A Remarkable Feat.
Henry E. Dixey met a friend one afternoon on Broadway.
"Well, Henry," exclaimed the friend, "you are looking fine! What do they feed you on?"
"Chicken, mostly," replied Dixey.
"You see, I am rehearsing in a play where I am to be a thief, so, just by way of getting into training for the part, I steal one of my own chickens every morning and have the cook broil it for me. I have accomplished the remarkable feat of eating thirty chickens in thirty consecutive days."
"Great Scott!" exclaimed the friend. "Do you still like them?"
"Yes, I do," replied Dixey. "And, what is better still, the chickens like me. Why, they have got so that when I sneak into the henhouse they all begin to cackle, 'I wish I was in Dixey.'"

The Castle in the Air.
Like the mirage of the desert,
With its promise falsely fair;
Like the treasure laden rainbow,
Is the castle in the air.
Dispel not the sweet illusion
With a look of mute despair.
High your castle should be built, with
Snow crowned turrets in the air.
In the earthly race of mortals
Glory's halo would you wear?
Then put a rock foundation
Neath your castle in the air.
—Floyd P. Wagaman.

The Whole Truth.
When the Duke of York, now the king of England, was making his tour of the British colonies there was an Indian powwow for him in British Columbia at which several Indian chiefs appeared. The Indians made speeches. The only interpreter was a cowboy who had lived in that country and who volunteered his services.
The cowboy told the royal party what an Indian chief was talking about for a few minutes and then stopped, while the Indian continued spouting.
"What is he saying?" asked one of the princesses.
The cowboy made no reply.
"But we must know what he is saying," the princess persisted. "Tell us immediately. I insist."
"Well, ma'am," replied the cowboy, "if you must know, he is asking whether it is possible that little runt with the whiskers ever will be king of England."—Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post.

Will Against Will.
A certain prosy professor of physics is so great a misanthrope that he deliberately announces his lectures for the days when he has reason to think that his students will least want to attend. He commanded their presence on an election day once and drove them nearly wild by delivering a tedious essay on will power.
"If he wills it a man may accomplish anything," he droned. "Let him make up his mind not to die and he will live in spite of disease; let him decide that life is not worth living and he will drop peacefully out of it. I challenge any student to cite an instance in which the power of the will has not triumphed over everything."
Up shot the reprobate of the class, a youth beloved by all his companions for his daring humor.
"Sir, I accept your challenge. You are wrong," he said.
"Pray mention an example," retorted the professor dryly.
"With pleasure, sir. An hour ago I willed that this lecture should be brought to a speedy conclusion. I've willed the same thing sixty times since, but up to now it hasn't come off."
"Nor will it," said the professor, "for I have not only willed that this lecture should last another hour, but am perfectly willing that it should do so." And it did.

Slightly Sarcastic.
When James B. Reynolds was assistant secretary of the treasury Senator Root sent for Mr. Reynolds one day to discuss with him some matters concerning a trade conference in Paris which Mr. Reynolds had been selected to attend.
"I suppose," said Mr. Root, "you speak French?"
"Well, yes," responded Mr. Reynolds. "I know a little French. I have no trouble to make the waiters and the cab drivers understand me."
"I see," said Mr. Root. "But, Mr. Reynolds, suppose there should be no waiters and cab drivers in the conference?"—Judge.

A Puzzled Author.
When Alphonse Daudet brought out "Sappho" an American publishing house that issued religious books, not knowing its character, offered M. Daudet a large sum for advance sheets of the work. He accepted the offer, and the advance sheets were sent. When the publishers received them they decided that they could not issue the book, and they cabled to the author, "Sappho" will not do." This dispatch puzzled Daudet. He consulted with numbers of friends, and this was the conclusion at which they eventually arrived: "Sappho" in French is spelled with one "p"—"Sappho," after the Greek fashion. In English it is spelled with two. An unusually acute friend pointed this out to Daudet, which much relieved the novelist, and he cabled back to the publishers, "Spell it with two p's." It is needless to state that the publishers were more astonished at Daudet's reply than he had been at their cable dispatch.

"Clean Up the Bowels and Keep Them Clean"

There are many remedies to be had for constipation, but the difficulty is to procure one that acts without violence. A remedy that does not perform by force what should be accomplished by persuasion is Dr. Miles' Laxative Tablets.

After using them, Mr. N. A. Waddell, 315 Washington St., Waco, Tex., says: "Almost all my life I have been troubled with constipation, and have tried many remedies, all of which seemed to cause pain without giving much relief. I finally tried Dr. Miles' Laxative Tablets and found them excellent. Their action is pleasant and mild, and their chocolate taste makes them easy to take. I am more than glad to recommend them."

"Clean up the bowels and keep them clean," is the advice of all physicians, because they realize the danger resulting from habitual constipation. Do not delay too long, but begin proper curative measures.

Dr. Miles' Laxative Tablets are a new remedy for this old complaint, and a great improvement over the cathartics you have been using in the past. They taste like candy and work like a charm. A trial will convince you.

Dr. Miles' Laxative Tablets are sold by all druggists, at 25 cents a box containing 25 doses. If not found satisfactory after trial, return the box to your druggist and he will return your money. 12 MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.
