Found Dead in Bunk.

David Davison was found dead in his bunk at the Cody's logging camp Wednesday morning. Davison and another man had been around Bandon and went up to Cody's camp to look for work. They went on to Coquille and secured some whiskey, returning to the camp later Wednesday evening he complained of not feeling well and went to bed. About 3:30 in the morning according to report, he woke up and went outside. On returning he stumbled over some object and made a queer sound. Some of the men heard him, supposed he was still drunk and carried him to his bunk. As he did not get up with the rest of the men in the morning, the foreman went in to call him and discovered he was dead. The coroner was notified at once and arrived on the early boat from Coquille. His verdict was heart failure, caused by alcoholism.

The body was brought to Bandon on the steamer Dispatch and placed in Patterson's undertaking parlors, where funeral services were held Friday morning, after which the body was taken to the cemetery accompanied by a few fellow workmen. Rev. Grafous preached a very touching sermon.

The only means of identification was a poll tax receipt, which was issued at Crescent City, Calif.

Davison was a man about 45 or 50 years of age, weight about 135, height 5 feet 8 inches, was bald on top of his head, hooked nose, stubby auburn mustache mixed with gray, and was badly pock marked on nose and eyebrows and had light blue eyes.

HINTS ON LAUNDERING.

How to Wash and Iron Fine Pieces at Home.

If women would only launder their delicate lingerie waists themselves instead of putting them with other clothes to be rubbed to pieces they will be repaid by their wearing three or four times as long.

First carefully mend any little rip or tear in the waist, then wash in warm water with pure white soap, rubbing as little and as carefully as possible. Squeezing will take most of the dirt out. Rinse the soap out thoroughly, putting a few drops of bluing in the last water. Make a thin starch by putting one heaping tablespoonful of starch in a flat earthenware crock, adding cold water to make a paste, then turn on slowly one quart of boiling water, stirring all the time, and add a bit of bluing. Dip the waist in this, wring out and if white hang in the sunshine to dry and whiten; if colored, dry indoors. Half an hour before ironing sprinkle and roll in a towel. Be sure your irons are clean and rub a little paraffin over each one and try on paper before using. Remember that pounce should always be ironed when it is perfectly dry and with a warm, not hot, iron.

Iron the sleeves first, and by using a small iron you will find it possible to iron them without creasing, even if you do not possess a sleeve board. Then iron the body of the waist, doing the tucks and plain part first on the right side, leaving the embroidery and lace, which should be ironed on the wrong side, for the last. To iron the tucks nicely start at the shoulder, holding the waist at the bottom of the tucks firmly with the left hand to straighten them, and be careful not to use too hot an iron.

The mull ties and jabots look much softer and prettier if no starch is used, but the little neck things that are intended to hang straight can have just a bit of thin boiled starch in them. The plaited jabots should have the plaits firmly basted into place with fine stitches before being washed, and it is better to baste just at the bottom edge, so the lines of the thread won't show when it is ironed. When ironing begin at the bottom, pulling it gently from the top. The plaits adjust themselves.

It is a simple thing to launder embroidered collars and takes but a few minutes. Make a little cold starch by adding one-half tablespoonful of starch to a pint of cold water and add a drop of bluing. After washing and rinsing the collars rub them in the starch, fold them in a cloth for about ten minutes, place them on a well padded ironing board, then cover with a cloth and iron on the wrong side until nearly dry, then without the cloth until perfectly dry, finishing the buttonhole part on the right side to curve it. Turn over the embroidered part last.

INK STAINS.

How to Take Them Out of White Materials by Simple Methods.

To remove ink stains from white materials before the ink is quite dry sprinkle it with salt and rub with half a lemon or even squeezed rind.

Rinse off the acid and wash at once. While the ink stains are wet a good plan is to sprinkle some powdered chalk or starch on the spot and moisten with milk.

When ink stains are fresh they may be removed by dipping the stained part into buttermilk or milk that has been boiled. Change the milk frequently and then wash the article well.

When ink has been allowed to get dry place the stained part on a saucer containing a little boiled water, moisten the stains and cover with oxalic acid. Let it remain a few minutes, then pour boiling water on carefully to prevent the acid from spreading, as it will burn and rot the dry threads.

It is advisable for this reason that the article should be well rinsed in warm water. Pour a few drops of chlorinated soda upon dry ink spots. If the first application does not remove the stain try a little more liquid. Wash immediately.

The chlorinated soda is cheap, 10 cents' worth being enough to last for some time. This preparation is a poison and should not be left within the reach of children. It is excellent for linen or cotton, but will destroy silk fabrics. Muriatic acid is most useful in removing red ink stains.

How to Launder Irish Lace.

Irish crochet lace may be laundered easily at home. Wash soap and water, rinse thoroughly, then dip in thin cold starch, putting a drop of bluing in the starch, as the lace is apt to turn yellow if none is used. Have several thicknesses of blanket covered by an ironing sheet on the table. Lay the lace right side down on it, cover with a cloth and iron until dry, pressing down hard. Then take your crochet hook and carefully pull out each little picot, raise all the petals of the flowers, then press the balls into shape with your fingers. Even a large piece like a coat or waist can be done at home just as well as the at cleaner's by following these directions.

How to Renew Color of Bricks.

When red bricks of a fireplace get discolored with soot or have white spots on them rub with a brick polish, the paste for which can be obtained at a brickyard or paint shop. If this paste cannot be found rub the bricks well with linseed oil, giving them all they will absorb. This treatment may be repeated several times if the bricks are much discolored. Where brick pavements are discolored with moss or green mold scrub with a strong solution of household ammonia and water or with washing soda and hot water.

Flats and booze, says a Chicago physician, drive people insane. And, taking the Chicago variety of both, it is difficult to tell which is the more mad-dening.—Los Angeles Express.

Cincinnati's successful zoo is thirty-five years old. It belongs, however, to the trolley system, and a fee at the gate keeps out the proletariat classically known as the hot polloi.—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Some people do not understand why 20 policemen in New Orleans cannot keep 1800 saloons shut on Sunday. We presume, if the matter were known, it is because they have their hands full.—Charleston News and Courier.

Sporting Notes.

Don't forget that T. W. Robinson is handling all kinds of hay, grain, feed, etc., at the very lowest prices.

Portugal.

The total population of Portugal at the last census, 1900, was 5,423,000.

Lisbon, where the revolution first broke out, has a population of only about 400,000.

Agriculture in Portugal is a failure, little more than half of the area of the country being put to practical use.

Soldiers in Portugal are paid about 30 reis (3 cents) and allowed twelve ounces of bread, together with some Spanish cigarettes, as a daily wage.

Principal articles of diet in Portugal's northern districts consist of dried codfish pickled in Norway, goat's flesh, which is black and hard, black bread made from Indian corn and salt and acid wine in lieu of water.
