NATIONAL FOREST ELIMINATION

According to an announcement made by the Forest Service, President Wilson today signed an Executive Order, making an elimination of 143,686 acres, a small part of which patented or private land, from the Paulina and Fremont National Forests in central Oregon.

The area eliminated from the Fremont Forest, comprising 30,014 acres, a small part of which is patented land lies south of the town Silver Lake itself, in T 28 and 29 S, R 14, 15 and 16 E. The lands are rolling and rocky, and covered with a scattered stand of juniper a tree of little timber value. The lands comprising the Paulina elimination, 113,672 acres in extent, a small part of which is private land, lie east of the Walker Range of mountains and mostly between the range and the Bend Silver Lake stage road, and are more particularly described as including portions of T 26 S, R 9, 10, 11, and 12 E; T 27 S, R 9, 10, 11 and 12 E; T 28 S, R 10 and 11 E; and a small patch in T 28 S, R 12 and 13 E. These lands are covered with a scrubby stand of lodgepole pine, which is not of much value of timber.

The lands included in this elimination are reported to be of low agricultural value, as well as of low timber value. The soil is pumice formation in fact, this tract lies in one of the largest pumice areas in the world. There are numerous isolated bodies of good yellow pine timber upon the area but these have not been included in the elimination. The private lands adjoining the eliminated tracts are covered with some splendid stands of timber, all taken up years ago under the Timber and Stone Act, and now owned by the big timber companies. The elevation of the eliminated area runs from 4500 feet upward. Frosts occur throughout the year, and the summer temperature ranges from 95 degrees in the middle of the day to 30 degrees at night.

The elimination of these areas was made because of the low timber value of the lands, and not because of any agricultural value. The lands remaining in the Paulina Forest will be added to the Deschutes and Fremont National Forests and will be administered from Bend and Lakeview respectively.

REPORT ON SPRING PLANTING

The District Forester at Portland, Oregon, announces that a report has just been received from the local National Forest officer, upon the spring planting on Mt. Hebo in Western Oregon, where, upon approximately one thousand acres according to the report, the results have been unusually good.

It is an established policy of the Forest Service to reforest by planting small trees or by sowing seed, several thousand acres of denuded land within the National Forests every spring, and the present season's work has been in accordance with this plan. While Douglas fir was the species most largely used in the Mt. Hebo planting, other species also were planted. The weather conditions thus far have been so favorable that less than 10 per cent of the trees have failed to grow. If the trees continue to do as well throughout this their first season, the results will mean exceptionally successful planting for the spring of 1915.

PORT ORFORD REPORT

The Port Orford Tribune is fortunate in its contributors. F. B. Tichenor and J. H. Upton are furnishing some "good stuff" to its columns.

(From Port Orford Tribune.)

A. J. Marsh returned Friday from a visit to Coos bay. While on the bay Mr. Marsh visited the owners of the seining grounds at Agate beach, and received from them a statement in writing giving the carnival committee full control of the grounds and the roads leading to them during carnival time. This puts the executive committee in a position to handle every question that may arise and gives them power to keep the carnival from being a wide open affair.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Kronenberg and son Jack of Bandon, passed down the coast the latter part of last week enroute to Sausalito, Cal. They were accompanied as far as Gold Beach by Babe and Vida Averill who expect to spend the summer at the Moss Averill home at that place. They traveled in a Haynes auto. Master Jack was at home at the wheel and thereby hangs a rather unusual tale, that of a young man who would rather run a jitney than run a bank. Mr. Kronenberg is one of the stockholders and directors of the Bank of Bandon and Jack who is about 15 years of age was put into the bank this spring to learn the business. But he yearned for the outdoors and the buzz of the auto and after working a short time he resigned to accept a position as driver on one of the Fords out of Bandon on the Port Orford run. Machinery, rather than figures appealed to him and he was rated as one of the best drivers on the road and one who always kept his car in first class condition.

The U. S. torpedo boat-destroyer Whipple dropped into Port Orford harbor Sunday afternoon and has been lying here since, seeking shelter from the heavy northwester that has been blowing.

The boat has been attracting much attention here and many of her crew taking advantage of shore leave have given a lively and picturesque look to our town.

Brookings has closed down. This means that this new town in southern Curry, which contained several hundred people and which was one of the liveliest towns along the coast will live in little more than memory until such times as business is revived again. The town is entirely dependent upon the operations of the Brookings Box and Lumber Mill and when this company closes the door of its mill one of the largest along the coast, it means that most of the inhabitants of the place must go elsewhere for sustenance.

The shut down at the present time is due to the dullness of the lumber market and it is reported that the company has announced that they will continue with some of their development work and that as soon as conditions justify will start the mill up again.

Started about two years ago Brookings developed rapidly into a thriving town, and only recently fine school and hotel buildings were completed. A local bank has been doing a good business. The big mill with a capacity of 250,000 feet is equipped with the most modern machinery that can be had and its resawing department is said to be one of the most complete in existence. Six or eight miles of substantial standard gauge railroad has been built, and at this time the company was engaged in building a steel bridge across the Chetco river that many believe will eventually be used in the Southern Pacific coast line.

Brookings has been a great help to the farmers of Southern Curry, giving them a market for everything they raised. There has been nothing of a wild-cat order in the building of the town and when the lumber industry is revived it will come into its own and the forty thousand acres of timber land that the company owns in the southern part of Curry county will make of it a lively place for many years to come.

A county warrant issued in 1903 was cashed by the county treasurer this week. The warrant was issued to Mrs. George Marshall of Empire and was cashed by Wm. Betts. In some way it got into one of the drawers of his wife's sewing machine and when she died recently the machine was overhauled and the warrant found.

GOLD BEACH GOSSIP

(From the Gold Beach Globe)

C. H. Pettinger who some two weeks ago received a broken leg while working on the new trail around the Devil's stairs, was brought to Gold Beach a few days ago where he can be handy to medical treatment should it be required. He is getting along finely.

There will be something doing here at the August term of the circuit court by the way the calendar is being filled up with cases appertaining to or arranging fishing rights along the river. Saturday a case was filed by the Wedderburn Trading Company against B. A. Seaborg and eighty fishermen for interfering with the former's seining grounds and privileges. At this rate the circuit court will not adjourn in four and a half hours as it did at the April term.

The Agness people are planning on giving a watermelon carnival at that place about the first week in September. A greater acreage has been planted to melons in that vicinity than ever before and a banner crop is expected.

To satisfy some doubting Rufuses in this place as to the correctness of his diagnosis in the small pox case, Dr. Robbins was called in to either sustain Dr. Dunlap or those who were disappointed with his diagnosis. The latter was sustained. The case however is in a mild form and all precautions are being used to keep the disease from spreading.

Many curiosity seekers went up to the Alder fishing grounds Sunday evening to witness what they expected to be a clash between the different fishermen and seining crew. In this, however, they were disappointed as few if any ill words passed between the two crews of men. The sein arrived at the grounds shortly after six o'clock to make a haul. About the time the seine arrived at the grounds several of the drift nets changed their usual methods of waiting until dark, layed out ahead of the seine. The seine proceeded to lay out around the nets and three drift nets pulled over the seine and layed out within the bite and were likewise pulled ashore with the rest. It is needless to say that the drift nets got all the salmon. Mr. Macleay who was present, told them that it was little short of larceny. To the credit of the local boys who are fishing for the Seaborg cannery many of whom were present, there was only one concerned in the above mentioned trouble, all the rest being outside fishermen. Just what legal steps will be taken to prevent the recurrence of such acts have not been made public but such work can not and will not be tolerated longer by the Macleay interests.

The Globe was misinformed last week in stating that Chas. Smith of Harbor had enjoined the county from further work on the Chetco bridge. Instead of an injunction being filed a mandamus proceeding was commenced against W. A. Woods, Delmar Cosgrove and E. B. Sypher as individuals to compel them to do their duty as county judge and commissioners, sitting as a county court in the matter of the survey and location of a county road from the Chetco bridge to G. J. Heiberger's place as petitioned for by Chas. Smith and others. The plaintiff claimed the court acted upon the petition in a way unauthorized by law and an order for a writ of mandamus was accordingly issued by Judge Coke to have the above named officers as individuals to show cause, if any, why the statutes in such cases were not complied with.
