San Francisco's Great Superiority.

A great many people living in the middle west, and many living in the east know San Francisco, and they know New Orleans. To such people there can be but one opinion when it comes to deciding which is the best site for a great international exposition.

These people know that San Francisco has a delightful climate, summer and winter; they know that San Francisco is a great financial and commercial center; they know it has one of the finest harbors in the world; they know that though laid in ashes four years ago it is today one of the most beautiful cities in the country, a miracle of rehabilitation having been accomplished by the expenditure of more than $300,000,000 and marvelous energy; they know that the people of San Francisco have the ability, the energy and the money necessary to make the Panama Pacific exposition a splendid success; they know that California, which is backing San Francisco in the fight is one vast storehouse of nature's treasures, and that it offers more attractions to tourists, homeseekers and investors than any other section of the country or of the earth.

They also know New Orleans, they realize that it is somewhat nearer and that its people are hospitable, but they are not blind to its barrenness of attractions and its comparative dearth of resources; they know that while the climate of New Orleans is pleasant in winter it is unbearable in summer; they know that New Orleans is not able, judging by the past, to adequately finance, even with the proposed state aid, a great international exposition; they know that it has no harbor in which to welcome the fleets of the world, and present a naval spectacle as a feature of the exposition that is to commemorate the wedding of the Atlantic and Pacific oceans; they know that New Orleans is not in the same class with San Francisco—that Louisiana is not in the same class with California.

Knowing these things the intelligent people of the east and the middle west will rally to the support of San Francisco in the fight for Congressional favor and endorsement. All the lobbies and special interests New Orleans can bring to its aid will not blind the people to its defects and deficiencies or make them forget the undisputed natural beauty of San Francisco and its many substantial qualifications as the ideal site for the proposed Panama-Pacific International Exposition in 1915.

A Slander on Woman Refuted.

It is often said that woman is woman's worst enemy, that one woman is always trying to depreciate another, and, in the language of a playwright, that "jealousy is the friendship one woman feels for another."

The charge is a slander. Women are inclined to manifest deep sympathy with their less fortunate sisters. In this respect they set a good example to men, which, we regret to say, the latter seldom follow.

We have already called attention to the unselfish aid given the striking cloakmakers in New York by Mrs. Belmont, Miss Morgan, and several Wellesley and Vassar graduates. But who can point to any Harvard or Yale men fighting side by side with strikers?

Apparently men of education and prosperous leisure do not bother their heads about the troubles of working girls or working men. In the strike now going on in Chicago, women of education, women of wealth and club women are working in the streets in behalf of the striking garment makers. We have yet to hear of men doing anything so altruistic.

The reason for the difference is simple. Women, whether suffragists or not, have begun to realize that the woman of the future is not to be the ward of man. She is to be a personality, not an appendix. As for men, whether rich or poor, educated or uneducated, they have for some time realized that a genuine man must not look to others to help him out of the row he has started. He must fight his own battles. Therefore they leave strikers to their own resources.

Women being now on the threshold of independent personality, show symptoms of clannishness, which is a good sign, as it indicates, not a permanent disposition, but a stage of development. They have exchanged chivalry for sympathy.—Boston Globe.

Canal Zone Health.

President Taft's visit of official inspection to the Panama Canal Zone will direct public attention to an important field of governmental operation and one which in the press of other matters has been overlooked of late. For example, Dr. W. C. Gorgas, an eminent American medical authority, has just given out a report concerning health conditions—special features being made of the decreased death rate in the city of Panama of the central zone and among canal employees. These rates, or the number of deaths yearly among a thousand persons, have been as follows since the American occupation of the isthmus:

Year	Panama	Canal Zone	Employees
1905	65.82	49.94	25.86
1906	44.75	48.37	41.73
1907	34.45	33.63	28.74
1908	34.83	29.93	13.01
1909	25.44	18.19	10.64

Thus there were saved last year through the result of medical research 1,600 lives in Panama City, 4,291 in the Canal Zone and 752 among our canal employees. Dr. Gorgas adds, with justifiable pride, that since 1905 there has been no case of either yellow fever or bubonic plague on the isthmus, and that the number of hospital cases of malaria among canal employees has been reduced from the appalling total of 821 to the thousand to only 215 to the thousand.

With such a showing in favor of health figures it would appear that it will not be long until the Canal Zone will be as healthful a place as many of our summer resorts. Let the good work go on.

No Liars Wanted.

Recently a West Point cadet was accused of chewing gum while on duty, a minor offense, punishable by a demerit or confinement in quarters. He lied about it. That was a serious offense and he was dismissed in disgrace.

A few days before another West Point cadet was accused of having civilian clothing in his quarters, a minor offense, also punishable by a demerit or confinement in quarters. He lied about it, and was also dismissed in disgrace.

Evidently Uncle Sam doesn't want liars among his officers in the United States army.

Why? Because Uncle Sam knows from experience that when it comes to a pinch it isn't safe to depend upon a man who lies. He is likely to fail in his duty when most is expected of him. He is likely to betray a trust when great things are reposed. Benedict Arnold was a liar and a traitor afterward—Uncle Sam remembers that. So were other men who betrayed him in one way or another. He learned long since that none but the truthful are dependable.

Nor does the world in general want liars. Lying is an evidence that there is something else wrong with a man. It betrays a weakness that may lie concealed deep beneath the surface, but which is there nevertheless, and which is likely to manifest itself disastrously at some critical time.—Coo's Bay Times.

The Beauties of Bandon.

No city on the face of the globe is more beautifully located than Bandon. In fact some of the picturesque-ness of Bandon and surroundings might be added as another wonder to the seven wonders of the world. Our beautiful wooded lands, our hills and valleys, coupled with the fact that we have the finest natural beach on the entire coast from Alaska to Southern California. A gentleman in conversation with the RECORDER not long ago, said he had visited Long Beach, Redondo Beach, and in fact all the beaches along the coast, and his remark was: "The Bandon Beach has them all skinned a city block." That same gentleman travels over a large territory in the United States and is constantly telling of the beauties of Bandon. It might be added here that our natural scenery is not the only source of beauty. We have opportunities in a commercial way that should and do look good to men who have capital to invest, and the RECORDER knows of a number of substantial industries that will probably be started in this city in the course of the next year, but just at this time we are not at liberty to give out our information, as the plans are yet in embryo and those who have the projects in hand are not ready to announce their plans, but people can rest assured that there will be something doing.

Oregon State Dairy Convention.

Elaborate preparations are being made for conducting the 1910 session of the Oregon State Dairy Convention. As was announced some time ago the officers of the Association decided to accept the invitation of the Eugene Commercial Club and hold the meeting in that city on December 8 and 9.

Mr. D. C. Freeman, Secretary of the Eugene Commercial Club, was in Portland last week visiting the creamerymen and making arrangements for participation in holding this convention. Eugene, as every one knows, is a live city and is bracing for conventions. They will extend a royal welcome to the dairymen of Oregon on this occasion. A splendid hall will be provided for the convention session, and also for the display of dairy machinery and dairy products which will be on hand.

There will be a list of premiums offered for creamery butter and also for dairy butter, and cream cheese, and for display of dairy products.

A feature of the convention which will be different from anything in the history of previous sessions, and of unusual interest at this time, will be a demonstration of the effects of tuberculosis in dairy cows. Several animals will be slaughtered under the direction of Dr. E. E. Lytle, State Veterinarian. This will be an object lesson to dairymen which should be a drawing card to every dairymen in Oregon.

Creamerymen and buttermakers of Oregon will meet in Eugene Dec. 7th, to complete an organization and discuss matters of importance to dairying. Dairymen are invited to attend this meeting, which will make really three days' convention. The Eugene people write that they are preparing to accommodate one thousand delegates to this convention, and I wish to make a personal appeal to the dairymen of Oregon to be present. Let us make this the biggest convention ever held in the west. Dairying is not on the best footing and many are of the opinion that it is growing worse. Considerable dairy legislation is being planned some of it of the most pernicious character which will do harm to the industry. Let us meet in a body, consider these matters, and decide on what kind of legislation we want. Then we will go to the legislature with sufficient force to carry our ideas through and prevent any other legislation from being passed.

IT IS A MATTER OF PRIDE

With the makers of Snow Drift Flour. They know that if the housewife is sure that she gets the same kind of flour in every sack she is going to buy that brand every time she orders. So the makers of Snow Drift have installed a model baking plant in their mill. Every batch of flour that goes through is tested in the laboratory first, then a baking of bread is made. Every loaf of bread from every baking must be uniform with every loaf of bread from every other baking. In this way the makers are sure the flour is the same—always. The careful housewives—the particular ones—insist on such a brand when they can procure it. Snow Drift is such a flour.
