

Permanently Located

The Fahy & Morrison building is now the permanent home of our complete furniture stock and incidental to our getting settled is the arrival of a complete line of

Heating Stoves and Ranges

The selection of this line of stoves is based on experience in handling these stoves and others for comparison and after a number of years of a thorough test we can heartily recommend them as having no equal, price, quality and lasting service considered.

The politician that can command the attention of the people in these wartime days certainly has the making of a great statesman.

Judging from the volume of advertising in this issue of The Recorder, Bandon merchants do not take a very pessimistic view of the business outlook.

News reports last Saturday told of warehouses in terminal cities congested with wheat because the war has stopped export trade, and in the same day's news an increase was reported in the price of flour. There is certainly something wrong with the system that allows such conditions to exist.

The announcement that Roseburg was made the distribution center for Sears-Roebuck catalogues for Oregon because of the fact that the company does the bulk of its business in this state in Coos and Curry counties, should interest local merchants. We believe that a considerable portion of this business could be secured by home merchants if they went after it. The parcel post opened a way for the country merchant to compete with the mail order house. Why not profit by it?

"LUCILLE LOVE" AT THE GRAND TOMORROW NIGHT

When Lucille escapes from Hugo Loubeque's Mexican ranch, where she was held a prisoner, she falls into a veritable hotbed of revolutionary activity. While hiding from a troop of rebel soldiers she overhears a plot against an American ranchman. Out of sympathy for her countrymen she hurries to them and tells them of the danger which threatens. Instantly the cowboys fly to meet the advancing soldiers. At the height of the fierce battle Lucille is grabbed from her horse by a Mexican and carried away to a strange hacienda. An instant after Lucille is locked in a prison room she looks out of a window and sees Hugo Loubeque approaching in an automobile, and with a sinking heart she realizes that it was through his activity that she is again in his power. In a spirit of hopeless desperation which lends her the strength of a man, the girl wields a heavy bottle in the air and strikes her Mexican guard senseless. In order to perfect her plan of escape, which she so suddenly conceived, she dresses herself in the Mexican's clothes. Once outside she jumps into Loubeque's automobile and dashes away. She is hotly pursued by a detachment of Federal cavalry, but outdistances them and arrives at the American military headquarters in safety. Now that she has thrown off Loubeque's power she thinks of the papers which she hid in the spy's house in San Francisco, and sets out to recover them. While enroute to San Francisco she is recognized by a confederate of Loubeque, who telegraphs Loubeque of the girl's movements. He is instructed to allow Lucille to go into the house un molested, but once she is inside to keep her a prisoner. Little suspecting that the spy knows her movements Lucille disguises herself and enters the house to get the papers. She finds the papers, but just a moment before she leaves, the room where she is hiding sinks to the cellar, and she finds herself trapped and Hugo Loubeque awaits her with sinister smile.

MYRTLE POINT NEWS

From the Enterprise:
Miss Kate Chatburn, teacher in the Twin Oaks district on the South Fork, who is attending the institute here this week, reports that on Saturday evening, August 15th, the school held an entertainment and basket social. About a hundred persons were present, $21.80 being realized from the sale of baskets. This money will be used either to purchase additional books for the school or to start a fund for the purchase of a piano for the school.

Commissioner G. J. Armstrong was in this section several days forepart of the week and Tuesday went out to Bridge to assist in the starting of the county rock crusher in that district. It is the aim to get all the new grading on Big Creek and Rock Creek rocked before the rainy weather sets in.

Richard Ramsey, an aged gentleman, who has resided in Myrtle Point some nine or ten years, died at his home in East Myrtle Point last Sunday morning, at the age of seventy-five years.

Mrs. Jenkins died at Myrtle Point Thursday, August 20, 1914, at the age of forty-two years and twenty-seven days.

The Snyder Brothers, living about three-quarters of a mile southeast of town on the Middle Fork road have constructed a large steam circle swing (a distinct style of merry-go-round) and erected it in the fir grove near their home. For the balance of the summer they have dedicated the grove as a sort of amusement park and picnic grounds.

A Modern Maud.

Come into the garden, Maud,
And wear your skirt with slit;
The birds don't mind the scarrows now;
But you will give them fits.—The.
