

You Start At Zero

We all start out in life from the Zero mark. It is uphill all the way. The higher we go the more we are looked up to. The man who attains success must take himself seriously, look to his own interests and conserve his strength, wealth and ability. Many people are depositing their money with this bank, paying by check, and furthering their own interests, thereby raising their marks high above zero in the gauge of life. Why don't you try it?

POLLUTED WATER.

Two Simple Tests by Which Its Impurity May Be Noted.

Every one knows and admits the necessity for pure water. When you are away from home and are not sure of the character of the water supply it would not be a bad idea to make a few simple tests. The results may prove that it was decidedly worth while to take the trouble, says the New York Sun. Here are two tests that you can make very easily:

Fill a tumbler with water, drop in a lump of white sugar, cover it with a saucer and let it stand overnight on the bricks at the side of the range, on the kitchen mantelpiece or, in fact, anywhere where the temperature will not sink below 60 degrees. If next morning the contents are clear the water is pure. If, on the other hand, the liquid is cloudy some source of contamination is indisputably proved.

The second test is to drop a few grains of permanganate of potash into a tumbler of water, cover and let it stand for an hour. If the water is still of the bright rosy color to which the chemical turned it, it is perfectly safe for drinking. If it is of a brownish color it is impure, although the impurity may be of the kind that boiling will rob of its power to harm.

Girl Bats Hole Digger.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va.—Miss Emma Boughner, a young girl, compelled a gang of workmen employed by the West Virginia Traction and Electric company to lose a half day's work when she jumped into a hole they had dug in order to erect a pole in front of her father's home. After waiting for several hours for the girl to leave the hole the foreman decided to place the pole at another place.

Japan's Troublesome Volcano.

Sakurajima is one of the volcanoes created, according to the old Japanese calendar, in a single night. A specific date—718 A. D.—has even been assigned for the event, but it is quite evident from its appearance that the cone is really a very ancient one. Sakurajima's form is rugged and weather beaten. Time has furrowed its sides, and the forces of denudation have perceptibly increased the steepness of the upper part of the cone by the removal of all the lighter ejected materials. This circumstance has given rise to the legend that the northern peak of the island—separated from the rest of the summit ridge by a slight depression—is inaccessible. As a matter of fact, it presents no serious difficulty.—London Graphic.

Darby and Joan.

The meaning of Darby and Joan is one of conjugal faithfulness and love, as exemplified by Darby and Joan—husband and wife—in an eighteenth century ballad, appearing in the Gentleman's Magazine, March, 1735, entitled "The Joys of Love Never Forget: a Song." Author Henry Woodfall had been apprenticed to John Darby of Bartholomew Close, England, and his employer and wife formed the hero and heroine of the song.

To The Boys of Bandon

Fully Explained.

"When and why did James G. Blaine get his sobriquet, the Plumed Knight?" asked the Boston Globe man, who needn't think everybody has forgotten that Blaine was a candidate for the Republican nomination for president in 1876 and that Colonel Robert G. Ingersoll in placing his name before the national convention launched the sobriquet thus: "Like an armed warrior, like a plumed knight, James G. Blaine marched down the halls of the American congress and threw his shining lance full and fair against the brazen forehead of every defamer of this country and maligner of its honor." (Business of looking wise and patting oneself on the chest.)—Manchester Union.

Woes of an Old Time Writer.

High among unconventional writers stands William Pryne, a London journalist in the days when there were no journals, days when a bulky pamphlet took the place of a letter to one's favorite newspaper. Pryne published about 200 of such pamphlets and is said to have averaged a sheet of print a day throughout his life. And he worked in a quilt cap coming over his eyes to shield them from the light, and stuck at his table all day, being served with a roll and a pot of beer every three hours. And he reaped the reward of his literary efforts in the branding and pillory and ear cropping that every political writer risked in that age.

Honesty in Golf.

The sooner a boy, or a man for that matter, learns to live up to the motto "Honesty is the best policy" in golf, as in other things, the better for him. There is no game which gives a competitor a better opportunity to cheat. But for that very reason there is no game in which the cheat, when discovered, as it usually is sooner or later, is looked upon with greater contempt.—Francis Quimet in St. Nicholas.

Complicated.

"You must stop worrying and take a holiday," said the suave practitioner. "My dear doctor," replied the irritable patient, "if I could get my affairs into a shape that would permit me to take a holiday I'd be so relieved that I wouldn't need one."—London Opinion.

Not Due Yet.

"Does your wife ever nag you?" asked the first walking gentleman. "No," answered the second. "We've only been married a year. She isn't nagging so far."—London Opinion.

Attorney G. T. Treadgold returned from Coquille this morning where he had been attending court.

Announcement.
