More colonists than ever have have come into the state before, taking advantage of the special railroad rates that have just begun to apply will flock into Oregon this year, according to the prediction of officials of big Eastern railways, who declare that the westward movement from the Middle and Eastern states will be so large as to be impossible to calculate.

Arab's Haggle.
Alien Gutter in "The Arabs in Tripoli" comments on the amazing bargaining scenes in the desert plunder market when loot of war was the merchandise.

"Why do you not sell at a set price to all alike?" he asked a merchant. "But why?" said he. "If I can get but half a grush the more from one of them than from another, is it not gain?" "But that wastes time, for while you bargain with one you might have sold to three. They say with us, Time is money." "Oh, folly," he retorted scornfully. "Time is God's and given freely to all men, so that all have it alike. But with the flus one has much, another none, and you must take what you can get."

To haggle with any one is a joy to the Arab. But mutual trust he lacks. "I have known two men," says Mr. Oster, "farm partners, walk eight miles to a market with three scrawny hens to sell. Both must needs go, for neither would trust the other not to cheat him."

The Speed of Animals.
According to naturalists, no animal is known to have exceeded the speed attained by the famous race horse Sysonby. Instantaneous photographs show the full length of one complete stride as about twenty-six feet. In the stride of the fastest racers the hind quarters and the limbs are raised considerably higher than the shoulders and from this relatively great height brought downward and forward, widely separated from each other, as a sportsman says, "to avoid striking the fore legs." The hare which is hunted with fast hounds has not in reality the speed of the dog. The dog, on the other hand, does not attain the speed of the horse. The giraffe is said to run at the rate of fifteen meters (yards) per second under the most favorable conditions. The elephant, going at the rate of two yards a second, carries a weight approximating that carried by six horses.—Harper's.

An Interested Listener.
Mark Twain one rainy day found himself in a room in his club which contained only one other occupant. The two men drifted into conversation. Mark began a discussion on the merits of "Tess of the d'Urbervilles," and made brilliant deductions as to the character and personality of the writer of "Tess," from what he called the internal evidence of the story. His listener at times mildly dissented, but on the whole maintained an attitude of impassivity.

When "Tess" had been labeled only passable, Mark Twain's chance acquaintance excused himself and departed. Calling the smoke room attendant Mark Twain asked him whom he had been conversing with. "That's Mr. Thomas Hardy, sir!" replied the steward impressively.

The Dread of Death.
Granted that it is the will of God that we shall remain on earth and live our appointed lives there, it is essential that mankind should feel the dread of death. Without that dread the world could hardly remain peopled. The dread of death is to the soul what the law of gravity is to the body. It anchors us to the earth. Without that dread to weigh us down and keep us to the globe half mankind would be driven by curiosity, by the love of change, by the dread of ennui, by what Bacon calls "niceness and satiety," to push open the closed door and see what is beyond. Children and a few very happy and easily pleased people might perhaps say they would not explore farther and that they were perfectly content with things as they are.—St. James' Gazette.

To Calculate Longevity.
"Bacon took a deep interest in longevity and its earmarks," said a physician, "and Bacon's signs of long life and of short life are as true today as they ever were. You won't live long, Bacon pointed out, if you have soft, fine hair, a fine skin, quick growth, large head, early corpulence, short neck, small mouth, brittle and separated teeth and fat ears. Your life, barring accidents, will be very lengthy if you have slow growth, coarse hair, a rough skin, deep wrinkles in the forehead, firm flesh, a large mouth, wide nostrils, strong teeth set close together and a hard, gristly ear."

Obligation Both Ways.
"Some of those pictures are genuine old masters," said Mr. Cumrox. "Of course you are very proud to have them." "Yes, and I have no doubt the old masters would have considerable respect for me if they knew what I paid for them."—Washington Star.

A Social Catastrophe.
"Was no one injured in the railway collision, count?"

"No, but nevertheless it was a most painful situation. First, second, third and fourth class passengers all mingled together. Simply unheard of!"—Fliegende Blätter.

Not an Expert Opinion.
"He has just returned from Mexico. He says a Mexican burro is the most aggravatingly stubborn thing on earth."

"He isn't married."—Houston Post.

A Helping Hand.
"Why are you removing all the rocking chairs?" "Pa has sworn off on swearing, and we want to do all we can to help him."—Detroit Free Press.

Boast not thyself of tomorrow, for thou knowest not what a day may bring forth.—Proverbs.
