BERRY HALLOCK STANDARD CHANGED THIS YEAR

Any 12 ounce (net weight) hallock or cup type container will become standard for strawberries, loganberries and raspberries in Oregon as result of an order drawn March 25 following a hearing called by the state department of agriculture. The order will become effective as soon as copies are ready for distribution, probably by April 7.

This action leaves the 12-ounce raised bottom container, standard since 1933, legal for use in Oregon and paves the way for growers and shippers to use any 12-ounce container that will meet the requirements of the federal food and drug administration for interstate shipment. The change in standard container regulations was made necessary when the department learned that the federal food and drug administration considered the raised bottom hallock deceptive even though the net content was standardized at 12 ounces.

REPORT FURTHER DROP IN BANG'S DISEASE IN ORE.

Bang's disease in Oregon continued to decline in 1940, with the whole state showing only 1.07 per cent reactors. This is the report of Dr. W. H. Lytle, chief of the animal division, state department of agriculture.

Last year 298,871 Bang's tests were made in Oregon, with 3,190 reactors. Gradual decrease in this disease has been noted yearly since 1935, when reactors were 6.7 per cent. In 1939, reactor percentage was 1.3 for the state. Up to March of this year, the test and slaughter method only has been used for control, but now calfhood vaccination may be used under certain conditions.

Eighteen Oregon counties had less than 1 per cent reactors in 1940, and 11 of these had less than one-half of one per cent.

SOUND ADVICE

An indignant Bostonian rushed to Dr. Everett's house. One of the local papers had published an article severely criticizing this man. Should he demand a public apology or file suit for damages?

Dr. Everett listened quietly then interrupted. "What should you do? My dear sir, do nothing. Half the people who read that never saw that article. Half of those who did see it failed to read it. Half of those who read it did not understand it. Half of those who did understand it did not believe it. Half of those who believed it were of no consequence anyway."

The springs of progress will never be found in an easy chair.

Nations, like individuals, must not value life so highly as to value liberty not at all.

FROZEN FOODS TO BE DISCUSSED

Frozen Fruits and Vegetables will be the topic of a tri-state meeting to be held at the Multnomah Hotel in Portland on April 14th, beginning at 10:00 a.m., according to Kathleen McCrae, home demonstration agent. This meeting is sponsored by the frozen foods departments of Oregon State and Washington State Colleges. Monday, April 14th will be devoted to demonstrations and discussions of interest to the locker patron; the program on Tuesday, April 15th, is planned to be of interest to locker operators.

All homemakers are invited to attend the Monday meeting.

WEST SLOPE CLUB MEETS TONIGHT

West Slope Improvement club will hold a meeting at the Sylvan school house Friday evening (tonight) at 8 p.m.

Moving pictures "The River" and "The Plough That Broke the Plains," will be presented. These pictures were written and produced by Pare Lorenz, one of America's most distinguished motion picture critics and recognized authority on the cinema.

A business meeting will be held including a discussion of the future of the club and election of officers. Refreshments will be served.

4-H'ERS MARKET CLUB SEED CORN

4-H club members, both present and former, are marketing through local dealers, the seed corn they produced in their projects last year. They have available both Minnesota 13 open-pollinated and Wisconsin 525 hybrid corn, reports Palmer Torvend, assistant county agent, who has been sampling the corn for germination and grade tests.

The question asked most frequently about hybrid corn, says Torvend, is "Does it pay to grow hybrid corn?" Another question frequently asked is "What is the advantage of growing locally produced Minnesota 13?" According to trials conducted by the assistant county agent in various parts of the county, and by reports from farmers who have grown it, the usual yield from Wisconsin 525 has been from 15 to 20 bushels more per acre than other varieties, and to date is the hybrid which has proven best adapted to this locality. 4-H club members who are growing corn for seed are using Minnesota 13 which has proven the most adaptable of the open-pollinated varieties, and is the variety featured for club work in the Commercial National Bank Corn Show each fall.

The seed which is being marketed must germinate at least 95 percent or better, and has been cleaned and graded and bears a 4-H Club Minnesota 13, or the Oregon Hybrid Seed Tag, respectively. It must be remembered that seed from the hybrid varieties cannot be saved, as only seed that is produced from the cross of the two strains producing hybrid corn is good.
