OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY OF BANDON

LOOKING FORWARD.

At the beginning of the new year it is only natural that people should begin to speculate on the business outlook for that year and the causes, if any, why there should be a good year or a bad year as the case might be.

For Bandon and vicinity there never was a better prospect at the beginning of any year than we have this year, and there are many reasons why we think thus. If present plans hold up there will be at least five or six substantial new business blocks go up besides those already under way of construction.

The opening of First Street has been one of the greatest stimuli to the business interests of Bandon that has come to us in a long time, and the fact is being realized as plans are being laid for a large amount of building along the extension of the street. Besides this building extension there are several other projects under way that insure a good season of business this summer.

White House Tragedy and Gayety.
Between 1841 and 1844 the White House saw a greater mingling of tragedy and gayety than it ever did in any equal interval before or since. William Henry Harrison, Tyler's immediate predecessor, died when only a month in office, and Tyler served out the remainder of the term. Mrs. Letitia Tyler died a few months after her youngest daughter, Elizabeth, was married to William Waller of Virginia. This was on Sept. 10, 1842. In February, 1844, a great gun burst while exhibiting it on a trip down the Potomac in the midst of a brilliant company, among whom were Tyler, many members of congress and of the cabinet, and other distinguished guests. About forty persons were killed or injured. Among the killed were the father of Miss Gardiner, who soon afterward became Tyler's second wife. Although married while her husband was in the White House, the second Mrs. Tyler had her wedding at her home in New York, but she held her reception in the executive mansion. She became popular in Washington society and undoubtedly strengthened the social side of her husband's administration.—Charles M. Harvey in Leslie's.

Salt Germs.
"Salt, of all things, we deem germ proof; but, as a matter of fact, salt is one of the most germ ridden foods we eat."
The speaker, a physiologist, continued:
"You know gray salt, the 'gros sel' that gourmands eat with boiled beef? Well, that salt is made gray by the addition of mud, plain mud; hence it always contains from 6,000 to 75,000 bacterial colonies per gram. Refined salt, white salt, is almost as bad. It lies, you know, in the refinery under a blanket of clay, and its refining consists of a sea water bath, after which it is dried and heated to the point of crystallization. All this falls, of course, to remove from it its 2,000 or 3,000 bacterial colonies per gram that it imbibed from its clay blanket. The pure food people should look to our salt. This white, clean stuff is alive with germs. Yet it would be easy to refine it so as to make it germ free."—Exchange.
O'Brien—Come home an' have supper wid me, Murphy. Murphy (looking at his watch)—Shure, it's past 9 be the clock! Yer wife will be mad as the devil! O'Brien—Yis; that's jist it. But she can't lek the two av us.—Judge.

Newton's Shock.
The immortal discoverer of the law of the attraction of gravity was at one time beside himself. In his fiftieth year Newton suffered the severe shock from which he never fully recovered. A dog upset a lighted candle, and precious manuscripts embodying the results of many years' experiments in optics were destroyed. In consequence of this Newton's mind lost its balance. Brewster denies this, but about its truthfulness there is not much room for doubt. It is certain that for a considerable time his letters were quite incoherent, and to be accounted for upon no other hypothesis than that of a disordered mentality. Newton slowly recovered and lived to be eighty-three years old.

A Mistake.
"I didn't know you had malaria here!" said the visitor.
"We haven't," replied Farmer Corntassel.
"But I saw a man down the road with chills and fever."
"That wasn't malaria. What you saw was St Simlin shudderin' at the thought of what his wife was goin' to say to him when he got home."—Washington Star.

Pessimistic.
"In the long run it always pays to act decent," observed the sage.
"Oh, I don't know," replied the fool.
"The prodigal son is some hero, but you never hear a word about the brother who stayed home and did the chores and helped the old folks."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

No Room For It.
Her Partner—If you are tired of dancing, Mrs. Newrocks, we'll sit down and have a little tete-a-tete, shall we?
Mrs. Newrocks—Oh, dear me, no, thank you. After such a big supper I really couldn't eat another thing.—Boston Transcript.

Many Big Stars.
According to an English astronomer in South Africa, there are 300 stars 100 times as large as the sun, 6,000 ten times as large, and about 200,000 of nearly the same size.

Trees in Colombia.
The republic of Colombia requires lumbermen who take cedar and mahogany to plant young trees of the same species in the cut over spaces.
The best way to teach a virtue is to live it.—Frothingham.
