THE TREY HEARTS

This installment will be shown at the Grand Theatre next Thursday Evening, Nov. 12

Rose, waking from her drugged sleep on the hotel in Portland, is smuggled out of the hotel, driven from Portland to Gloucester, where she is conveyed aboard the fishing schooner that intercepted the "Sea Venture." The schooner immediately sets sail. When Judith comes aboard Rose is locked up in a stateroom.

Alan and Barcus, swimming to shore on Nauset Beach, stretch out panting and half exhausted and watch the "Sea Venture" burn into the waters edge and sink. A mile farther off shore Judith's schooner lies at anchor. Judith and five male confederates, all dressed as fishermen, pile into the dory, leaving Rose imprisoned in her stateroom, and row cautiously ashore to capture Alan and Barcus. When not far from the beach they burn a blue flare on the water. Judith, with a rifle in the bows, fires at the two men. They retreat down the beach and strike off inland. Beaching the dory Judith strikes off in pursuit.

Eventually throwing off the chase, Alan and Barcus squirm, unseen, up to the lip of the bluff, where they overlook the dory and its guard. As the latter, unconscious of danger, lights his pipe, Alan elbuds him down. Then Alan and Barcus steal the dory and make for the schooner. Judith and her companions return to learn of their loss. They fire upon the dory but without effect. Alan and Barcus take possession of the deserted vessel, and find Rose in the cabin.

Judith's party tramp several miles to the nearest lifesaving station, which they find deserted. Breaking into the boat house they bring out and launch the motor-driven life boat. In the cabin of the schooner Rose tells Alan of the manner in which she was brought aboard. On deck Barcus figets with impatience because of the delay. They take up the anchor and proceed to get under way. Judith and her party, in the stolen life boat, pursue. The schooner and the life boat round Monomoy Point. Day breaks and the fog closes in. Judith at length runs across the schooner in the fog. The life boat bumps into it forward and the five jump overboard. The life boat, abandoned, drifts down the side and sheers off. Alan jumps for the companion way where he has left his rifle, but slips and before he can recover he is seized by two of Judith's party. Two others grab Barcus. One man holds Rose a prisoner. At this juncture a high coastwise steamship, running through the fog at full tilt, runs down the schooner. Alan, Barcus, Rose, Judith and the 5 men, all in the stern, are thrown into the water. The steamship slips past and out of sight in the fog, then stops and lowers a life boat. Barcus and Rose comet o the surface together and the latter, aided by Barcus, swims to the abandoned motor-life-boat. He helps Rose into this. Alan coming to the surface observes Judith swimming at a little distance, but cannot tell whether she is Judith or Rose. He swims to her, offering her assistance. Judith tries to drown him by clutching his heart. He manages to break her hold. Barcus finds him, draws him to the side of the boat and helps him aboard. Alan recognising Rose is much relieved, but is horrified by the thought of Judith drowning. Barcus restrains him from making a fool attempt at a rescue—and starts the engine, steering the life boat away from the scene. Judith comes to the surface unconscious. The boat from the steamship eventually discovers and rescues her.

A temporary sidewalk has been constructed from First Street along the east side of Bandon Avenue and up the hill to the Tracy house, bridging the gap left by the walk which was burned in the fire last June.

With the continuance of good weather First Street will be open to traffic about Friday, as the paving on the south side of the street will be laid and hardened by that time if the construction work continues at the present rate. The use of team cars to haul the material from the concrete mixer is increasing each day results by about 50 per cent.

Capt. Robt. Johnson's building on First Street is being rushed and will be ready for occupancy soon after the first of the year. The frames for the concrete work are almost complete and work on the permanent walls will be started in a few days.

To attend the County convention of the Rebekah lodge at Myrtle Point this evening, 18 members of the local chapter were passengers on an upriver boat this morning. This number included the team which will put on a drill.

E. Lewin returned on the Elizabeth from San Francisco Sunday, where he had been purchasing stock and fixtures for the cigar factory he will open the latter part of the week. Arrangements for his shop rooms in his home on Oregon Avenue and Tenth Street are complete except for the chimney which is now being built.
