MONEY AND PLEASURE.

The art of living easily is to fix your scale of living one degree below your means. Guard against the notion that, because pleasure can be bought with money, money cannot be spent without enjoyment. What a thing costs is no true measure of its worth.

Are Motion Pictures Injurious to the Eyes?

This important question has been discussed in the leading Trade papers many times and the matter has been placed in the hands of Eye Specialists, who, after thorough investigation have concluded that motion pictures shown in the proper manner and projected by the latest machines now manufactured and where the theatre is equipped with a system of lighting that illuminates the auditorium sufficiently that a newspaper may be read without eye strain while pictures are thrown on the curtain, the danger of injuring the eyes is entirely eliminated. The management of the Grand Theatre has installed a number of lights concealed in the ceiling of the auditorium that sheds a soft, mellow light throughout the house enabling the patrons to find their seats with ease, read with comfort and view the pictures with more pleasure than heretofore owing to the additional light in the house, that however has no effect on the brilliancy of the pictures shown. In fact the pictures appear to better advantage, being toned down sufficiently to eliminate the glare that was formerly in evidence when the house was almost in darkness. These patrons of the Grand who have formerly been bothered with eye trouble when looking at the pictures will find this disagreeable feature to be entirely eliminated, allowing them to enjoy the show without straining the optics.

It is the constant policy of the management of the Grand to give its patrons their money's worth, look after their comfort and make this show house as up-to-date as possible. Our Motto—We Aim to Please.

A BLESSED SECRET.

It is a blessed secret, this of living by the day. Any one can carry his burden, however heavy, until nightfall. Any one can do his work, however hard, for one day. Any one can live sweetly, patiently, lovingly and purely until the sun goes down. And this is all that life ever really means to us—just one little day.

To Protect Garden and Fruit

Corvallis, Ore., May 14, 1911.—Just what to use to kill the bugs and worms which annoy the gardener of vegetable and small fruit tracts at this time of year, is told in a new bulletin of the Oregon Agricultural College, which will soon be issued from the college press.

"Plant lice, or aphids, such as the cucumber aphid, cabbage aphid, lettuce aphid, strawberry aphid, rose aphid and others, often become very troublesome in the garden on various plants, and some of them are extremely hard to control," says H. F. Wilson, entomologist, who is author of the work. "Black Leaf, Black Leaf 40, or Kerosene Emulsion, applied at any time when the aphids become troublesome, or before the leaves curl, is effective.

"For worms on cabbage and cauliflower, Paris green or arsenate of lead should be used. For cut-worms on onions, a bran-arsenic mash or a Paris green dry bait.

"For the striped cucumber beetle, the plants should be dusted with Paris green or sprayed with arsenate of lead. It is well to plant some early squash for trap plants, and when the beetles are feeding on them, dust heavily with Paris green.

"For worms on the leaves of currant bushes, one should spray with arsenate of lead. For fruit worms, destroy the infested fruit and allow the poultry the run of the bushes when the infested fruit is falling. For aphid apply an aphid spray (a Black Leaf or emulsion) when the berries are just coming out. Gooseberries should be given the same treatment as currants.

"For plant lice on hops, a thorough spraying should be given with Black Leaf or Kerosene Emulsion at the time the lice are on the plant, and the treatment may be repeated in June if necessary. For aphid on peas the treatment is the same.

"To get rid of the striped cucumber beetle on muskmelons, the treatment is the same as on cucumber vines, and for flea beetles on potato vines, a heavy strength spray of arsenate of lead whenever the beetles appear should be effective. Watermelon pests are treated as the muskmelons.

"When there are cane maggots on the raspberry bushes, the only thing to do is to cut out the infested canes and burn them. For aphid and leaf hoppers on rose bushes, a Kerosene emulsion or Black Leaf spray should be used. For flea beetles on tomato plants a spray of arsenate of lead should be used whenever they appear; for aphid, the Kerosene or Black Leaf spray is good.

"Strawberry plants infested with crown miner and root borers should be destroyed before May 1st. For leaf rollers, the tops should be burned as soon as possible after the crop has been gathered. In addition it is well to spray the foliage thoroughly with arsenate of lead about the first of May, and repeat the treatment in about two weeks. For cut-worms a bran-arsenic mash or Paris green dry bait should be used.

"When flea-beetles are found on sugar beets, the plants should be sprayed at once with arsenate of lead, and the treatment should be repeated two or three times at intervals of about two weeks or so.

"If the beds of violets have red spiders or aphids, Black Leaf or Kerosene Emulsion should be used. In case one treats for red spider with the kerosene, the under side of the leaf must be sprayed, to be effective."
