SEA POSTOFFICES.

Handling and Sorting the Mail Matter on Ocean Liners.

Every one is aware that a large quantity of mail comes from Europe. Probably most persons assume that it is dumped off the steamers in bulk and sorted and routed in the postoffice of the receiving port. Such a system would result in hopeless congestion, and practically all of the 15,000,000 pounds of foreign mail matter received at New York on an average of recent years is ready, sorted and sacked when the steamers make port. This work is done in the sea postoffices aboard the ships and means days saved in the time of delivery of mail matter intended for inland points.
In the huge mass of mail brought into New York each year there are on an average 80,000,000 separate pieces, many thousands with inadequate addresses, yet to such a degree of efficiency has the operation of the sea postoffices been brought and so carefully is the work done that less than 500 errors are made annually. As the entire quantity of the ocean mail received in a year would fill 2,200 standard mail cars an almost incredible accuracy is indicated—less than one error of any kind whatever for every four carloads of mail.
Congress authorized the sorting of mail on board conveying steamships in 1890, but it was not until the year following that any systematic effort was made to do so. The work of the sea postoffice is very similar to that of the railway mail service. On board a large liner there will be usually two United States clerks, two in the employ of the country from which the steamer sails and several subalterns or porters. This force will on an average trip open and sort from 800 to 900 sacks of mail, probably consisting of 500,000 ordinary letters and 4,000 registered letters, besides 250,000 parcels and periodicals. Mail for New York city is distributed and separately sacked for each of the stations and that for the United States generally according to a schedule which has 128 divisions. In addition to the mail for the United States, the sea postoffice clerks must sort that destined for Cuba, Mexico, Canada and the orient, a great deal of the last class being forwarded by rail to San Francisco and thence by steamer.
To facilitate matters two mail boats are maintained at New York, and these meet incoming steamers at the quarantine station, one taking on the mail bags intended for direct delivery to trains and steaming directly to the railway stations along the river front, the other that for New York city and such others as require rehandling. The sea postoffices cost the government something less than $3,000,000 per annum.—Harper's.

Dismal Outlook.
"Why do you look so unhappy?"
"Well, you know I'm pretty well busted."
"Yes, but you always were, and yet you've borne up pretty well. What is the particular trouble today?"
"I just proposed to the girl I love."
"Ah! And the answer was unfavorable?"
"I don't know."
"You don't know? Why, what do you mean? Surely you must know whether she accepted you or rejected you."
"That's just it. I asked her to marry me, and she said she would. Then I asked her if she was sure she could be happy with a man who had no money, and she said she could. She said she had always preferred buying things on credit anyhow."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Story of a Profile.
On the facade of the Palazzo Vecchio, at Florence, to the right of the central entrance, the profile of a man's head is traced on the marble, the authorship of which is ascribed to Michelangelo. The story runs that he and a friend made a bet as to which of them would draw a head best with their backs to the wall, a bet easily won by Michelangelo, for he traced a perfect profile, whereas the other produced only a wavering, imperfect outline. The story further relates that the tool used was a nail.
A Sculptor's Slip.
How many know that the only fault ever found with the splendid equestrian statue of Washington in the Boston Public garden, made by Thomas Ball, was the fact that the horse has no tongue. It is one of those minor details that were discovered long after the statue had been put up. Ball's Governor Andrew at the statehouse has all its proper members.—Boston Journal.

Lemons Six.
Mrs. Benham—Father gave me away when we were married. Benham—Your father has been quite a fruit dealer. Mrs. Benham—What do you mean? Benham—He has married off six daughters, and any man who can unload half a dozen lemons in that way is a good one.—New York Press.

No Malice.
Farmer to horse dealer—No. I don't bear you no malice. I only hope when you're chased by a pack of ravishing "hungry wolves" you'll be a-driving that horse you sold me.—London Tit-Bits.

Apparently.
"Well, Quigley, what do you know?"
"Too much, I guess. I've been rejected as a juror six times in succession."—Chicago Tribune.

The great man is he who does not lose his child's heart.—Medford.

R. G. Collins, Postmaster, Barnegat, N. J., was troubled with a severe gripe cough. He says: "I would be completely exhausted after each fit of violent coughing. I bought a bottle of Foley's Honey and Tar Compound and before I had taken it all the coughing spells had entirely ceased. It can't be beat." Sold by Bandon Drug Co.

Notice of Street Improvement.

Notice is hereby given: That on March 20th, 1912, the Common Council of the City of Bandon, Coos County, Oregon, at a regular meeting thereof by resolution duly passed ordered that B. Street in West Bandon be improved from the South line of Cherry Street, where B. Street intersects with Cherry Street, in said West Bandon, running thence South to the South line of B. Street in West Bandon, said improvement to consist of the following:

- (1st.) Grading and filling said B. Street for the full width of street between above described points.
- (2nd.) Grubbing and clearing said street between said points.
- (3rd.) The building of a board sidewalk on the East side of said B. Street, between above described points.
- (4th.) The building of wooden gutters along the sidewalk to be constructed.
- (5th.) The building of bulkheads along the property line of said B. Street, to-wit: One on the West side of B. Street, commencing at the North side of Ash Street and extending South to the North side of Oak Street. One on the east side of B. Street commencing at the south side of Ash street and extending south to the north line of Oak street.

Said improvements are to be constructed in accordance with the specifications of the City Engineer, as accepted by the Common Council and which are now on file at the office of the City Recorder and are open to the inspection of all persons interested therein. Now Unless, a written remonstrance be made and signed by the owners of TWO-THIRDS of the real property adjacent to and abutting upon B. Street in West Bandon between points above described, shall be filed with the City Recorder within twenty (20) days from the first publication of this notice, then the Common Council will pass an Ordinance declaring such improvement as herein specified and that the cost of said improvement be assessed to the adjacent and abutting property on B. Street between points above described.

This notice is published the first time on date of March 29, 1912. By order of the Common Council. E. B. KAUSRUD, Recorder. M29-April 12.

For County Superintendent.

Raymond E. Baker, of Bandon hereby announces himself as a candidate, before the Republican primaries April 19, for the office of County Superintendent. Mr. Baker believes in progressive school work, will establish an office at Coquille, if elected, and will have Saturday for regular office day. He will promote the school system of Coos County to the best of his ability. 22-tf

For Joint Representative

I hereby respectfully announce my candidacy for the nomination for the office of Joint Representative, subject to the will of the Republican voters of Coos and Curry counties, as expressed at the coming Primary Election.

If elected, I shall endeavor to perform the duties of the office in a manner that will meet the approval of all. Respectfully, A. J. MARSH.
