

PORT ORFORD REPORT.

(From Port Orford Tribune.)

A large wild cat was seen in the edge of town last Thursday. E. L. White put his dogs on its track and soon had it up a tree.

Lorin Forty went to Marshfield last week after L. Knapp's Ford auto. Lorin has been practicing as a chauffeur and will drive the car when it is put upon the mail route which will be as soon as the mountain is smoothed up some by the road crew.

Port Orford now has two barber shops. R. W. Buffum having opened up quarters in the McKeenzie and Poole building. He is an old hand at the business and will no doubt receive a fair patronage.

H. C. Darling arrived in town Sunday from Klamath Falls and has joined his family on the W. R. Hurst place on Elk river. Mrs. Darling preceded her husband here by about six weeks while the boys, Corliss and James, have been in this section for the past year. Mr. Darling has leased the Hurst place for three years.

A. S. Johnston's driving horse became foundered in rather a mysterious manner last week. He had not been using the animal himself and it looked as though someone had used it without permission and then given grain or water when too warm.

E. A. Bailey and family are due to leave Ashland tomorrow on their return to Curry county. For the past year they have been living at Portland and Ashland and are now on their way back to their old home at Gold Beach more satisfied than ever with the opportunities, cool sea breezes and congenial surroundings of life in Curry.

Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Lamson who have been conducting the Breakers hotel at Gold Beach have turned the management of the hotel over to its owner, A. H. Gauntlett, and have gone to Brookings where Mr. Lamson will have charge of the new hotel soon to be opened at that place.

Mrs. Lamson are par-excellence, and in the Breakers, built up one of the most popular stopping places along the coast.

An Austrian colony near Langlois is one of the possibilities that may add considerably to the population of Northern Curry in the near future. An advance agent from that country has been in this section recently and considering an offer made to him by E. B. Sypher involving 300 acres of the old Walker ranch.

"Sacramental Purposes" It is now discovered with great apparent surprise that the prohibition law that goes into effect the first of the year contains a provision that any one having liquor shipped in must make affidavit that the booze, whether whisky, beer or wine is to be used for "sacramental purposes".

Husband to Pay For Wife's Work For the first time in the history of the Huber law, commonly known as the commitment law, the services of a wife have been paid for by her husband at so much per week, the money to be paid to the county treasurer.

Mrs. Nellie Olson, wife of a prosperous farmer near Oxfordville, was sentenced to four months in the Rock county jail for stealing two garments from a store in Janesville the total value of which was $6.

She was given a four month's sentence to the county jail where her husband signed a contract for her services at $4.75 a week for the next three months, a fourth of the time of her service being given off for good behavior. This is her first offense so far as is known.—Burlington, Wis., Standard Democrat

Old Zeb White He Tells How His Career Was Cut Short By M. QUAD Copyright, 1915, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

"That was a time in my life when I thought I owned this hull stat of Tennessee and was the biggest man in it," said old Zeb White as he was in a story telling mood one evening.

"The girl is the present Mrs. White. I take it?" I said as he waited to fill his pipe anew. "Just so, sah," he answered, "and she had no' hoss sense in her leetle finger than I had in my hull body."

"Zeb, that's gwine to be a circus down at Spottsville tomorrow, and I reckon I'd like to go. Will yo' promise to behave yo'rself?"

"Nothin', I hope, but bein' he's bigger'n yo' are I didn't know but yo'd git mad and tackle him. Don't do it, Zeb. Don't do it, fur my sake!"

"If she hadn't spoken as she did I'd never thought of tacklin' the critter," said Zeb as he softly rubbed his knee, "but them words sorter stirred me up, and I begun to git mad. We didn't say nothin' no' till we got to town, though I was doin' a heap o' thinkin'."

CZAR REED'S EARLY DAYS. His Life in the Navy and His Tribute to Its Officers.

It is not generally known that Thomas Brackett Reed served in the United States navy, but he told in a speech his own story of his naval experience, and his photograph as a young man in naval costume taken in 1864 is one of the priceless relics of the family.

"The navy means to me far different things from what it does to many here. To the distinguished admiral (Steedman) who sits beside me and to the distinguished admiral (Jenkins) who sits opposite it means the shriek of shot and shell, the horrors of the blockade. To me it meant no roaring wind, no shriek of shot and shell, but level water and the most delightful time of my life, for I was on a gunboat on the Mississippi river after the valor and courage of you gentlemen had driven the enemy off."

"I asked the old man a question intended to draw him out, and after a bit he continued: "Vaal, when I was a young man I hadn't no sense in my head. I jest reckoned that the critter who could wrestle and jump and light and yell was a smarter man than the governor. When I was twenty-three years old that wasn't nuthin' human in this yere Cumberland mount'n in which could stand up to me. One day I fell in love, but that didn't settle me down any. Mebbe I was even wuss arter that. I wanted to show off to the gal, yo' know, and so I continered my mad career."

"The girl is the present Mrs. White. I take it?" I said as he waited to fill his pipe anew. "Just so, sah," he answered, "and she had no' hoss sense in her leetle finger than I had in my hull body."

"I was a delightful life—thirteen hundred dollars a year and one ration and nothing to do. My sad heart hath often panted for it since. However, I learned that my country could support me, and I am bound to say it has faithfully done so ever since. What a charming life that was, that dear old life in the navy! I knew all the regulations, and the rest of them didn't. I had all my rights and most of theirs."

"Do you wonder that I stand up for the navy? I want it increased, and I have solid reason for it. It means something to me. "Mr. Commander and companions, I have made this speech to you in the lightest vein because I have no right to use any other. The brave faces that I see before me have been bared to the shock of battle and storm. You have seen on a hundred battlefields the living and the dead. It would be a shame for me to talk seriously of service to men like you. This button, insignia of the order, you wear because you honor it. I wear it because it honors me."—National Magazine.

When Silence is Deadly. Silence is commonly the slow poison used by those who mean to murder love. There is nothing violent about it. No shock is given. Hope is not abruptly strangled, but merely dreams of evil and fights with gradually stifling shadows.

London's Shortest Street. The shortest street in Great Britain is Mansion House street, E. C., which has but one address in it and whose length is but a very few yards. Short as it is, however, it has won worldwide fame as being the very busiest street in these islands—say, one may truthfully say, in all the world—for vehicles pass through it at the rate of some 2,000 an hour for twelve hours at a stretch day after day.—London Express.

Easy. Reason and Experience had a dispute as to which of them is the more necessary. "No matter what situation arises, it is only necessary to bring me to bear upon it," said Reason, "and the solution is bound to come."

You Might Like to Try It. To multiply fifteen by itself and the result (225) by itself, and so on until fifteen products have been multiplied by themselves in turn, would take a person writing three figures a minute, and, working ten hours a day for 300 days in each year, twenty-eight years to accomplish.—London Globe.

Speed an Essential. Rankin—Hennibrough has bought himself a $5,000 racing car. Phyt—but he couldn't afford one worth half that. Rankin—That's why he bought it. He wants something that can go fast enough to keep away from the collectors.—Puck.

An Example. "People of this quiet, cold blooded disposition don't get into rows." "I don't know about that. Nothing could be more phlegmatic than the oyster, and he's continually getting into broils and stews."—Baltimore American.

Imitation. "Why, Gladys, you are spoiling your dolly." "No account; I am pointing the checks with the same color that you use."—Echelon.

Keep The Kidney's Well. Health is Worth Saving and Some Bandon People Know How to Save It. Many Bandon people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know those organs need help.

The following statement leaves no ground for doubt. J. M. Jones, 1054 Conklin Ave., Grant's Pass, Ore., says "I suffered for quite a while from symptoms of kidney trouble. I tried several different remedies but I was not helped until I used Doan's Kidney Pills. They greatly relieved me. The action of my kidneys was regulated and the aches, pains and lameness left me. Since then my health has been fine."
