Join a Circus, Perhaps. The story in the Record today from Eugene telling of the practical competition to Huxley is, in itself, not much, but when taken in conjunction with the building of the Willamette-Pacific from Eugene and the announcement of starting work on the Coos Bay bridge the first of the month, it indicates something thinking people will not allow to get away from them. The fact is the building of the road to Eureka means the Willamette-Pacific will go on down the coast, likely via Bandon, and Coos Bay will be on a water level railroad within a short time. That the Willamette-Pacific is going to come to Marshfield and stop is out of a reasonable deduction and that the Northwestern Pacific is to go no further than Eureka is equally hard to believe. The Southern Pacific is going to have a coast road and the jining of the Eureka and Coos Bay rails will bring it about.—Marshfield Record.

CHEESE FACTORY PRICES VS. CREAMERY PRICES.

Creamery prices for June:
1000 lbs 4 per cent milk, 40 lbs. butter fat at 24c$ 9.60
800 lbs. skimmed milk at 20c per cwt 1.60
..... $11.20

Cheese factory prices for June:
1000 lbs. milk; 10 lbs cheese to 100 lbs cheese; 100 lbs cheese at 14c$14.00
Mfg and freight, 3c 3.00
..... $11.00

1000 lbs. milk 4 per cent, 40 lbs. butter fat at 35c$14.00
Mfg. and freight 7 1/2c lb. 3.00
..... $11.00

To Whom This May Concern:
The article above has been circulated and needs correction. A 4 per cent milk will make eleven (11) lbs. of cheese to 100 pounds of milk. At 14 1/2c per lb net F. O. B. Bandon, which has been the least this factory has sold for. Two cents a lb. for manufacturing cheese leaves 12 1/2 cents a pound net due patrons. Eleven pounds at this rate would be $1.40 1/2 net for 100 lbs of 4 per cent milk. Creamery prices as above stated would be 24c plus 1000 and 1000 plus 1000 and you would be 96 cents, making a difference of 44 1/2c on 100 lbs. of milk in favor of cheese. Why is about one-half the value of skimmed milk, but we will leave that to those who feed it.

Hoping this will give light on the subject which some of our dairymen are looking for.

TAUGHT BY THE SWALLOWS.

How a Railway Tunnel Was Built Through a Sand Bank.

A colony of bank swallows taught a young but observing engineer how to build a tunnel that his more learned superiors had refused to undertake. North of Burlington, Vt., lies a broad sand plain high above the level of Lake Champlain, through which the Central railroad was to be carried by a tunnel. The sand, destitute of moisture, would not cohere, but crumbled away as soon as an excavation was made. After several costly trials the engineers decided that the tunnel was impracticable.

A young man in the engineer's office said he could tunnel the sand bank at a small cost. He said he could build the tunnel for so many dollars a running foot, but that he couldn't expect the railway people to act upon his opinion when so many American and European engineers had declared the project impracticable.

The managers, however, gave him a contract to build fifty feet of the tunnel. On the face of the sand bank he marked the line of an arch larger than the proposed tunnel and on this line drove sharpened timbers into the bank. Then he removed six feet of the sand and drove in another arch of twelve foot timbers, removing six feet more of sand. This process he repeated until he had space enough to begin the masonry. As fast as the masonry was completed the space above it was filled, leaving the timbers in place.

He pierced the bank with the cheapest tunnel ever built, which now stands as firm as on the day it was finished.

He was asked whether there was any suggestion of the structure adopted by him to be found in the books on engineering.

"No," he said, "it came to me in this way: I was driving by the place where the attempts were made and saw that a colony of swallows had made their homes in the bank. It occurred to me that these little engineers had disproved the assertion that the sand had no cohesion. As every swallow's home is a self sustaining tunnel without masonry, I thought that by extending their method I could construct a larger tunnel. The bank swallow is the inventor; I am simply his imitator."—Boston Post.
