I was worried sick until he told me—

WHEN he was put to bed, I couldn't figure out how we were going to make ends meet. It takes almost every cent he earns to keep us going.

But the next day he said: "Don't worry, dear. It cost me so little that I forgot to tell you I'd taken out an AETNA ACCUMULATIVE DISABILITY POLICY."

Doctor says he's a pretty sick man, but will pull through all right. And that policy brings us $50 a week while he's too sick to go out—and $25 a week afterward while he can't attend to his work.

You can't imagine how relieved I am. With that money coming in regularly, we don't have to worry.

Milk Products at the San Francisco Fair

Exhibition Demonstrates Methods by which Product of American Cow is Given a World Wide Market

Humamity is to be benefited in divers ways by the Panama Pacific International Exposition, but in no way is the department of economics to receive more potent aid than in the solving of the milk problem. When it is realized that over sixty per cent of the nutriment of civilization is derived from which constitutes, with wheat, the greater part of the world's food product, the call for pure, sweet, clean milk and also that of its proper distribution involve a question whose answer will go far to solve many of the pretty problems at present vexing the philanthropists of the race.

There is a comprehensive answer to this question. It is evaporated milk. Now, possibly you, like many other folk not conversant with the subject will throw up hands in horror and exclaim, "What feed my child on boiled and sweetened and preserved milk? Never! Why I would not use it myself."

If you make such a remark you are acknowledging an ignorance that the efficient housewife would flout. A visit to the milk palace at the Panama Pacific International Exposition, an exhibit prepared with every thought for the instruction of the consumer, will teach you that evaporated milk is purer than bottled milk. In these days of crowded places, the demand for fresh milk is greater than the supply, and the cities stretch so far upon the country that in order to feed the multitudes, milk must be shipped fifty seventy-five or even hundred miles and kept over night sometimes. It has therefore become necessary to use a preservative such as formalin or an equivalent in order to keep it from turning.

The process of evaporation as demonstrated at the fair does away with all erroneous beliefs regarding canned milk. A condenser in working order shows you that nothing but the purest milk from tested cows is tested and weighed by sanitary and hygienic appliances, it is brought almost to the boiling point when it is turned into a vacuum cylinder where nearly every drop is evaporated. It is then cooled, put into cans, hermetically sealed, placed in a steam oven where it is sterilized. After it is labeled it is ready for the market and this without the infusion of one atom of extraneous matter and this done right before your eyes, not a move being made that you are not able to scrutinize. The practical householders who have visited the exhibit leave enthusiastic over the lesson they have learned and fully resolved to become better acquainted with evaporated milk.

The outlet channel of Lake Garrison, about a mile north of Port Orford was filled up by the heavy surf of last winter.

Wit of Beau Brummel.

Beau Brummel's popularity depended less upon his dress than upon his perfect self possession, his grace of bearing, his wit, his good looks and his good humor, according to Leon H. Vincent's "Dandies and Men of Letters." He was a handsome fellow, although the shape of his nose had been "modified" by the kick of a horse.

"His reputation for bright and caustic sayings was very great. The industrious biographer has collected all he could lay hands on, and there is life in them yet. Take, for example, this: Ryng, one of the dandies, was blessed with a remarkable head of hair which curled naturally. Brummel saw him one day in a gig with a French poodle by his side and saluted him with, 'Ah Byng, how do you do? a family vehicle, I see. And from that time on we are told, the well-haired dandy was known as 'Poodle Byng.'"

A Lesson in Natural History.

An indulgent grandfather was entertaining his grandchildren by turning the leaves of a book on animals. Coming to the kangaroo, he called their attention to its peculiarities and especially to its enormous tail. Passing on after awhile he thought he would try them to see how much they remembered of this talk about the kangaroo. He asked, "What animal has the biggest tail?" After a moment's thought one little girl spoke up. "I know, a snake; it's all tail." — Indianapolis News

THE MASTER KEY by JOHN FLEMING WILSON A Thrilling Story of Mystery and Romance!

"THE MASTER KEY"

CAST

Harry Wilkerson ..... Harry Carter
James Gallon ..... Wilbur Higby
Ruth Gallon ..... Ella Hall
John Dore ..... Robert Leonard
Story by John Fleming Wilson

The seventh episode of "The Master Key" surpasses the fast, furious action of the preceding episode. With the development of the love interest between Dore and Ruth continues while both are at the Manx hotel in San Francisco. A diversion is afforded by a trip to Cliff House and a shopping expedition, which bring Dore and Ruth closer together.

Ruth's protector, Dore, is soon made to realize that Wilkerson is not idle. In an attempt to circumvent the latest daring plot of the nefarious Dore, he is compelled to throw Wilkerson's tool a former second story man, from the roof of the Manx Hotel into the street many stories below, where the body narrowly misses striking passing pedestrians.

The tragic climax of the latest episode is calculated to astound the spectator, for it comes close upon the heels of Dore's lingering good-night to Ruth in the upper corridor of the hotel, upon which both their rooms open. Just when the spectator expects a charming ending to a busy day the action commences with all the startling features of a 42 centimeter shell plunging through one's breakfast table.

In following the death of Pell in the latest episode of "The Master Key" the roof of a San Francisco hotel was used. Neighboring skyscrapers were crowded with spectators when Dore (Robert Leonard) threw a highdiver especially engaged for the occasion, from the hotel roof. Nets were spread several stories below so that the highdiver experienced no danger in being cost toward the street. The chase over the hotel roof the fight and the share which Ruth Gallon (Ella Hall) took in the struggle, all were enthusiastically cheered by the office workers who viewed the struggle from skyscrapers overlooking the hotel roof.

It will be remembered that in Episode Six of "The Master Key," Sing Wah, the Chinese opium smuggler, escapes with Ruth from the cylindrical trap room and takes her down to the bay. When Dore and the police raid the opium den they are trapped by a Chinese woman, who drops them into the water underneath the den. They swim to a rowboat and pass through an underground canal into the bay where they come upon Sing Wah with Ruth. An exciting chase follows, ending in the rescue of Ruth.

Dore secures a room for Ruth in the same hotel where he is stopping in San Francisco, borrows some clothing for her pending a trip to the shopping district. In order to divert her mind from her experience Dore takes Ruth on a trip to Cliff House. The excursion including a dinner take the greater part of the evening and upon her return Ruth goes down the hall into her room.

Dore is inserting the key into the lock of his window when he hears Ruth scream. Rushing into her room he sees a figure crawling out on the fire escape. In their absence Wilkerson by bribes and threats of exposure has engaged Sam Pell, an ex-second story man and hotel worker, to make a further attempt to recover the deeds to the Master Key mine.

Pell by following Rose and Ruth, has learned their room number. He had about completed his night's work when Ruth and Dore returned and interrupted him. Dore fiercely pursued the second story worker across the roof of the hotel, cornering him behind the great chimneys. Ruth following closely after, witnesses the struggle between the two men.

Pell has about overcome Dore when another figure climbs the fire escape. It is Tom Kane, who has returned to San Francisco to report to Dore the distress among the miners of The Master Key workings. Tom immediately turns the tide of battle by drawing a gun on Pell. The slippery second-story man, however, eludes both Dore and Kane. Just as he reaches the edge of the roof Dore again catches him and throws him so heavily that the criminal falls over the roof to the street below and is killed.

Unnoticed by Dore, Kane or Ruth, Pell had skillfully thrown the deeds down the inner well of the hotel. Upon the arrival of hotel employees and the police Pell's body is searched, but no trace of the deeds is obtained. The police recognize Pell as an old criminal, and Dore's story is accepted without question, but the police detain him.

Tom accuses Ruth that things are "going along fine" at the mine, but secretly he admits to Dore that the men are out of work. Wilkerson's man, Tully, has discharged Kane. Dore realizes that something must be done to prevent Wilkerson from raising the property through his intrigues. Shown at the Grand Theater next Thursday, April 24th.
