STANDING OF CONTESTANTS

Big Contest is Livening up and Interest Grows Rapidly.

At last weeks voting in contest several contestants made considerable gains. At the voting tomorrow afternoon, the positions may make some sensational changes. The progress of this contest will be interesting to watch, look for the report every Friday in the Bandon Recorder and notice positions of contestants you will obtain considerable fun from following the race. Through a transposition in figures No. 51 last week was reported as having 81,590 votes. This should have been 18,590 votes.

Ole Lund Interviewed.

While in San Francisco waiting for further passage to Mexico Evert Wymarover chanced to meet Ole Lund, the former Marshfield harness and shoe merchant, who is now located in Frisco, working there for a large boot and shoe concern. Ole Lund felt sore over the outcome of the election last fall. He said he would never in his life come back again to Coos Bay, the way the Smith-Powers concern treated him as candidate for sheriff. "To oust Cage of the fat pasture, he monopolizes it requires a stronger man than I was, and less of that subtle, vicious republican politics from the saw-mill people," Ole remarked.

E. Lewin has taken over the Wigwam again and will operate the same. He will give a benefit dance for the Bandon Baseball team in the near future.

Liberty Bell's Last Peal.
On the morning of June 8, 1835, the Liberty bell, which for a century had been Philadelphia's greatest instrument for showing joy or grief, was being tolled for Chief Justice John Marshall.
On that occasion it was badly cracked. But, broken as it was, the bell was afterward rung on great occasions, although the tones were but sorry reminders of the once powerful sound. So it happened that on Washington's birthday, 1843, the old bell was once again tolled in joy. At that time, however, the previous crack became so wide that the tones were completely broken. It was never rung again after that day.—Philadelphia Ledger.

First Life Policy.
"The first life insurance policy that was ever issued is said to have been written on June 18, 1583, and to have been for £383 6s. 8d. on the life of a certain William Gibbons," said Archibald A. Welch in a lecture. "The policy was for one year, and the premium was 8 per cent of the sum insured; the age was unknown. It happened that Gibbons died on May 29, 1584, well within the calendar year, but the insurers contested the claim on the ground that twelve months of twenty-eight days each had passed. The courts, however, decided against the insurers and the money had to be paid."—Exchange.

Disinterested Affection.
He—Darling, you must want me to give you something or you wouldn't be so sweet and gentle today. She—On the contrary, I don't want anything at all. It's only for the dressmaker.—Exchange.

Do not suffer from headaches. Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills relieve it. Prove it for yourself. [Advertisement.]
