PORT ORFORD REPORT.

(From Port Orford Tribune.)

The last pile was driven in the new wharf Saturday, and the teamsters commenced hauling ties on it today. It will be several days yet before the structure is entirely completed.

Work is being rushed this week on the big Agate Carnival platform so that it will be in readiness for the dance Saturday night. It will be the biggest pavilion ever built in Curry county—74x118 feet, and covered by a big circus tent. It promises to be well initiated Saturday night, as it is reported that many will attend the dance from Langlois and Bandon.

M. D. Sherrard passed through town yesterday from Bandon on his way to Corbin after Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Baker, who will return with him today. Mr. Sherrard was driving a Dodge, which he says is the "best ever" in the automobile line.

Al Garfield the Bandon agent, delivered a 5 passenger Studebaker auto to F. C. Hawkins last week, and Mr. and Mrs. Hawkins are seen in town most every day enjoying its pleasures. They contemplate making a tour into California a little later in the season.

Considerable trouble has been had with the tractor, which is hauling gravel from Elk river to the Long Bridge fill, during the past week. Last Saturday it was necessary to send to Langlois for O. P. Hansgensen to repair the machine, but more or less trouble is being experienced with it all the time.

Dr. Wetherbee, who has the finest herd of dairy cows in this part of the State, and, who by the way is a polished speaker, took occasion to remark, that, reports to the contrary notwithstanding, the exhibit at the Panama fair from Coos-Curry counties is excellent, and that when one is viewing it he is proud to say that he is from one of these two counties.

Newton and Ed. Divelbiss were in town from their Sixes home last Monday. They report that P. C. Kettle manager, and several of the prominent stockholders of the Sixes River Mining Company have just been on the river looking over their property, and they were so well pleased with the way it prospected they will resume work later on and develop the mine.

Editor McDaniels, of the Coos Bay Harbor, and family, passed through Port Orford yesterday enroute to San Francisco to see the fair. They were traveling in their Ford auto with fishing tackle and camp equipment prepared to thoroughly enjoy themselves while on the road. They started to go via the old Coos Bay wagon road to Roseburg but found the roads so bad that they gave it up and returned to the coast route. Brother McDaniels who is a rustler and gets out one of the best weekly papers on the coast, does not like to give up anything that he undertakes to accomplish and as he started for Roseburg he did not like to turn back but after chancing out of Brewster Valley to within a few miles of the summit of the mountain, and after he had helped the Ford out of more than one mud hole he finally came to a buckboard drawn by a team of horses, mired down, and this was the turning point that sent him down the coast road. So far, he expressed himself as agreeably surprised with the condition of our roads.

The Harlocker road case was disposed of at Coquille Wednesday. This concerns a right of way through land belonging to Tom Mehl. The board offered Mehl $200 for this right of way which is at the rate of $1000 per acre but the latter claimed the cut through it damaged his farm and asked for farther damages which request was refused.

Como Bluff, Wyoming, is classic ground to those interested in the fossil remains of animals that inhabited this region long ages ago, for it was here that the first dinosaur bones were discovered in the Rocky Mountain region. Some of the dinosaurs were the largest land animals that ever walked the earth and some were very diminutive. They differed greatly in size, shape, structure, and habits. Some were plant eaters; others with small weak fore limbs walked entirely upon the strongly developed hind legs. Some had reptile-like feet; others were bird footed. Some had toes provided with long sharp claws, others had flattened, hoof-like nails. There were dinosaurs with small heads and others with large heads. Some were large and cumbersome; others were small and graceful and so much resembled birds in their structure that only the skilled anatomist can distinguish their remains. Some of the dinosaurs were clad in coats of long armor, which gave them a most lizarre appearance.

The largest herbivorous or plant-eating dinosaur whose fossil remains have been in Como Bluff was the huge Brontosaurus, or thunder lizard, as it was called by Prof. Marsh. It was 70 feet long, stood 16 feet high at the hips, and had a long tail, an equally long neck, and a head that was only a little larger than that of a horse. The weight of such a creature has been variously estimated at 18 to 20 tons. This animal doubtless lived on the luxuriant tropical vegetation, but how its enormous bulk could be sustained by such food as could pass through its ridiculously small mouth has caused much wonder. It is not certain whether the name thunder lizard was given to it because of its size or because of the large sum, over $10,000 which Prof. Marsh spent in excavating and preparing it.

Some dinosaurs that are even larger than the brontosaurus have been found more recently. A Diplodocus now in the Carnegie Museum in Pittsburgh had the enormous length of 84 1/2 feet.

At the time these animals flourished the Rocky mountain country was a low, nearly level country, covered with tropical vegetation, with many wide, shallow streams and swampy areas, thus furnishing a congenial place for these sluggish swamp-inhabiting creatures to wade lazily about or float in the water, for it has been deemed improbable that the enormous bulk of some of them could be sustained without lateral support such as would be obtained in water.

The Department of Agriculture has just issued a bulletin (No 125) upon "Zydenas or Death Camas" This bulletin will doubtless be of interest to those who have recently suffered losses due to the poisoning of their stock caused by the eating of this plant.

According to this publication, the death camas is found throughout the United States, and as far north as Alaska; but it is most abundant from the Rocky Mountains west to the Pacific Ocean. The plant may grow as much or less scattered individuals, but it is sometimes massed together in large areas. In appearance it is grass-like, growing from a rootstock or bulb which looks like an onion; while the flowers are greenish white or yellow and somewhat resemble mignonette. In the Northwest the plant is known by numerous common names, such as lobelia, soap plant, alkali grass, water lily, wild onion, hog's potato, squirrel food, poison sego, etc.

Numerous experiments have been made to discover a remedy for poisoning of sheep caused by eating this plant, but no satisfactory or practical medical remedy has been found. To prevent losses, it is important to recognize the plant and avoid camping stock on it at any time, or grazing upon it when the animals are hungry. If the animals become sick, they should be kept quiet and under this treatment many will recover.
