OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY OF BANDON

Recorder Philosophy

It agrees with some characters to be disagreeable.

The contented grunt of a fat hog is real music to the rancher.

The parent who takes up a child's quarrel has a quarrelsome child.

It is all right to have ideals; but be prepared to see them smashed.

A public debate is a contest in which the chief disputants show off.

The individual who refuses to work for fear of being degraded is already degraded.

A vote for the port is a vote for a city of 20,000 population before you die. Do you want it?

A heavy load of wood is apt to aid digestion; but a heavy load of debts will work the other way.

The father or mother who does not know how to give orders will unerringly teach the children how to disobey orders.

We contend that there is too much lying against those who are living and too much lying for those who are dead.

Nevertheless, the port election is the most important question just now before the people of this water shed. August 27.

This world is your home and you should occupy your place, not as an intruder, but as one having a perfect right to be in it.

In view of the weakness of the flesh and the brevity of life the most important thing is the fact that nothing is of much importance.

Before marriage every young man thinks that he and his intended will never be as cold and crabbed as the old folks—and their children will think the same.

We know a man who preached for 25 years, with much enthusiasm, that something great was about to happen. He is now an old man, in his second childhood, and nothing great has happened yet.

Dr. Lyman Abbott, one of the world's famous ministers, writing in the Ladies Home Journal, describes men, as he has found them, as follows: "Vain, proud, selfish, egotistical, ambitious, covetous, quick tempered." He says church members and non-members are all alike excepting the church members are leagued together to help each other to do better; but according to this famous minister they don't make much progress. Is the doctor a little cynical or is he just telling the plain truth?

Saved the Shoes.

On Sunday afternoon last M. Treadgold brother to Attorney Treadgold, while strolling on the beach espied two beautiful maidens of his acquaintance in bathing costume sitting on a rock around which the waves were washing.

M. Treadgold's weakness for a pretty face overcame his fear of sea waves and he made a dash to the rock. The ladies proved so entertaining that the gallant gentleman forgot the rising tide and when he endeavored to return he found water, which judging by his face he thought deep and cold, surging between him and the beach.

M. Treadgold hastily tore off his shoes and shouting that he would keep them dry, he put forth all his strength to hurl the shoes to a point above the waves, but human strength could not hurl Treadgold's shoes and the expectant waves received the weighty utilities.

For a moment Mr. Treadgold looked as if his understandings had been wrenched from him by the relentless waves, but with a vigorous whoop the valiant gentleman plunged into the sea amid the roar of cruel laughter and unkind wetness of the waves he grappled for the truant shoes. Hereafter Mr. Treadgold is doomed to be known as "The Hero of the Shoes."

To Straighten Road.

Plans to take some of the kinks and curves out of the county road between Marshfield and Coquille are being made and it is possible that something may be done towards re-locating the crooked part of the highway altogether. Road Supervisor Norton of the Marshfield Road District stated today that a new road has been surveyed to parallel the railroad track and that it is to be put through as soon as the county can spare the money. Most of the crooked road is in Taylor Sign's district and there is not sufficient money raised in that district to do the work without aid from the county as a whole.—Coos Bay Times

Old Moore Predicts Disasters For 1914.

London, July 26.—The year 1914 is to be a great year for British suffragettes, the majority of whom will get the vote next spring, according to "Old Moore" England's only licensed prophet.

The famous "Almanack" which is just published, has, however, little comfort for other folk, for the prophet gloomily predicts many disasters—moving picture fires, the burning of a government building, mining explosions, earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, railway wrecks, bank failures and other equally distressing events.

England is to have a nation-wide strike, according to "Old Moore," a death in the royal family, and an attempted assassination of a cabinet minister. Turkey is to be sponged off the map of Europe altogether, China will have another bloody rebellion and there is a big massacre due in Asia Minor, while war between Germany and France will be only narrowly averted.

Portland Has 246,650 Say Census Guessers.

Washington, D. C., July 25.—Portland's population, according to the census bureau, on July 1, 1913, was 246,650. On April 1, 1910 it was 207,214. Seattle's present population is estimated at 295,225, San Francisco's 440,995, Los Angeles 412,466. The system at which the census bureau arrives at these figures is to compute the increase at the same ratio indicated by official returns for decade between 1900 and 1910 and all in the population of territory taken into city limits since 1913. These figures have no official force, as the census people have had no data since 1910 on which to base estimates of present population.

Grange Meeting.
