SWIFT FLYING STARS.

Vastness of the Universe Indicated by Their Long Travels.

The almost incredible distances of the heavenly bodies are well illustrated by Camille Flammarion's comments to the Societe Astronomique de France on the study by V. M. Slipher of the Lowell observatory on the speed of the nebula in Andromeda, which is 300 kilometers a second. Flammarion remarks that if this speed has been maintained since the days of Hipparchus, twenty centuries ago, the nebula has traveled in that time 19,000,000,000 kilometers. Hipparchus made a catalogue of the visible stars, and this nebula is not found in his list, although it can now be seen with the naked eye. Had it been as brilliant 2,000 years ago as it is today, Hipparchus, living under the clear sky of Alexandria, could not well have overlooked it.

"Must we then conclude," asks Flammarion, "that its twenty centuries of approach to us have been enough to increase its brilliancy? The parallax of the nebula is 0.17 second, which corresponds to a distance of 181,000,000,000 kilometers. It takes light nineteen years to travel that distance. So in 2,000 years its distance would have diminished by about one-tenth." But then, no one knows that it has maintained this terrific speed throughout the centuries. It may have moved more slowly or more rapidly at any time. All is conjecture except the actual figures for its present speed and distance.

The fact that bodies moving at such speeds are not seen to move brings home to us the vastness of the universe.—New York World.

Time Alone Would Tell.

Mrs. Ross had a daughter who was of the opinion that her voice was her fortune. The mother sent her to a well known vocal teacher for lessons and after a short time called on the teacher to ascertain his opinion.

"Do you think," she asked the professor, "that my daughter will ever become a noted singer?"

"I don't say," replied the professor, "but she will be the zone of a long-lived family."—National Monthly.

The Last Hole, Indeed.

The story is told of an ancient Scotch gaffer whose companion died and was about to be buried. The Scotchman struggled out to the cemetery to be present at the interment, and arriving there discovered where the grave was. He summoned a boy with a whistle.

"Whistle, lad," he said, "it's a new course. Whistle the hole!"—New York Post.
