S. P. COMPANY BUYS ROAD INTO EUREKA

A deal is pending in California between the Southern Pacific and the Santa Fe railroads whereby the former takes over the interest of the latter in the new line from San Francisco to Eureka, thus gaining complete control of the road. Such is the sense of a report appearing in the Oregon Journal of November 12.

Purchase of this line by the Southern Pacific, controlling as it does the Willamette Pacific being built from Eugene to Coos Bay, goes far to confirm the report that the company is seeking a coast line from Portland to San Francisco and that work on the connecting link between Marshfield and Eureka, by way of Bandon will be undertaken in the near future. Through trains to the south from Portland to the Southern Pacific now run on slow schedule, because of the heavy grades along the line especially from Ashland over the Siskiyou Mountains. The operating expense has always been heavy on the inland route and at different times the company has made surveys of new routes, cutting down the grades. It was thought for awhile that the Natroncut-off, leaving the main line near Eugene, cutting across and running south along the east side of the Cascade Range would give a satisfactory grade.

What route the connecting road will take, if built, from Marshfield to Bandon is not known. Several surveys have been made by the engineers of the road but the findings in the reports to the Southern Pacific officials have not been made public.

FISHERMAN MEETS SUDDEN DEATH AT NORTH BEND

Eric Aho, a fisherman, who came here from Astoria, aged about 40 years, and who lived in a scow house near the stove mill, met sudden death yesterday and Gust Huhtala, a fisherman from the Umpqua river, had been visiting the man for several days.

This morning at three were in the house together. Aho said he was going to get a line to fix one of his nets. When he did not return after thirty minutes his companions went out to sticking out the entrance of a covered houseboat. The man's head was under water between two logs along side of the boat which was tied in the boathouse. He still had on his hat. It was first thought that he was drowned but it is believed that he had an attack of heart failure and fell so that his head went under water.

Chief Carter, of Marshfield was notified and with Coroner Wilson went to the place. The coroner took charge of the body. He was of the opinion that death was due to heart trouble. There will be no inquest.

Aho has no relatives here and had no property so far as is known. He was a native of Finland and it is not known whether he had any relatives there or not—Coos Bay Harbor.

With the South African veldt scenery true to life, with stalking, roaring lions; cunning, slinking leopards; huge unweildy elephants crashing through the forest glades, those who witness the big, new, stupendous, spectacular, Selig three reel production, "In Tune With the Wild," can readily imagine themselves to be actual participants in the story.

The pictures tell the story of a South African missionary, together with his wife and little daughter, who journey across the veldt. They are attacked by savage Kaffirs, who leave the missionary apparently dead, after which they burn the wagon and attempt to slay the entire party. Mr. Wayne, and her little daughter Edith are saved by a friendly tribe and turn to England.

The first animal scene in the picture is when little Edith and her companion, a tiny black boy, the son of a native chief, Wamba, are shown at play with a baby elephant. The little girl clambers over the elephant as though it were a Newfoundland dog, and they have great times together. The next jungle beasts in the picture are two huge, ravenous lionesses, which are disturbed when Robert Wayne staggers back to the wagon camp and finds it in ashes. A shot from his rifle dispurses the two ferocious beasts and they spring away. A scene which is almost unparalleled in moving pictures occurs in the second reel when Captain Jones, an English hunter, shoots and kills two lions. The lions are actually killed before the eyes of those who are looking at the picture. Another scene which is decidedly unprecedented is where the wild man of the jungle relieves the pain of a lion, which has wounded himself with a long, sharp thorn. The picture is filled with jungle beasts and thrilling incidents. At the Grand theatre Sunday, Nov. 22.

LOCAL BOY IS SERVING ON U. S. BOAT IN WAR ZONE

Reports that the Turkish forts at Smyrna fired on a launch from the United States cruiser Tennessee are of special interest to the friends of the local boy who is serving on that ship. The Marshfield Record says:

"Raphael Catterlin, a nephew of Frank Catterlin of this city, is a member of the Tennessee's 50-piece band and has been on the cruiser for the past three years. Young Catterlin is well known about Langlois and Bandon and has a number of friends in Marshfield. He spent a year or more at Langlois when the Catterlin family held the lease on the famous Star ranch. Raphael was a natural musician and enlisted with the navy band when on a visit to San Francisco. He is therefore in a position to explain all the matters in connection with the Smyrna attack on the Tennessee's launch and as he writes regularly to his uncle, Frank Catterlin, the true version of the matter will be known here within the next month, no doubt."

THANKSGIVING SERVICE.

Special music will be provided.

Acordial invitation is extended to the public.

Helping Hawley.

Probably that audacious citizen of Coos Bay who undertook a campaign for election to Congress against Representative Hawley realizes that there is plain truth in the old adage about certain kinds of individuals rushing in where angels fear to tread. Not that Mr. Hollister is a fool, for he isn't from all reports; only that he is somewhat bolder than the angels. Probably he got his money's worth on his investment, for he was to fame unknown before this election; but now he is entitled to the distinction of being the worst-beaten candidate for congress in a decade or more. Mr. Hawley's plurality is something over 20,000; larger than in any of his five campaigns.

The campaign against Mr. Hawley was well organized by Mr. Hollister. A lot of little papers were led through his effective persuasions to join the hue and cry against the incumbent Congressman. Together they made quite a noisy chorus, but the results show that there were only a few frogs in the pond.

It may be hoped that Mr. Hollister will try gain. The benefits to the country press will be considerable and there appears to be no better way to guarantee Mr. Hawley a runoff majority.—Portland Oregonian.

Ray Langlois and Mr. Hogan of this city were duck hunting near Langlois during the forepart of the week, and report lots of the birds in that vicinity, a few of which they brought home to prove their assertions.
