Discovers New Beauty in Sphinx Rock.

Editor Recorder:—For over 12 years I have had in my possession a large photograph of the Sphinx Rock and have seen hundreds of others; but until I obtained one of Photographer Hill's, which seemed to be one of the ordinary run of pictures in distinctness, I had never made this discovery; and then I did it only through the simplest accident while applying a solution of water color upon it that seemed to bring out all the outlines of the face in clear and distinct form.

Right there where I had often thought there ought to be an eye, appeared that very window of the soul, and while I thought it might be made by a freak mistake of my brush, on examination I found others to reveal the same. Then and there, I decided this seemingly unheard of nature marvel was not only the Sphinx of Bandon but the world's greatest natural wonder.

This, I decided in like manner. This Sphinx is the complete expression of exquisite feminine beauty; and while it is not in a desert but the most picturesque seaside spot on the coast, it will have many reasons for being popular.

The time is not far distant when the Sphinx of Bandon, like the Sphinx of Egypt, will be the attraction of the sightseeing world; for while we have seemed to be isolated from the outside world yet is there a world famed future in store for us that cannot be denied by any clear thinking individual.—Yours for Bandon, H. O. Nettleton.
