PANAMA CANAL IS OPEN FOR TRAFFIC

Great Water Way Joining the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans is Now Ready for World's Traffic.

Washington, D. C.—With the passage through the Panama Canal Saturday of the War Department steamship Ancon, the great waterway becomes "free and open to the vessels of commerce and war of all nations on terms of entire equality," in accordance with the provisions of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty.

Vessels drawing not more than 30 feet of water may now make the passage. It would be possible to put the big American dreadnoughts through at any time.

Any of the foreign warships now in the Atlantic and Pacific waters could also make the trip, but the naval plans of the European powers which have vessels off both coasts of the United States are not known here.

Embarrassment will face the United States should one of the vessels of the belligerents seek passage. Strict rules are laid in the treaty for the perpetual neutralization of the canal and every detail will be under the direction of Governor Goethals and his staff.

Except in the case of absolute necessity, vessels of belligerents must make uninterrupted passage through the canal. They may not stop, refuel or embark or disembark troops in the Canal Zone and these provisions also apply to the terminal waters at both ends of the canal, within a limit of three miles.

Twenty-four hours is the limit of time a belligerent vessel can remain within the canal except in the cases of distress, and a vessel of war of one belligerent cannot depart within 24 hours from the departure of a vessel of war of another belligerent.

All of the plant establishments that are part of the canal are immune from attack or injury by any belligerent. Vigilant American pilots will see that no foreign vessels make observations of the canal defenses.

The principal work remaining to be done in completing the canal is the deepening and widening of the channel through Culebra cut as well as excavation operations at both approaches.

MARSHFIELD NEWS

From the Record: John D. Goss and wife left this afternoon for Curry county, going by way of Wagner, on the Smith-Powers logging railroad. From Wagner Mr. and Mrs. Goss will travel on horseback, going through the Eckley district and following trails into the Rogue River country. Mr. Goss is planning on being at Gold Beach on August 21 to handle some cases in the circuit court.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Catterlin, Mrs. Ida Conrad and Mr. and Mrs. D. Y. Stafford were among the Marshfield people who motored to Bandon Sunday for the Elk's ball game.

From the Times: A letter has been received here from F. P. Llewellyn at Sand Point, Idaho, telling of the possible drowning of Lester McDonald, recently employed as a driver on the Foote and Gorst & King auto lines. The letter was dated August 6th and relates the disappearance of Mr. McDonald five days previous.

Rev. Robert E. Browning has received intimation that the successor to the late Bishop Griswold, of the Missionary District of Kansas. The selection will be made at a conference to be held in Portland September 10, at which Rev. Browning will be in attendance. Bishop Griswold is a very able and much loved man.

Sentiment Against War Tax.

Washington, D. C.—Several Democratic leaders admitted this afternoon that there was but little sentiment in congress in favor of a war tax. It was stated that unless President Wilson sends a special message to congress on the subject it would be impossible to get a tax bill through. Opposition in the house against any such measure was strong. The representatives, it was said, feared the effect a stamp tax act would have on the political situation. It was announced at the White House that the president was undecided whether to send a war tax message to congress.

CARELESS PEOPLE CARRY CASH

It cost $1,000 sometimes for a skeptical person to learn that a bank is a safer depository for money than a hand bag. That is what it cost a lady recently to learn this bitter lesson. An enterprising burglar who was aware of her foolish distrust of banks watched his opportunity and the money was gone. The savings of almost a lifetime were lost merely because of the foolish car that the bank would break. Think of the millions and millions of dollars in banks every day and night and the loss by the breaking of a bank is not one in a hundred millions. Don't try to be your own banker. You may regret it.

FIRST NAT'L BANK

LUCILLE LOVE, NO. 9, AT THE GRAND TOMORROW NIGHT

After Lucille is abducted from the ocean liner on its arrival at San Francisco, she is hurried to Hugo Loubeque's house by his accomplice. Although Loubeque treats his pretty captive kindly, she is never left unguarded. Again the extreme prowess of Loubeque is impressed upon the unfortunate girl. His house, even, has been specially constructed to trap his victims and deceive the police. Ordinary appearing staircases sink into secret chambers at his wish. The side walls of rooms contract as it were with dungeons of the Inquisition, and even the floors of the rooms move upward and downward, from tory to story. Never had a successful outcome of her mission looked more hopeless. While Lucille is held incommunicado, Captain Clarkson of the liner and her friend, is not idle. He locates the house where the girl is held prisoner, and has it surrounded by detectives. In the meantime Loubeque becomes a victim of his own cleverness. He stumbles into a pitfall of his own making. One of the moving floors comes down upon him by accident and crushes him into unconsciousness. Before he has regained his senses Lucille is in his pocket and is again in possession of the papers. Fearing the consequences of her act she hides the papers in the baseboard of the wall. When Loubeque comes to, he misses the documents, and although the girl denies all knowledge of them, he knows that only she would take them. His plans are interrupted, however, by the arrival of Captain Clarkson and the police. Loubeque allows them to search every nook and corner of the house. The house was built for just such an emergency, and they do not find Lucille, although they are sure she is there.

Shortly afterwards Lucille communicates with the detectives. The officers of the law fight their way into the house, and a terrific battle with Loubeque's henchmen follows. Collapsible rooms close in and crush the fighters. Traps open and receive the unwary, and the floors of rooms move from one story to the other. In the midst of the fight a rope is dropped to Lucille, and she escaped to the roof. Loubeque is hot on her trail however. He disables or slays her rescuers, and the fight continues at a dizzy height over housetops. Lucille at last sees an opening. She climbs down a fire escape and Loubeque does not follow her. He has a better plan. Lucille finds her way into an office building and rejoices in her freedom. She starts down stairs and meets Loubeque coming up. "You are too much trouble here" comments Loubeque. "I will take you to my ranch in Mexico." The words juze Lucille. Her tongue cleaves to the roof of her mouth. Her usual poise and self-possession flee. Ordinarily she would have sought safety in flight. Now she seemed to sense the futility of such a move. Crest-fallen and supine, she follows the man of iron will down the stairs and into the street.

This picture will be shown at the Grand Theatre, Wednesday night, August 19. Six thousand feet of film. Admission 15c and 10c.
