Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

A BOY never can see why a girl is willing to spend time doing fancy work when she might be learning all about prize buildings.

The man is yet to be born who can thoroughly enjoy listening to a joke on himself.

Genius will excuse carelessness in dress in a man, but nothing but money will excuse it in a woman.

Don't expect to make much of a hit with a pretty girl by complimenting her views on art or her tastes in dress.

The man who goes around with a chip on his shoulder seldom has time to engage in the arduous task of sawing wood.

Optimism is like praying for rain—most likely to be successful when the signs are right.

The man who has half a dozen young men in his office can't afford the luxury of a pretty stenographer.

Some men inherit millions, some squeeze them out of others, and some buy automobiles on credit.

The handy man always makes a hit with the women who are running an ice cream social.

A young man may marry on his good looks, but the aged or middle aged suffer must produce the cold cash.

Breaking the Monotony.
Take your wife and babies,
Pack the family grip,
Once in every season
Make a little trip.
With your vision widened
From your pleasure ride
Home will be the brighter
When you homeward slide.

Do not make excuses
That will breed delay.
If you can't afford it
Do it anyway.
What's a little backset,
What's a little debt,
To the rest and pleasure
That the bunch will get?

Life takes on a dreary
Sort of monotony
When your range is ever
One restricted zone.
See the ways and manners
Of a distant state.
That will reconcile you
Better to your fate.

Take a little journey.
Round the mountains walk.
Give your something different
For your table talk.
Let your business vanish,
Care to windward fling,
Strike for a vacation.
It's the only thing.

Cheap Romance.
"There's no romance in real life to day."
"Do you know Brown?"
"That sport? Yes."
"There's real life in him, isn't there?"
"Guess there is."
"Well, you should hear him tell about the salary he gets."

Smart Girl.
"She is learning to cook."
"Going to be married, I suppose."
"Wrong again."
"What's the secret?"
"Going after the good money dad pays the hired girl."

Running the Bluff.
"Is the doctor doing a general practice still?"
"No, he is an expert now."
"How did he get to be an expert?"
"By doubling his charges."

Enough For a Start.
"He is trying to break into the automobile class."
"With an auto?"
"No; just with a pair of goggles and a quart of gasoline."

Quite Natural.
"I hear he is on the stage."
"Oh, yes; he has a thick part."
"What does he think about?"
"Pay day, of course."

Explained.
"Every man has his price."
"What does he do with it?"
"From reading the accounts it is to be concluded that most of them accept it."

Long Arrow Flights.

There was a marvelous archery feat performed some years ago by Sir Ralph Payne Gallwey on the links at Le Touquet. Shooting with a Turkish bow, he covered a distance of 367 yards with his best arrow, thus breaking all records achieved in recent times. This performance, however, seems to have been exceeded with the old national weapon of yew. Neade, a famous archer under Charles I., states that the ordinary range of the bow was from 320 to 400 yards. The longest shot authentically recorded in England is that of a secretary of the Turkish embassy, who in 1794 shot an arrow 463 yards with the wind and 415 against it in the presence of several members of the Royal Toxophilite society, who measured the distance and preserved the arrow.—Pall Mall Gazette.
