DEER EAT OUT OF BOXES ON AUTOMOBILE

Albert Garfield and family returned Wednesday night from their automobile trip to Crater Lake and report a very pleasant time, and Albert is very enthusiastic over his new "Studebaker Six" and the way it performs. He says he made 779 miles on one gallon of cylinder oil and came from beyond Roseburg on six gallons of gasline.

The Garfield's camped along the road and one night had a very remarkable experience, while sleeping in their car. Some deer came up and ate their bread, potatoes, etc., out of a box on the running board of the car, and none of the party were awakened. Mr. Garfield says as near as he could tell by the tracks there must have been four deer, and that had he known it when they were eating their meal he could have reached out of the car and grabbed a deer by the horns.

H. F. Morrison and wife, who were with the Garfield's at Crater Lake, went on to Klamath Falls, where they will visit for a few days before they return home.

MORE MONEY FOR NEW HOTEL PROJECT.

J. C. Hammel received another telegram Tuesday night from J. D. Atkins, the architect, at Portland, stating that he had sold another $500 worth of stock in the new hotel. This makes $1000 of stock that Mr. Atkins has sold in Portland and brings the total up to over $12,000 with at least $1,500 more promised, so that it remains only to raise about $1000. Mr. and Mrs. Hammel will be in North Bend a few days looking after the interests of the new hotel there after which they will return to Bandon and the hotel proposition will be closed up.

CITY MEAT MARKET IS INSTALLING COOLING PLANT

Geo. Erdman is having some alterations made in his City Meat Market and will build a fine cooling plant similar to the one destroyed in the recent fire. He is also rearranging a number of other features in the market and is installing a modern sausage mill and other equipment that will make his market one of the most modern in Coos county.

The new warehouse building just west of the creamery is being rushed as rapidly as possible and will be occupied by the Central Warehouse Co., instead of the south end of the present warehouse, which is being remodeled for the Bandon Hardware Co., and will be occupied by them as soon as it is completed.

Used to Her Yells.

The story of the lad who cried "Wolf!" to fool his neighbors had a modern version the other night in an uptown apartment house. Miss H. began taking music lessons. Everybody heard her and got more or less used to it. But the other night Miss H. started to yell—as usual every one thought—and the neighbors went right on trying to pay no attention to it. As a matter of fact, Miss H. had found a burglar in her apartment, and he got away with Miss H.'s jewels just because every one did go right on paying no attention to her.—New York Tribune.

Hard Luck.

"I always have tough luck."
"What's the matter?"
"I paid Brown $5 that I borrowed from him several weeks ago."
"Where's the tough luck?"
"He said afterward that he'd forgotten all about it!"—Detroit Free Press.

Often the Case.

"It was a fair fight, wasn't it?"
"Sure it was. The under dog got whipped."
"Call that a fair fight?"
"Wait, now, let me explain. The under dog provoked it!"—St. Louis Republic.

One's Own Company.

One of the tests of character is the ability of a man to find satisfaction—without egotism—in his own society. One who cannot be alone without a miserable restlessness must be the victim of a structural defect in his personality. The well stored mind provides company enough for an occasional interval of solitude. He who has read well and thought much and carefully observed has introduced himself to a society which will afford him entertainment when none, in the flesh, is present. If a man is afraid to be alone it must be because he is afraid of his own thoughts or because his thoughts are few and scattered and cannot fill the vacuity. Some of us cannot afford to think, when, as the poet puts it, "but to think is to be full of sorrow." At such a time we watch eagerly at any diversion that puts to rest the shadows.—Philadelphia Ledger.

How He Learned English.

Wing See some years ago came to New York from San Francisco to see the big city before returning to his native land, where he hoped to live on the money which he had saved. He wanted to learn a little English and rented a room on the east side over a store. He was a quiet man of good habits and soon made himself useful in the store, where he gave his time in exchange for the language experience. After six months he was ready to go to China, and after all arrangements for his trip had been made he went to Chinatown to show his English. He was surprised to find that his English speaking countrymen did not understand him and finally learned to his horror that he had lived in a German district and had learned German by mistake.—New York Tribune.

Not Dead.

The big red toning car struck a pedestrian, rolling him in the mud and maltreating him in general. The owner ran back, greatly excited, after stopping his car.

"Is he dead?" he asked anxiously of the medical man who was attending the victim.

"Oh, no!" replied the doctor cheerfully. "He's not dead. He's merely 'an down.'"—Chicago News.

Too Much of It.

Greene—How does it happen that you can't trade at Clever's any more? You used to bring about the nice cuts of meat he always sent you. Is it because he wouldn't give you credit? Gray—On the contrary; it is because he did.—His Own Transcript.

Placing Homer.

"Who was Homer?"
"The great epic writer who wrote the Iliad and the Odyssey."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

SITKA, ALASKA, ENTERS THE DRY COLUMNS

Seattle, Wash.—Telegrams from Alaska bring the news that Sitka, formerly capital of the territory, has voted dry. Recently a saloon census was taken of Sitka and other Alaskan cities under the direction of United States Judge Robert W. Jennings. Under this census the question of license or no license was submitted to the voters and, while most of the towns voted wet, Sitka voted dry.
