Recorder Philosophy

Hanging is legalized lynch law.

The gladdest part of a dog is its tail.

A whipped prize fighter cuts a pitiable figure.

Marriage is a "trust" which is hard to "regulate."

Governor Sulzer will be banished to the proverbial salt creek.

Taking office brings about as much punishment as taking other things.

Municipal ownership of public utilities is steadily growing in popularity.

Any politician will promise to reform the biggest and worst city in the world if elected mayor.

Tammany will impeach will impeach Sulzer; but the people have already impeached Tammany.

Livestock Increase on National Forest Ranges.

A marked increase in the quantity of livestock grazed on national forest ranges during the past fiscal year is reported by the forest service. Nine and a half million domestic animals have been occupied during the summer in converting one of the by products of the forests into meat, hides, and wool. In addition, there were in round numbers three hundred thousand calves and colts and five million lambs and kids exempt from permit and therefore not enumerated.

According to the figures gathered the amount of stock grazed under permit during the year is over four per cent greater than for the previous year, while the number of permittees using the forests for pasturage purposes was increased from 26,501, to 27,460. The total receipts by the government from grazing fees for the twelve months ending June 30, 1913, were $1,007,739, and the portion of this applied to schools and roads in the state in which the national forests are situated is about $352,708.

Grazing is second only to lumbering as a principal use of the national forests. Practically all of the national forests used extensively for grazing purposes are within the eleven states extending east from the Pacific Coast, known as the "far western group." These states contain, according to latest reports, 8,546,000 cattle, 2,810,000 horses and mules, and 28,366,000 sheep. The national forests support in these states 17 per cent of the total number of cattle grazed, 3.48 per cent of the horses and mules, and 27.5 per cent of sheep.

It is estimated that the annual product of these animals is 300,000 head of beef cattle of various ages and grades and 5,000,000 head of lambs and mutton sheep. Since the average net meat weight of a beef animal is 315 pounds, of a lamb 37 pounds, and of a sheep 52 pounds, the stock grazed on national forests in the eleven far-western states produce annually about 155 million pounds of beef and 312 million pounds of mutton. In addition it is said the wool grown totals 55,000,000 pounds, hides approximate 300,000 in number, and pelts 5,000,000.

This output, according to the forest service, does not involve any material sacrifice of forest or watershed protection or permanent forage productivity on the national forests. The system of range management applied by the government has proved, it is claimed, effective and simple, and the quality and quantity of the national forage crop is said to be improving each year.

Restored to Public Domain.

Three quarters of a million acres of public lands were restored to entry last month. These restorations were based upon recommendations made by the United States Geological Survey as a result of its classification work in the Western States. The only area withdrawn was one of 235 acres in California, temporarily reserved from entry because of its possibilities for developing water power. The largest restoration was in Montana, where 525,747 acres were restored to public entry as the result of coal classifications completed. In addition to this, restorations of coal land involving 214,742 acres were made in Colorado, New Mexico, North Dakota, Utah, and Wyoming. In California Idaho, Oregon, and Washington, 7,824 acres heretofore reserved for water power were restored, examination having indicated that they are not valuable for the purpose for which they were withdrawn.

About 83,600,000 acres of land have now been classified as noncoal land and less than 20,000,000 acres have been classified as coal land and values of over $760,000,000 placed upon them in accordance with the provisions of the coal-land law and the Department regulations. The remainder has been restored without classification.

The Survey has also classified as non-irrigable and designated for entry under the enlarged homestead acts more than 200,000,000 acres of lands in those western States to which the 320-acre homestead principle has been extended by Congress.

Valuation is Lowered.

The state board of equalization will convene within a few days, when the assessed valuation of railroad, telephone and telegraph properties in Coos county will be made known. The local board of equalization in reducing timber lands in ranges 9, 10, 11 and 12, 20, 15, 10 and 5 per cent, respectively, cut the assessor's figures from $22,641,000 to approximately $21,000,000, or about $1,600,000 less than the estimated valuation of the county when Assessor Thrift announced, prior to inaugurating the work, that there would be an increase of about 25 per cent. The State Tax Commission will probably assess the corporations mentioned between $300,000 and $400,000, bringing the total up to in the neighborhood of $21,400,000.—Sentinel.

Bones Tied Together.

William Woolsey of Bandon, a Utah Indian war veteran, is at Grayce hospital with both legs broken, the accident having occurred on the Bandon beach by a log rolling upon him three months ago. After having been in a Bandon hospital for some time, the patient was brought to Coquille. The bone in the left leg had not knitted, and the surgeon at Grayce hospital split the flesh and wired the bone together. The operation promises to prove a success. The fracture is between the ankle and knee. No attention has been given the other leg as yet, Dr. Richmond electing to await the outcome of the operation.—Sentinel.

Sixteen-foot Shark Captured Off Newport.

Newport, Or., Sept. 29.—The big shark caught by Captain Carner of the Ollie S., just off shore, as it was fighting a whale, is on exhibition at the dock. Some say it is a man eater, but it better fits the description of the Thrasher shark.

It is 16 feet long, 7 feet wide, and weighs over three tons. It took all the power of the schooner Alvarado could put into her hoist to lift the big fish to the dock. It has a single row of teeth in both the upper and lower jaws, and is white on one side and black on the other. Captain Carner expects to take the fish to Portland, after it has been dressed and put on exhibition.

Forest Note.

The railroads of the United States are about 150,000,000 wooden ties each year.

Cadillac, Mich., is reported to be the foremost city in the country for varied and close utilization of forest products.

More than one-fourth of all the sheep in the eleven states nearest the Pacific coast are grazed on the national forests.

The national forests contain water powers with an aggregate estimated capacity of 12,000,000 horse-power, available for use under permit from the secretary of agriculture.

Much of the piling, wharf material and lock gates of the Panama canal are made of greenheart, said to be the most durable wood known for these purposes, which come mainly from British Guiana.

The western forestry and conservation association will hold its annual conference about December 15. This year it will meet at Vancouver, B. C., and will give its main consideration to the problem of forest fire prevention and control.
