EARTHQUAKES.

Causes That Conspire to Rend the Earth's Crust Asunder.

Until recently all earthquake shocks were attributed to volcanic manifestations. But often the earth is agitated in regions where there are no volcanoes. Hence the belief has arisen that earthquakes may arise independently of volcanic action. Very often, again, when volcanoes are in eruption there are no earthquakes.

Subterranean cave-ins are often the cause of earthquakes. They are the consequences of the action of subterranean water. When water runs through limestone it carves out grottoes and terraces or galleries. When in its underground run it comes in contact with gypsum or rock salt it dissolves these substances, and thus vacuums are formed in the depths of the earth. When the water has worn the earth thin the earth gives way, and the subterranean cave-in shakes the regions above it. In well worked coal mines great hollows are made which produce similar results.

The layers forming the solid envelope of the earth are neither homogeneous nor regularly distributed. Limestone lies granite, and relatively recent rocks overlie ancient masses. Limestone and schist lie together like folded cloth. Layers of the same age are separated by abrupt gaps and breaks by the debris cast out on either side.

The crust of the earth has been compared to marquetry composed of many parts which must have been joined, broken and joined again many times. Its component parts are unstable; their movements are still in progress; they shift, and possibly their sudden shifting causes the upper crust to tremble.

The best evidence in favor of this explanation is that the great earthquakes have devastated countries where the geological layers show traces of cave-ins and slips. In Japan an earthquake raised the ground about twenty-one feet, and the rise ran for a distance of 112 kilometers. An earthquake in Alaska occurring in 1899 raised the coast for a long distance. Earthquakes are limited to two zones. One embraces Himalaya, Asla Minor, the coasts of the Adriatic, Italy, the Alps, the Pyrenees, Algeria, Andalusia and southern Portugal; the other zone comprises the two coasts of the Pacific ocean. The majority of earthquakes have been produced in the first zone.—Harper's Weekly.

Barthold's Egotism.

An old friend of Mme. Steinheil's husband was Barthold, the sculptor of the colossal "Liberty Enlightening the World." Although a man of keen intellect and much originality of thought, Barthold's egotism was as colossal as his statue. Once Mme. Steinheil met him at the "Institut." He wore the green uniform and sword of a member, and his breast glittered with orders. "You see this little thing here?" he said. "There are but three Europeans who have the right to wear it—one emperor, one king and myself. I don't attach the slightest importance to it." Of the statue in New York harbor he said, "The Americans believe that it is Liberty that illuminates the world, but in reality it is my genius."—Bookman.

Scared and Knew It.

A soldier under his first fire was charging with the rest of his regiment up the heights of Vicksburg, but so scared he looked like a ghost. A comrade next to him was unafraid and even smiled at the torrents of grape shot that swept the ranks. The comrade, noticing his friend's plight, turned to him and said with a sneer: "Coward!" "Coward yourself," retorted the frightened soldier. "Old man, if you were one-tenth as scared as I am you'd have broken ranks and run long ago."—Kansas City Journal.

The One He Caught.

One day many years ago the telephone in the office of the chief of police rang. Chief Speers answered. The call was from a new policeman on the Union avenue beat. He said, "A man has been robbed down here, and I've got one of him." "Which one have you?" asked the chief. The reply came back, "The man that was robbed!"—Argonaut.

Solid Ivory.

"Yes," confessed Mr. Dorkins, "it serves me right. I engaged the man to move our goods, and I forgot to ask him how much he was going to charge me for the job. If ever I do such a thing again, Marla, you can have my head for a football." "It would be a good deal more profitable, John," said Mrs. Dorkins, "to cut it up into billiard balls."—Chicago Tribune.

There is love, and there is justice. Justice is for oneself; love is for others.—R. L. Stevenson.

FOR THE CHILDREN

The Little Red Hen.

The little red hen was in the farmyard with her chickens when she found a grain of wheat. "Who will plant this grain of wheat?" she said. "Not I," said the goose. "Not I," said the duck. "I will, then," said the little red hen. So the grain of wheat was planted and very soon began to grow.

When the wheat was ripe she said: "Who will take this wheat to the mill?" "Not I," said the goose. "Not I," said the duck. "I will, then," said the little red hen, and she took the wheat to the mill.

So the wheat was ground into flour, and very soon the time came to make bread. "Who will knead the bread?" "Not I," said the goose. "Not I," said the duck. "I will, then," said the little red hen, and she took the flour to the mill.

"Who will eat the bread?" "Not I," said the goose. "Not I," said the duck. "I will, then," said the little red hen, and she took the bread to the mill.

"I shall do it myself. Cluck, cluck!" And the little red hen had a feast which she rightly deserved.—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Soloist.

Rooster in the morning;
Screech owl in the night;
Cathbird sweetly warbling
When the sun is shining bright.
Some of them sang loudly,
Some of them sang small,
But since the candidate came round
None of them sings at all.

He's stronger than the rooster
When he sets out to crow;
He's sadder than the screech owl
When he tells a tale of woe;
He's sweeter than the cathbird
With his revery great.
There is no bird you ever heard
That can beat the candidate.
—Washington Star.

His Uncle's Medals.

Micky Bryan and Patsy Kelly had been schoolmates together, but they had drifted apart in life. They met one day, and the conversation turned on athletics.

"Did you ever meet my brother?" asked Pat. "He has just won a gold medal in a Marathon race."

"Redad," replied Mike, "Sure, an' that's fine! But did I ever tell ye about my uncle at Ballyclunna?" "I don't remember," replied Pat. "Well," said Mike, "he's got a gold medal for five miles, an' one for ten miles, two sets of carvers for cycling, a silver medal for swimming, two cups for wrestling an' badges for boxing an' rowing."

"Begorra," said Pat, "he must have bin a wonderful athlete, indade!" "Shure, an' he's no athlete at all—all," came the reply. "He kapes the pawshop!"—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Modern Maud.

Maud Muller on a summer night
Turned down the only parlor light.

The judge, beside her, whispered things
Of wedding bells and diamond rings.

He spoke his love in burning phrase
And acted foolish forty ways.

When he had gone Maud gave a laugh
And then turned off the dictagraph.
—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Saw Through Their Scheme.

In a recent election in a little town of northwest Arkansas one of the candidates for city marshal received only five votes out of some 500 cast. He took his defeat very much to heart and had many bitter things to say of the political ring that he claimed had brought about his defeat.

To a friend who was sympathizing with him he unburdened himself "They think I ain't on to their little game," said he. "But I know why they worked and voted against me. They didn't want me to be city marshal. That's why."—Kansas City Star.

Which Did They Do?

"Shall we call on our congressman in a body or individually?"

"I figure it this way: If we call in a body he'll just make us a speech."

"Well?"

"But if we call individually he'll have to take each out to lunch."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Ever Notice It?

If your hat should blow off and roll
Away from you just let it.

Stand where you are; some willing soul
Will chase around and get it.
—Cincinnati Enquirer.

If your glove should drop on the floor
Or the dusty pava of the city

There'll be divers for it galore
If you are a girl—and pretty.
—Denver Republican.

Thinness Accounted For.

Barber—Your hair is getting very thin, sir.

Customer—Yes; I treated it for two weeks with an anti-fat, thinking it was hair restorer.—Boston Transcript.

A Bumper Crop.

Uncle Hiram came through his neighbor's barnyard on his way home and stopped to ask the hired man if crops were good. "Massa, sab," was the answer, "we had so much dat we put what we could out of doors, and the rest we put in de barn."—Judge.

"The Cynosure of Neighboring Eyes." "You never see a lot of women staring at a man," said the striking blond lady.

"You don't, eh?" replied Mr. Growcher. "You ought to notice what happens to a man who keeps his seat in a crowded street car."—Washington Star.

Unpardonable Offense.

"My rival is a wicked man!" The candidate exclaimed. "Quoth we, 'Then tell us if you can why thus he should be blamed.' " "Because," he cried, "in me you see a paragon complete! Yet his fell purpose seems to be To send me to defeat!"

The Critic.

"Scraps borrows my paper every morning."

"Yes?"

"This morning he told me in a bitter manner that his politics are all wrong and that it carries too much advertising."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Bobby's Preference.

Neighbor—Bobby, I hear you have a new brother at your house. How do you speak of him—"boy baby" or "baby boy"? Which is correct? Bobby (with a snort)—Neither one! I wanted a girl!—Chicago Tribune.

Leap Year.

An enterprising girl proposed.
Her luck was rather bad.
It seems, forsooth, the timid youth
Referred her to his dad.
—Pittsburg Press.

Not His Fault.

Owner—How did you come to puncture the tire?
Chauffeur—Ran over a milk bottle.
Owner—Didn't you see it in time?
Chauffeur—No; the kid had it under his coat.—London Opinion.

At Least He Hesitated.

A group of St. Louis men were discussing a banker in that city who has the reputation of hard bargaining, close fistness and who invariably gets his pound of flesh.

"Oh, well," said a man present who hadn't taken part in the general hammerfest, "he isn't so bad. I went in to see him the other day to get a loan of $10,000, and he treated me very courteously."

"Did he lend you the money?" "No, he didn't lend it to me, but he hesitated before he refused."—Saturday Evening Post.

New Management.

"What's come over Wombat? I saw him scotching up Penn avenue a little while ago, and he couldn't stop for a word."

"Yes; he's working like a horse these days."

"But he used to be rather lazy. Why the change?"

"He's under a new management. His latest wife needs a lot of expensive things."—Pittsburgh Post.

Usually.

Jack—Hello, Fred! Had your hair cut? Fred—Yes, old fellow. I found a place where they cut your hair while you wait. Jack—That's good. A barber's shop is usually a place where they cut some other man's hair while you wait.

The Likeness.

Mrs. Newed—I suppose now we have disagreed you are comparing this to your old home. Mr. Newed—Exactly. This is just like the rows mother used to make.—Baltimore American.

Their Happiness.

"How about that newly married deaf mute couple next door to you? Do they seem happy?" "Unspenkably."—Boston Transcript.

In a Department Store.

Floorwalker—Something I can do for you, sir? Nervous Gentleman—I have lost my wife. Floorwalker—Mourning goods on third floor.—Life.
