When Did Man Begin to Live?

Man was created after all other living things on earth.

And he was given additional powers to Think, Reason and Act, so that he might become ruler of all things.

Motorists began to really live and become supreme beings when they were enabled to get the proper accessories, at the proper prices.

And to have their cars repaired by men who know how.

And those who have fully exercised their thinking and reasoning powers should conclude to continue to live by patronizing the Bandon Garage.

We carry the largest stock of TIRES and accessories in Bandon. And our prices are right.

We Must Wash

We may live without poetry, music and art;
 We may live without conscience, may love without heart;
 We may live, without lovers live, without hope;
 But civilized women cannot live without soap.
 We may live without books what is knowledge, but sorrow;
 We may live without beauty, it fades on the morrow;
 We may live without law suits, indictments are quashing;
 But, where is the one who can live without washing

A Story of Old Home Folks Told in a Captivating Manner by Bosworth Players

Reviewed by W. Stephen Bush

There can never be an over supply of such pictures as these. "It's no Laughing Matter" has an abundance of clean, kindly humor and a wealth of wholesome pathos. It is refreshingly free from the conventional b'gosh melo-drama though it is reminiscent of Denman Thompson and Richard Golden when those two artists were in the heyday of their careers.

Maelyn Arbuckle is a most infectious radiator of sunshine and laughter. In this play he is the village postmaster, the village poet and the central figure in a circle of admiring cronies. You don't have to travel very far on the Jersey side or up the river to find the types of this play as they gather in the general store swapping stories and watching the business of the post office, the latter being located in the rear of the general store. The village poet is a sort of inglorious Browning for he sees mostly the good of life and he is always ready with a laugh and a joke. Maelyn Arbuckle brings the sublime philosophy of Brown down to the comprehension of the simplest understanding and converts the lofty lofty teachings of Pippa Passes into the more current coinage of homely everyday wisdom and common sense. The direction of Lois Weber has never achieved a more creditable result; the proportion of fun and heart interest is an ideal one, the grouping and the acting of types is very clever work and the settings contribute to the charming atmosphere of reality.

While others may go in search of new melodramatic possibilities or rather improbabilities, Lois Weber has found a gold mine of screen material right at our very doors, where it has lain despised or ignored. The stage and the printed page have not neglected the rustic life and the rustic drama and we are glad that the screen has now followed this old lane and in following improved it.

The scenes of this play may have been taken from the village life of New England or from the Middle West or from any typically American part of the country. Page after page is unrolled of the "simply annals of the poor". We smile and laugh most of the time while we watch the picture but the touch of pathos is by no means wanting. No maiden is seduced, no "cheed" is carried through the snow-storm, no papers are secreted in the old mill, but on the contrary everything is real, genuine and true to nature in even the minutest detail. Instead of being hiesed off the stage or turned over to the grim minions of the law, sporting large tin stars, the villain is told that he ought to be ashamed of himself and take care of his wife and baby. Instead of gloating or defying the villain sensibly takes the advice of "Hiram Judd" and promises to behave, giving an immediate example of his reformation by holding and carrying the baby. Poor good old Hi has a passion for poetry, greatly to the disgust of his wife, who is inclined to scold and take a fiercely practical view of everything. Like poets, "Hi" is a poor business man; he loses the post office and is about to lose his home when a large sized check from a publisher saves the day. The publisher had seen good commercial value in the original literary style of "Hi" and was willing to buy his entire output and contract for more. A happy finale ends the story everybody gets into the picture and the villain still holds the baby. I cannot imagine any American audience which would fail to enjoy this feature from the first inch of film to the last. I consider Arbuckle's performance equal to his work in "The County Chairman." He had splendid support throughout. Altogether this is a picture which does belong on the Paramount Program

MOTORISTS SHOULD BE BETTER INFORMED ON LUBRICATION SAYS GOVERNMENT EXPERT.

"A consideration of the properties of cylinder oils, and an analysis of the conditions under which they lubricate, lead us to the belief that a large majority of the complaints about cylinder oils can be accounted for as due to ignorance regarding the principles governing their use." So says Lieutenant G. S. Bryan of the Naval Engineering Experiment Station, Annapolis, Maryland. Continuing his article in the Journal of the American Society of Naval Engineers for February, states:

"The three essential requirements of a good motor cylinder oil are: 1—It must lubricate the piston efficiently at the temperatures encountered in the cylinder. 2—It must give a good seal to the piston and rings, keeping them tight and preventing leakage of the oil and condensed gasoline past them. 3—It must burn without forming carbon deposits in the cylinder when an excess of the oil gets into the combustion space.

"We have seen that with the water boiling in the jackets the temperature of the inner surface of the cylinder walls is about 200 degrees F. The temperature of the layer of oil that is in immediate contact with the cylinder walls, which is the part that regulates the friction, cannot be much higher than this. I do not know of any motor oils that have a flash point lower than 325 degrees F. If the temperature of the cylinder walls gets up as high as this in a water cooled motor there is something radically wrong, and the remedy is not to get another oil of higher flash point, but to locate the trouble and remove it.

"It is an old theory that was never founded on solid facts that a high flash point is a necessity in a Motor oil or the oil will burn up without giving any lubrication. The point was overlooked that when we have a maximum temperature of the gases of the gases in the cylinder of 2,000 degrees F. and an average temperature of 950 degrees F., an oil with a flash point of 450 degrees F. will offer but little more resistance to burning than one would of 350 degrees F.

"Either oil will burn if kept for any length of time in contact with the hot gas, lubricating oil does not burn very easily or very fast however, and the time given for it to burn in a motor cylinder is very short.

Stock With Pedigrees

W. F. Slingsby and A. R. Davenport of Myrtle Point purchased from J. R. Wetherbee of the Star ranch in Curry county, a registered Holstein bull calf calf recently for which they paid $150. The price is not considered remarkable for this particular line of breeding.

When the dam of this calf was some over a year old she was purchased by Dr. Wetherbee at a pure bred sale in Portland for $480. This is her second calf. The first is kept on the Star ranch and can not be brought short of $500.

The pedigree of the Slingsby-Davenport calf is well marked with prominent marks and features of the breed. The dam last year when two years old made an A. R. O. record of over 15 lbs. fat. This year she brought out still more noticeable the character of her breeding and produced under official test 18.81 lbs. fat as a three year old.

It is of special interest to note that the grandsire of the calf on the Dam's side (Johanna Calantha 2nd's Sir Payne 45998) is a full brother to a cow, "Grace Payne 2nd Homestead" who produced the remarkable amount of 35.5 lbs. butter in seven days, A. R. O. Another remarkable feature of the breeding of this calf is the fact that every animal making up the pedigree for five generations back is either an A. R. O. cow or sire. Four near Dams on the Dam's side have records of over four hundred pounds in a year. Three of these records made at 2 years old. This grandsire on the sire's side of this calf is the sire of several high producing cows, one producing cows, one produced under official test 890 lbs. butter fat in 365 days. Going back still further in the breeding of this calf and we find that the great-great grandsire on the sire's side has 82 A. R. O. daughters and 51 A. R. O. sons. This bull is King Sign (36168) and all who are familiar with Holstein breeding know him to be one of the great foundation animals of the breed.

This is merely an example of co-operative breeding. Mr. Slingsby and Mr. Davenport put their heads together and decided that they could get an animal so use between them thus being able to get a better sire for use. These men are members of the Myrtle Point co-operative Cow Testing Association and have some good cows from which to build up a Holstein herd. However it is the intention to purchase the coming year a pure bred cow as a foundation for a future pure bred herd. These men are on the right track and certainly are to be congratulated upon their first step.

Mr. S. S. Reed another member of the Myrtle Point Cow Testing Association secured a bull which carried much of the blood of the old bull "Golden Glows Chief". Mr. Reed is fortunate in securing so good an animal and may expect good improvement from the use of this sire.
