Great Failures that are Great Successes.

Did you ever think of the noble army of failures? Dante was a failure, doomed to poison by the city in whose crown of fame he is the brightest star. Joan of Arc was a failure, her young body burned before the fat eyes of comfortable bishops. Michael Angelo called himself a failure, only a fragment of his work done. Savonarola was a failure, and Burns and Poe and Tolstoi. And Jesus of Nazareth was a failure, deserted by his friends, hounded by the populace, crucified between two thieves. But it is such failures that make "the choir invisible whose music is the gladness of the world." Only in our weakest shameful moments do we care for what men call success. Face to face with the revealer, Death, we know that we do not in the bottom of our hearts want what we have sought, the foam and glitter. When we come to take our final places, over there in the land of truth, we want to stand, if we may be found worthy, beside him who drank the hemlock in Athens, and him who was murdered in Ford's Theatre in Washington, and him who was put to death outside the gate of Jerusalem. There we shall hardly care to know the last lord of privilege. "Better," says Browning, "Better have failed in the high aim, as I, than vulgarly in the low aim succeed as, God be thanked, I do not!"

Bringing it Home.

The woman who took her six children to the jail where the breadwinner of the family is awaiting trial and left them there to be supported by the state, found a radical solution of a perplexing problem of justice. When she was arrested for abandonment the whole family seemed to be provided for, but somebody bailed her out. This complicated case will be worth watching.

If the woman who was left to care for the horses while her husband was jailed for cruelty to animals had tied the horses to the door knob of the court room she would have demonstrated the same strong sense of the fitness of things.

After providing for the safety of society, the first purpose for which a man is detained is to make a decent citizen of him, and the first duty of a decent citizen being to provide for his family, the first duty of the state is to give him the chance and to see that he takes advantage of it.

When the city owns a coal mine, or a woodpile, or a brick kiln, or something else that needs men, and the ordinary offender is sentenced to so many days of work, instead of so many days in jail, giving to his family the wages he earns while in confinement, then we shall be on the high road to peace and good order and well fed families.

Today wives and children suffer untold abuses rather than complain because they know what it means for them to have a man in jail. When it is so arranged that they will not suffer deprivation by the process there will be fewer men who will court the desperate anger of their families, and so vice and crime will be nipped in the bud as they ought to be.—Yeoman Shield.

Mrs. George W. Wickersham, wife of the Attorney General, says the four D's disease, defendants, domestic, and dress should be avoided in conversation. They are the most hackneyed topics that can be found at social functions. Then avoidance eliminates the lady, no matter how cute he is, and one's ancestors, no matter how distinguished. Domestic remove Bridget and all her work, and dress puts the dressmaker and the tailor out of running.

Recorder Homemade Philosophy

Congress is wrestling with the literacy test question. In order to earn their salaries our brainy congressman propose that a foreigner must learn to read twenty-five words in English or in his native tongue before he can locate in the United States.

It may be that some further restrictions should be added to the immigration laws but we think Congress should be careful not to be influenced by prejudice against foreigners on this question. The world is advancing and we should get past the Chinese superstition that the men and women of other lands are "foreign devils" and that they should be treated with contempt. Give the foreigner a square deal. Our forefathers were foreigners.

Pie made in a printing office is sure to give some one a pain.

Breaking into a post office is not the best way of getting into the public service.

Mrs. Sally Smart says if her husband doesn't dish up more dough she intends to mix it with the old man.

Agreements between big nations are more reliable than agreements between little boys.

It would seem an ambitious girl who works hard to make her name honorable has a right to be cautious in changing it.

The man who keeps saying "and I know what I am talking about" is a bit of an idiot and is afraid others will find it out.

The reduced material in a woman's dress doesn't necessarily affect the price that way.

Some people are never ashamed of themselves through a lack of sensitiveness rather than superior sense.

The double standard for immorality in men and women is an injustice to women; but we have noticed that while society punishes the woman, in the case ever comes to trial, judge and jury will give the man the worst of it.

Altering one's opinions is a poor way to clear the atmosphere.

Coming is often mistaken for wisdom; it is pure hypocrisy.

Every man feels that he is capable of giving wise counsel to his neighbor.

Superstition is the wisdom of fools.

A small and dependent mind continues to be precedent.

The idea that punishment prevents crime is largely a superstition.

Another example of the high flyer coming down to hard knocks, the aviator.

While you can not have too much charity yet it is easy to misplace it. No man ever argues with a woman until after marriage; and then it is too late.

Contempt without investigation is the common weakness of mankind and is the greatest obstacle to progress.

Most of us like to flatter ourselves that we are very busy.

If you have a New Year's present for some one be sure and send it where it is not needed. Better send it to president elect Woodrow Wilson. Note: According to the public press the Wilsons received wagon loads of presents, Christmas.

Mrs. Sally Smart: My husband will start two newspapers in Bandon; one this week and one the next.

A Bandon man says he located here because he could go no further west without taking water and that he never had been forced to do that yet.

The man who takes too much time is apt to reach a point where he will be tempted to take other things.

To the man who owns an automobile the political situation has resolved itself down to this: The democrats must bust the gasoline trust or else lower the tariff on automobiles.

Who Can Trap Quail?

Several attempts have been made by the State Game Warden William L. Finley, to buy Bob white quail in the eastern states, for liberating in certain parts of Oregon. The Bob-white is a very desirable bird, however, and other states are guarding carefully the supply they now have. Some sections of Oregon are already pretty fairly stocked with Bob white quail. Other sections are stocked with California and Mountain quail.

"We can easily stock almost all parts of our state with these different varieties of quail," said Mr. Finley. "If we can secure reliable parties to trap the birds and ship them under our directions. We are anxious to get in touch with anyone who is in position to trap quail. We are willing to pay for the birds, and shall arrange to have them sent either to the State Game Farm, at Corvallis, or direct to the places where we want to liberate them."

"In parts of the Willamette Valley, and in sections of eastern Oregon, Bob white quail are quite abundant. These birds will thrive well in southern Oregon, and the people in that part of the country are anxious to have them introduced. In southern Oregon, the California or Valley quail are abundant, and yet we have none of these birds in the Willamette Valley, although they would thrive here and make a splendid addition to our supply of game birds."

Both the California quail and Bob white quail are insect and weed seed eaters. They are not only excellent game birds but are most valuable birds from the economic standpoint about any farming community.

It is strictly against the law to trap any game birds in the State of Oregon, yet the State Game Warden can by special written permit grant this privilege for scientific and propagation purposes.

In the Circuit Court of the State of Oregon, in and for the County of Coos.

Clarence Adams, Plaintiff, vs
Kathleen Adams, Defendant.

SUMMONS

To Kathleen Adams, defendant above named in the name of the State of Oregon:

You are hereby required to appear and answer the complaint filed against you in the above entitled suit, on or before the last day of the time prescribed in the order for publication of this summons; which prescribed time is six (6) weeks, the last day of which time will be Friday, January 10, 1913, and if you fail to go appear and answer said complaint by the said time, the plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief demanded in plaintiff's complaint, a concise statement of which is as follows to-wit:

1st. For a decree of the Court that the marriage contract and relations now existing between the plaintiff and defendant be forever dissolved.

2nd. That the care and custody of the minor children be awarded to plaintiff or that their care and custody be awarded alternately between plaintiff and defendant.

This summons is published in the Bandon Recorder a semi-weekly newspaper published in Bandon, Coos County, Oregon, the publication hereof being once a week in the Friday issue of said paper, for six (6) consecutive weeks beginning Friday Nov. 29th, 1912, and ending Friday Jan. 10, 1913, the same being the first and the last day of the time prescribed in the order for publication of this summons, which is published by order of publication made by Honorable John S. Coke, Circuit Judge of the State of Oregon, in and for Coos County, Oregon, November 20, 1912.

Could Shout For Joy.

"I want to thank you from the bottom of my heart," wrote C. B. Rader, of Lewisburg, W. Va., "for the wonderful double benefit I got from Electric Bitters, of curing me of both a severe case of stomach trouble and rheumatism, from which I had been an almost helpless sufferer for ten years. It suited my case as though made just for me." For dyspepsia, indigestion, jaundice, and to rid the system of kidney poisons that cause rheumatism, Electric Bitters have no superior. Try them. Every bottle is guaranteed to satisfy. Only 50 cents at all druggists.

Less Bowel Trouble in Bandon.

Bandon people have found out that a single dose of simple buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., as compounded in Adler's-Ka, the German appendicitis remedy, relieves constipation, sour stomach or gas instantly. This simple mixture antiseptizes the digestive organs and draws off the impurities and it is surprising how quickly it helps.—CY Lowe.
