Newspaper Men at Eugene.

Eugene, Or., (Special.)

Speeches by prominent newspaper men of the state are a very valuable part of the work offered by the Department of Journalism at the University. Edgar B. Piper of the Oregonian was the first speaker and several other Portland men have offered their services.

Many newspaper men of the state have visited the Department and all speak highly of the work being done there.

Prof. E. W. Allen, the head of the department, is a man of wide experience in the work and conducts the classes as he would a newspaper, in a practical way.

McAllister Case.

The Portland Telegram says: E. S. J. McAllister went into Judge Morrow's court just at closing time and announced that he was ready for arraignment. He waived the reading of the indictment and asked for a week in which to submit his plea which was granted. McAllister drew the $1000 in cash which was deposited in court to secure his release when he was arrested at Medford and was permitted to substitute a personal bond with Ray Parkhurst as surety.
