a country larger than England, France, Germany, Spain and Italy put together.

Because we have looked always forward and upward, and have worked hard, we have achieved the highest standard of living in the world.

One of the most potent of all the forces that have created this living standard is advertising, which inspires us to want always the new and better things and ways of life.

Of late years it has been the fashion among our radical reformers to attack advertising as an economic waste.

How silly, in view of the magnificent service it has rendered us! Let's encourage it and use it for an ever brighter future.
