NOTES OF FRISCO FAIR

Interesting Information Concerning the Next Worlds Fair.

San Francisco, Dec. 19.—Several hundred masts are being made and shipped from lumber mills in the State of Washington for the Panama-Pacific International Exposition. They are of fir, some of them 125 feet high, and they will be placed around the grounds and buildings, to fly the decorative flags, standards and pennants that will be parts of the general color and decoration scheme of the exposition.

The price of a single admission to the Panama-Pacific International Exposition in 1915 will be 50 cents for persons more than 12 years of age; 25 cents for those between 5 and 12, and children less than 5 years old will be admitted free if accompanied by an adult.

Thirty-one foreign countries have announced their intention to participate officially in the Panama-Pacific International Exposition. They are Argentine, Bolivia, Brazil, Canada, Chili, China, Costa Rica, Cuba, Denmark, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, France, Guatemala, Hayti, Holland, Honduras, Italy, Japan, Liberia, Mexico, New Zealand, Nicaragua, Panama, Persia, Peru, Portugal, Salvador, Spain, Sweden, Uruguay, Venezuela.

The great Palace of Machinery, the largest wooden building in the world, covering eight acres, is 93 per cent completed. Nearly all the covering, in imitation of Travertine marble, is in place and the installation of the sculptural decorations has been commenced.

A distinctive phase of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition that will set it apart from former great world's expositions will be its illumination. At night the exposition will be as bright and as luminous as if by day, the salient feature of the lighting is that there will be no dark shadows. Outline or silhouette lighting employed at other world's expositions will not be utilized, but through indirect or reflected lights all the details of the stuary and of the facades of the courts will appear with daylight value. In the lagoons perfect reflections of whole buildings will be seen. A spectacular feature of the illumination will arise from batteries of searchlights moored in the harbor. Cut glass prisms set in the recesses of the towers and adorning, the figures to surmount the colonnades encircling the Court of the Sun and Stars will reflect the shafts of masked batteries of searchlights set upon the roofs of the exhibit palaces.

Forest Notes.

Twenty states have published reports of their wood-using industries.

A good grade of excelsior is being made from fire-killed Alpine fir and Engelmann spruce in Colorado.

It is predicted that western yellow pine will furnish an excellent source of turpentine as the southern pine becomes exhausted.

While there are five hemlocks in the United States, only two are of any commercial importance, common hemlock and western hemlock. Of these two western hemlock makes the better lumber.

The Philippine burgau of forestry uses a launch for service between islands. The U. S. forest service employs several, both on inland lakes and in salt water, in Alaska and Florida.

Trunk manufacturers in Colorado are abandoning the usual basswood and cottonwood for the trunk box, and are turning to Engelmann spruce, which combines lightness, strength, and ease of working.

Last week I told you about having for sale 80 of the finest resident lots at the price in the city of Bandon. Today I want to tell you that you have less to select from but just as good a chance to get in on the lower floor of a good buy, at the same price, $75.00 and $100.00 each with $25.00 additional for corner lots, $10.00 down and the balance in monthly payments of $5.00 each until paid. This is the Corson Addition, and is situated south of West Bandon. Come in and I will walk out with you—you will never regret it.

I am still offering business lots from $400.00 to $850.00 each, ten per cent down and five per cent per month until paid.

You can hear every day people say I could have bought this or that lot a year or two ago for such and such price, and you are going to hear the same thing a year or two from now.

Are you going to be one of them? 5, and 8 acre tracts at $30.00 per acre left, one hour walk from Post Office.

If you had $1,000.00 to loan would you loan it to a party or parties that was not financially responsible? How about your fire insurance? Is the company you are insured in responsible? In case of fire you have their note for the amount of your insurance. On Jan. 1st 1913 the Hartford insurance Co. had $26,492,318.21 total assets. Think it over.

If you want fire insurance or land see the Pioneer Land Merchant of Bandon, Oregon, E. E. OAKES.

JUVENILE HIGH FINANCE.

Give Him Half a Chance and This Chap Will Own the World.

A pupil in one of the well known boys' schools, being short of pocket money, conceived a means of replenishing his funds by the following plan:

He wrote to a jewelry house in New York, where he had an established credit, asking that a silver cigarette case soiling at $25 be sent to him on approval. Upon its receipt he arranged a lottery among his chums at the school and offered for sale 100 chances at 25 cents each. He sold all the chances for a total of $25.

The boy who held the successful number that won the silver case happened to be one who did not use cigarettes, and therefore the manager of the affair offered to buy the case for $5. The winner accepted the offer, as he thereby made a profit of $4.75 cash instead of having an article of no use to him, whereas the promoter of the deal had $20 left.

The promoter now returned the cigarette case to the jeweler and asked that it be credited to his account. This being a frequent occurrence, nothing was thought of the return of the article.

By this scheme the pockets of the young promoter were replenished by $20, the other boys had enjoyed their little game of chance and were perfectly satisfied with the operation, and the business house was likewise satisfied. Yet some people who have heard of the transaction are asking, "Is the young financier open to any criticism for his methods?"—New York Sun.

SINGULAR DREAMS.

"Poetic" Effusion That Drew Tears of Pathos From the Sleeper.

Lord Roberts records a remarkable dream. In October, 1855, his father to whom he was giving an address at Peshawar, India, had issued invitations for a dance. Two days before it was to take place he was silent and despondent during breakfast and eventually told his son that he had had an unpleasant dream, which had visited him several times before and had always been followed by the death of a near relation. As the day wore on his depression grew, and he wanted to put off the dance. His son dissuaded him, but that night the dream returned, and the dance was then postponed.

"The next morning the post brought news of the sudden death of the half sister at Lahore with whom I had stayed on my way to Peshawar."

Many people have dreamed poetry in their sleep. The London Chronicle tells of one man who awoke from a dream with the tears streaming down his face at the pathos of the following lines:

Walker with three eyes,
Walker with two,
Something to think of,
Something to do.

But the height of absurdity in this curious art was achieved by the woman who composed a whole epic in her sleep. On awaking she found that she could remember only the concluding couplet:

Admiral Kinkums and his seven daughters
Hung in a bark suspended over the waters.

Peeps on May Dew.

In Peeps' time May dew—that is, dew gathered from the grass on a May morning, and especially on the morning of May day—was highly prized for bleaching linen and improving the complexion. Peeps wrote in 1667: "My wife away down with Jane and W. Hewer to Woolwich in order to be there tonight and so to gather May dew tomorrow morning, which Mrs. Turner hath taught her is the only thing in the world to wash her face with, and I am contented with it." Two years later he made this entry in his diary: "Troubled, about 3 in the morning, with my wife's calling her maid up and, rising herself, to go with her coach abroad to gather May dew, which she did, and I troubled for it for fear of my hurt going abroad so betimes happening to her, but I to sleep again. She came home about 6."

What Ailed Him.

"They" tell me you've lost your tired man."
"Yes, best farm hand I ever had."
"Sh! What was the matter?"
"Nothin'. John's a German, you know, and these here Germans hev what they call the wanderlust. It's somethin' that keeps 'em movin' from one place to 'other and don't let 'em stay long anywheres."
"That's queer, ain't it? How long had John been with you?"
"Only eleven years."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

What Changed Him.

Mistress (finding visitor in the kitchen)—Who is this, Mary?
Mary (confused)—My brother, m'm. Mistress (suspiciously)—You're not much alike. Mary (stammering apologetically)—We were, m'm, but he's just had his beard shaved off, and that makes him look different."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Modern Structures.

"What's the matter with this elevator?" asked the nervous man. "You keep trying to run it through the roof."
"You'll have to excuse me," replied the operator. "I'm not used to one of these little twenty story buildings."—Washington Star.

Gloating Over the Victim.

"Your teeth are in pretty bad condition."
"They must be," sighed the patient. "You look so happy."—Judge.

He is half done who has made a good beginning.—Old Saying.
