HONEST, old man, I don't know what we would have done without that ÆTNA ACCUMULA-TIVE ACCIDENT POLICY.

When a fellow lives on the "no-workno-pay basis" and has nothing to fall back on, a cracked head and a broken arm don't get a cracked head and a broken arm don't get him anything. All he can do is sit around and wonder how the wife can scrape to-gether enough to keep the family going. He just naturally worries himself twice

But this Ætna Accident Policy takes the place of the payenvelope. Gives you $50 a week as long as you're totally disabled by your injuries and $25 a week even though you are only partially disabled by them. Pays the bill for a surgical

All you do is sit back and tell your broken head and arm: "All right, boys, take your time about healing. I'm pro-vided for until you're fit again."

A Merry Evening. The near sighted man watches his friend restore to a portly downger a ridiculous little bend bag that she had lropped as he sailed past their corner of the room. "I wish," he said plaintively, "that women would learn not to drop things. My wife got me into a ridiculous scrape the other night by not being able to hold on to her belong

"How was that?" his friend in prired "It was at the opera," continued Benedick, "and in the middle of the first act Carrie let her opera glasses slip off her lap. She asked me to get them. I looked down and thought I saw them under the seat in front of her. I grabbed them, but they didn't come at once, and there was a squeat from the woman in front. It was the heels of her two little slippers I had grabbed and nearly tipped her out of her seat. She got hysterics and leid to go out until she calmed down. Oh, I had a merry evening."

Shamed by the lautes that go down on

It's Unsafe to Laugh at Others. Dr. A. R. Taylor, a foremost western educator and for many years president of the Kansas State Normal school in Emporia, tells this story: "As I was walking downtown one day, just a few steps ahead of me was a time old gen tleman in silk but and broadcloth, who had a most absord poster pinned on his back contrasting oddly with his dignified bearing. Just then around the corner came a young fellow with an even more ridiculous poster pinned to his back. Being ignorant of his own decoration the youngster immediately began laughing at the older man.

"So I fell to moralizing," says Dr. Taylor, "deducing something like this: Could we but see ourselves as others see us, we would often change the theme of our discourse.' Then as I stepped into a butcher shop the proprietor called out to me: 'Good morning, Dr. Taylor. Why, what's this the hoys have been pinning on your back?"-Kansas City Star.

One For the Lawyer. The late Lord Grimtherpe drew up the will of Dent, the great London watchmaker. He had assisted Dent in designing "Big Ren" and had advanced him money to aid him in his scientific work. This was to be repaid by will, but the technical irregularity of his drafting led to litigation on Dent's death in 1853, when the facts came out in court. A little while afterward Lord disimfluores was examining a will known engineer who showed too much confidence in the witness box.

"I suppose," said the barrieter sarconticulty, "you can make everything," "his," was the restly; "there are two things I can't make. One is a clock; the other is a will "Landon Opinion. Read The Recorder

"UNDESIRABLE" SHIPPED.

Locked Up In Tool Box of an Outgoing Locomotive.

Springfield, Mo. - How ten fathers horsewhipped a man who had been accused of improper conduct at his boarding house and then shipped him out of town by locking him in the tool box of a locomotive, was told to the police chief here by a committee of citizens who had been summoned to police headquarters.

The affair occurred the night previous, and its victim, according to the report to the police, was Jerry Maione, an employee at the St. Louis and San Francisco (Frisco) railroad shops.

No trace of Malone could be found the next day, and Frisco officials were asked to open the tool box on every locomotive between here and Newburg. Mo., as it is believed he was sent to that town.

Queer Feathers.

Baron Kenyon, at one time lord chief justice of England, loved to hear himself talk, and his summings up were at times extraordinary examples of flamboyant speech. Here is a specimen taken from "Law and Laughter":

"Addressing a butler convicted of stealing his master's wine, Lord Kenyon once said: " 'Prisoner at the bar, you stand convicted on the most conclusive evidence of a crime of inexpressible atrocity-a crime that defiles the sacred springs of domestic confidence and is calculated to strike alarm into the breast of every Englishman who invests largely in the choice vintages of southern Europe. Like the serpent of old you have stung the hand of your protector. Fortunate in having a generous employer you might without dis undersigned Chris Rasm even with some of the luxuries of affluence, but, dead to every claim of natural affection and blind to your own real interest, you burst through all the restraints of religion and morality and have for many years been feathering your nest with your master's bottles." "

The Ruling Passion.

Two worthy Scots, followers of the royal and ancient game of golf, were in the habit of daily playing together. In the course of time one lost his wife, and on hearing the sad news his friend of the links paid on the following morning a call to express his sincere sympathy. Condolence having been declared, second nature manifested itself. "You'll no' be gowfin' the day?"

There was a pause ere the answer "Weel, I'll fist tak' ma cleek an' we'll play vin or two holes. Anyway, she deed yesterday"
