We learn from the Neport Signal that Fred Bearce, of Yaquina Bay, lately received a letter from Ed. Pinaud, the great perfumery manufacturer of Paris, France, to the effect that the so-called ambergris sent him was not genuine ambergris. During the past summer a large amount of the stuff was found along the beach in the vicinity of Yaquina, and the report went out that it was ambergris. Many persons with visions of becoming wealthy gathered it and stored it away. The letter from Monsierr Pinaud shatters their golden dreams.

Supervisor Marsh and crew rocked about three-fourths of a mile of the worst road on the mountain south of town. The work is substantially done, and the improvement is one that has long been needed. Under the able supervision of Mr. Marsh the Port Orford road district is fast getting one of the best stretches of road in the county.—Port Orford Tribune.

Mr. and Mrs. C. R. True returned Wednesday from a hunting and fishing trip on the Sixes River, and were the guests of Mr. Inman during their stay. They succeeded in bagging one fine deer and caught so many fish they didn't know what to do with them. Mrs. T. however, is the champion fisher, having caught two trout, both of which measured more than 18 inches in length.

Ed. Bisk had a very narrow escape while driving the Coach car, from going over a precipice 100 feet. The accident was caused by the car wheels skidding in the soft mud and the car was stopped just in time to save its going over. Bisk was hauling eight passengers and they were obliged to walk eight miles from Humbug mountain where the accident occurred to Port Orford, and all the way in the rain.

Postmaster W. J. Sweet returned on the Breakwater from Salem and Portland. While at Salem he attended the state fair and also the state convention of postmasters. He reports the fair as being very fine this year with big crowds in attendance. The postmasters convention was not as interesting to him as he had anticipated owing to the fact that it was mostly for fourth class offices, and as the Bandon is a third class, and in fact almost a second class office, there was not a great deal at the convention to interest him.

Notice

I hereby give notice to the public that I do not wish sand and other materials removed from the Breakwater Addition, and stand ready to prosecute anyone so trespassing. W. L. GREEN, Owner.

MOVING TOWARD CHINA.

America, it is said, is being pushed westward by ice pressure. It may be some time before people that North America has traveled from Europe across the Atlantic to its present position on the globe and that it is still moving toward China.

According to the calculations of Professor Wegener of Marburg, Germany, North America in the last twenty-six years has moved 200 feet away from Europe, and Greenland in eighty-four years has traveled the appreciable distance of 8,000 feet, also away from Europe. Professor Wegener believes that this movement westward is due to surface pressure exerted by ice. Not only does this pressure force the continent or island upon which it is exerted to sink, but, just as a lot of cakes of ice lying upon each other in a pan of water move the lower strata of the ice cakes sideways, so does surface pressure of ice force an island or even a continent to move sideways. Greenland, so much smaller than the North American continent and loaded down more heavily with ice because of its northern latitude, would move much more rapidly than our own continent, as it actually does, if Professor Wegener's computations be correct.

If Professor Wegener be right, then it is not merely possible, but probable, that America and Europe were at one time either one and the same continent or so close together that even the rude craft and meager seamanship of the early Hebrews and Phoenicians could carry men and women from one continent to the other.

The average breadth of the Atlantic ocean is about 8,000 miles. Each mile contains 5,280 feet. A simple arithmetical problem gives us the extraordinary result that, supposing North America to have traveled at the same speed in the past as in the present, it took our continent 1,800,000 years to accomplish the journey to its present site. The idea is a fantastic one. It suggests that in about 2,000,000 years, if the present speed be kept up, the Pacific coast of America may bump against Japan and China, thus obliterating the Pacific ocean or leaving it merely a chain of lakes.—New York World.

A HISTORIC BIBLE.

It is Bound in Red Leather and Used in the Supreme Court.

It is a tiny little book, only five and a half inches long and three and a half inches wide. It is bound in bright red morocco leather, with the word "Bible" printed in diminutive gold letters on the back. But one does not see that red morocco cover unless he removes the little black leather slip which protects it. Long ago the little red Bible began to show wear, and then the black leather slip was made to protect it—so long ago, in fact, that fifteen of those covers, made to protect the venerated little volume, were worn out in the service.

It is without doubt one of the oldest Bibles, if not the very oldest Bible, connected with the government and is certainly the most historical. It is the book upon which since 1800 every chief justice—with the single exception of Chief Justice Chase—and every member of the supreme court has taken the oath of allegiance when accepting his appointment to our highest tribunal. More than that, every attorney who has practiced before the supreme court since that date, 1800, has pledged his allegiance over the little volume—all, with one exception also, and that exception was Daniel Webster.

It is told even yet of the supreme court of that day that Mr. Webster's fame as an orator had so preceded him that on the occasion when he came to argue his first case before the court the clerk, Mr. Caldwell, in his eagerness to hear the great speaker, forgot to administer the oath.

Unmasked.

"Did you ever stop to think what little things betray one's station in life?" said a woman as she watched the crowd come and go in a restaurant.

Two stylishly gowned young women who had just come in had removed their gloves. When they entered everybody took notice. When they took off their gloves they revealed cheap rings on their fingers. Had they worn no jewels there would still have been a doubt as to their position. As it was, their knowledge as to the latest cut in gowns did not make up for their deficiency of taste in the matter of jewels.—New York Sun.

Ears of Animals.

The ears of the tigers, foxes, wolves, cats and other beasts of prey bend forward, while the ears of animals of flight, such as hares, rabbits, deer, etc., bend backward. This is because the ears of beasts of prey are designed for the purpose of collecting sounds in the direction taken by the animal in pursuit of its prey. The ears of an animal of flight, by turning backward, enable it to hear the sounds made by a pursuer.

Particular.

"Why don't you want to go to Dr. Goodly's church, dear?" said Mr. Hicks. "Because I don't care to associate with that class of people," replied Mrs. Hicks. "The last time I went he told them they were all poor, miserable sinners."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Busy All the Time.

"What's the old man doin' now?" "Well, when he ain't votin' around he's applyin' for office, an' when that's no chance of gittin' the office he devotes his time to tellin' the government how it ought to run itself!"—Atlanta Constitution.

Story of Nome.

Nome, the famous gold camp in Bering sea, the most northerly city in the world, was built on a sandy sea beach. In front of the town there is an anchorage for ships, but steamers do not make a landing. Cargoes and passengers are landed at an aerial tramway station in deep water. The principal part of the town, which a dozen years ago had a population of 20,000, is on the east side of Snake river, with a long finger extending to the west along a narrow sandspit. This sandspit was rich in gold dust, and the early settlers built their cabins there.

Of late years the sands have been worked out, and little except dredging operations, which require large capital, is being done. It has been estimated that the dredges have enough ground in sight to operate 50 years more. Nome has produced more than $50,000,000 of gold dust. Some years the yield has been as high as $8,000,000. This year the production will not exceed 4,000,000 owing to lack of water.

The summer population of Nome is about 4,000 and in winter two thousand remain, the others coming out on steamships that leave late in October. One steamer is yet to leave Seattle for Nome. It will be possible to send revenue cutters to Nome to deliver supplies and take away needy persons who wish to leave.—Coos Bay Times.

Body Found.

The body of Eric Nord, who fell overboard from the Charm, near Parkersburg a week or so ago was found yesterday near where he went under the water. The body was brought to Bandon and Coroner Wilson was notified and that gentleman turned the matter over to Justice Wade.

It was not considered that any inquest was necessary as most everyone is familiar with the cause of Nord's death and an order for burial will in all probability be made at once.

J. Howard Johnston representing the famous S. & W. brand of groceries was in Marshfield and other cities of the county this week calling on his customers. Howard is working up a good trade.
