Many Attend Kiwani's Big Program

The roster of guests and visitors at the Kiwanis dinner Wednesday evening included Mr. and Mrs. Forrest De Lapp of Beaverton, Mr. Mrs. L. P. Busch, of Forest Grove, Geo. Gordon and Evelyn of Beaverton High School, four young men of the next Selective Service group: W. S. Underwood, Alf Red A. West, W. E. Larson and Clarence Collins, Kiwanian S. C. Pullin of Portland, Major Edward J. R. Rossiter of Bozurnemouth, England.

Mrs. Fred Goyt reported for the ladies committee on last Friday's rummage sale, and handed to Proxy Fred check for $78.75. The ladies were given a rousing hand for their splendid work. After dinner the club adjourned to the High School to hear Major Rossiter in a very interesting discussion of the war, and to see his motion pictures. The pictures proved to be a startling record of the most important events of the war. An orchestra under the direction of Mrs. Walter L. Myers of Beaverton, and composed of young Beaver musicians, gave a splendid concert preceding the lecture. It is rumored that at next meeting the battle scarred leather medal (full of holes) is to be officially presented to the valiant team that emerged with flying colors in the Radio Safety quiz versus Montavilla Club last Thursday.

Mrs. Norman Johnson and Mrs. Russell Grant made their initial bow Wednesday evening.

FEW CHANGES MADE IN REGULATIONS

Few changes in fishing regulations were made by the Oregon State Game commission under new powers granted under provision of Senate Bill No. 147, passed in the recent session of the legislature and signed by Gov. Charles A. Sprague.

In fact, no alterations were made in closures or openings of streams affected at the February meeting of the commission.

The principal action of the commission was the designation of deadlines, above which angling will not be permitted in the high reaches of coastal streams. This restriction affects the Nehalem, Umpqua, Salmon, Necanicum, Siletz and Nestucca rivers and Rock creek, and will be in effect until June 1. This will provide sanctuaries in which fish may spawn and hatch and was considered vital to conservation of fish, particularly in the case of the steelhead trout.

An open season for steelhead trout from May 2 to Nov. 1st, both dates inclusive, was established in Burnt river and Malheur river.

An all year open season for game fish over ten inches long, including cutthroat and rainbow trout and both steelhead and salmon, when under 15 inches in length, was ordered in that portion of all coastal streams above the head of tidewater.

A bag limit for these streams between Oct. 16 and April 11, both dates inclusive, is three such fish in any one day but not more than six such fish in any seven consecutive days.

Rural accidents caused the greater number of traffic fatalities in Oregon during the year 1940, but urban fatal accidents showed the greatest percentage of increase over the previous year, figures compiled by Earl Snell, secretary of state, disclosed today.

There were 205 rural accidents last year, compared to 129 fatal accidents in cities. Rural fatalities in 1940 were 4.2 percent over the rural fatalities for 1939 while urban fatalities last year were up 17.6 percent.

In 1940, rural fatalities constituted 62.7 percent of the total fatal accidents reported in the state while in 1939, rural fatalities constituted 64 percent of the total. The proportion of rural fatalities to the whole in 1940 was thus lower than in 1939 cause the greatest percentage of fatalities in this state, Snell's figures revealed. In 1937 they were 62 percent of the total, in 1938, they were 52 percent, and in 1939, they were 64 percent.

The vacation month of June saw the greatest number of rural deaths for any one month of 1940. Twenty seven persons were killed that month in rural accidents. November was second with 28 fatalities while January, with nine, was lowest.

Mr. G. Miner Speaker At Huber Club

The Huber garden club held its regular meeting Tuesday March 11th at 8:00 P. M. in the Aloha Grange Hall, owing to the lengthy program the business meeting was brief.

We were fortunate in having as our guest speaker, Mr. Gilbert Miner of the Portland Rose nursery. His talk was very interesting and the many beautiful colored slides were greatly enjoyed by all.

The club being one year old this month, it was decided upon to decorate the birthday cake to fit the occasion, and so well were the plans carried out, it is almost beyond description.

The cake itself was fifteen by eighteen inches and was made to represent a house with lawn and garden. To make it a home-flowers and shrubs were placed in their proper setting. The house with garage attached was white trimmed with green. The walk was red and the lawn was lighted by a lone candle. All decorating plans were carried out by the use of colored candies and frostings. The members made and decorated the cake to show what might be learned and done by being a member of a really worth while club.

Mrs. W. E. Borberg and Mrs. E. R. Pooley were in charge of the table decorations. Boquets of Spirea, Kerri and King Alfred daffodils. By each place a tiny basket of spring flowers were placed as favors. The baskets were fashioned from lace paper dollies and the flowers were made from different colored miniature candles stuck on green tooth picks, around the baskets were narrow ribbons tied in a bow. They were truly beautiful.

The mixed quartet sang two very appropriate songs. Ninety persons were present.
