PUT YOURSELF IN HIS PLACE

Suppose you, in less trying times, had occupied the center of the stage, and the plaudits of the multitude had become as the breath of life to you! Suppose you had been able to win cheers and applause merely by riding a hobby horse, or on the back of a locomotive, or on the back of a horse, or riding a tame horse in a park! Suppose you had come to be known as the world's greatest public speaker, with newspaper editors giving you a place for you every Monday morning on the first page, the public always awaiting your next sensational loop-the-loop with feverish interest! And then, suppose that a different scene had been set, with another and more serious actor in the center of the stage, playing a serious part in a struggle play, with the world as an audience, giving rapt and respectful attention and praise to the dignified and capable performance! Suppose you, as a dethroned monarch, were standing in the center of the stage, with the world as an audience, and the world's greatest public speaker as a gymnast, and you were asked what was wrong with the world? You would be apt to lose all sense of proportion, especially if your former admirers, who cheered the least little gyrations, now said that this more serious performance was more in keeping with the times? And if this new hero of the public scene, instead of being faithful to his task, and giving attention to your abuse, were never answering your questions, or referring to you indirectly, or being apt to indulge in a little abuse, becoming a little more of a time went on? What would you do?

AS GONE WRONG

WITH THE WORLD

As gone wrong with the world, just what it should be at its best? Just when its peoples have grown so wise? There seems to be more to civilization. Knowledge has traveled by leaps and bounds. Seats of learning in village and town. Why should there be world-wide unrest? Everything all in a whirl. A wise man wrote long ago, No doubt it was true of his times, Thirty men facing thirty men stood. Each man a citizen true and good. These men had nothing to quarrel about. But their Governors had fallen out. Such was the picture in his mind Of wars and how they grow. But is this true today?

Have not conditions greatly changed? Think you our Governors crave for war, Tell me what then are they fighting for? What have the kings of today to gain By bringing their young men death and pain? If they this world turmoil arranged, How will they make it pay? If not the Kings, who then? Think you the masses wish for war? Think you they love to forsake their homes, And strow the battle field with their bones? Can you believe that they love the strife? Of their dying comrades in the trench. They can gain nothing by this gore; They can not be the men. Some time ago we said, We of the western hemisphere, When all the old world plunged into strife And nations fought for their very life, When weak ones fell at the hand of strong— Surely their policies must be wrong. Many men thought, and were sincere, Europe was off her head. What of ourselves today, Are not our own clouds hanging low? And does our Governor wish for strife, Our people thirst to take human life? Lives there a man who dares to say I hope or president wish the fray? And yet today, we do not know, Can it be kept away? What has gone wrong with the world? Some one answer me quick and say, Who are the winners from all this woe, To whom do the spoils of battle go? If not to the heads of nations then, Tell me who are the guilty men, Show me the men who get the pay, They put things all in a whirl. Let Europe go just now, Plenty to think about at home. Turn to our trouble in Mexico, Brigands you tell me; what made them so? Do you mean to tell me what they like Is kill and plunder and starve and fight? What made them leave their homes to roam, Who started all this row? Tell me the cause, who can, That set their nation all a-flame, Splitting its people in roving band, Scattering famine throughout their land. What of the men who lead in this war, Is it their country they're fighting for, Or is it just their greed for gain? Answer me, man to man. And if we intervene, As it seems now we must surely do, Who are the men who will stand to win When brigand goes out and law comes in? Think you the people will reap reward

LOTS OF LAUGHS AT CHAUTAUQUA

S. Platt Jones, Humorist and Monologist, Coming.

Famous Humorist Can Make Any Audience Happy.

S. Platt Jones is the Chautauqua spark. He ignites the enthusiasm on the opening night that gives Chautauqua things in general a momentum that whirled at top speed until the last night, when the Hawaiians play and sing "Aloha" ("Farewell and Love to You"). Who is Jones? What is he? Tens of thousands of Chautauqua enthusiasts have heard him and hear him at every possible opportunity. They know what Jones is, but not one of them could describe him any more than they would attempt to describe Eddie Foy or Harry Lauder. He is just S. Platt Jones. That's enough. To say anything more about him would be "much too much."

If any thing's left by fire and sword, Or is it the money powers, think you, Are first upon the scene?

Back to Europe again, Back to their acres of death and strife.

Who is amassing the millions now, Is it the man with the bearded brow, Or the governor he's fighting for? Whose pockets are filled by awful war Where men are laying down their lives, Filling their homes with pain?

What is the answer then, Figure it out for yourselves, who can? Who is responsible for this strife, These widows, orphans, the loss of life? Is it a horrible accident, The world gone wrong and the nations rest? Answer my question, man to man, Have we discovered the man?

Everything all in a whirl, Pandemonium broken loose, All the world a-swing with a dreadful noise, No one is safe on the land or seas, Anarchy rampant on every hand, Figure a cure for this plague, who can? Figure I say, but what's the use, Money is ruling the world. J. A. REESE

BEAN CONFIDENT PORTS WILL WIN

Two Measures Are Drafted

Eugene Man, At Washington In Interests Of Oregon Ports, Says He Expects Ports To Get Share Of Proceeds From Land Grant Sale

Washington, June 1.—L. E. Bean of Eugene, Ore., who came recently to Washington to present the claims of the port districts of the Oregon coast to special consideration in framing the land grant bill, is sanguine that provision will be made to give them a share of the proceeds from the disposition of the timber and the lands.

He has urged that some of the port districts will be practically put out of business unless provision is made for them because of the large areas of grant lands lying within their borders. The ports have relied largely upon the assessment of these lands to make good their bond issues for river and harbor improvement.

So, he argues, if these lands are off the tax roll for an indefinite time the ports will be in a bad way. He figures that 300,000 acres, in round numbers of some of the best timbered and most valuable lands in the entire grant are included in the port districts of Siuslaw, Tillamook, Coos and Bandon.

At the request of Senator Chamberlain, Mr. Bean has drafted two amendments to be proposed to the land grant bill. They are alternative in character. One is based on the plan of giving 10 per cent of the proceeds of the grant to port districts, 35 per cent to the state for roads, and 20 per cent to the national government.

The other plan is worked out on the basis of diverting to the port districts a larger share of the proceeds from the counties in which the port districts lie, in proportion to the area of grant lands within such districts.

Working out figures in detail for both of these plans, he has found that the results are approximately the same so far as the ports are concerned. The sum that would be received by the port districts in either case would be about equal, and he therefore is indifferent as to what is adopted. On the basis of the assessment valuation of the land grant, about $22,000,000, the return to the ports would be approximately $1,500,000.

The figures prepared by Mr. Bean will be included as a part of the hearing granted to him by the subcommittee of the senate, and in printed form will thus become available to members of both houses of congress in consideration of the bill.

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, May 29.—With a great "osky wow wow" and a promise to be back on the campus promptly in September for fall training, the crack University of Oregon football team disbanded for the summer at the end of a banquet attended by 35 members of the squad. Under the rules of the new Pacific Coast Intercollegiate, the University of Oregon, University of Washington and O. A. C. may not begin fall training prior to September 12, and the University of California may not begin until its first semester has opened.

University of Oregon men face a hard schedule of seven games next fall, of which the last five are major games. The schedule follows: Willamette University at Salem, October 7; Multnomah A. A. Club at Eugene, October 14; University of California at Berkeley, October 21; University of Washington at Eugene, November 4; Washington State College at Portland, November 11; O. A. C. at Corvallis, November 25; Multnomah A. A. Club at Portland, Thanksgiving day.

Coach Bezdek loses only two players by graduation this year, Anson Cornell and James Cossman, but Lyle Rigbee, who has become a professional baseball player, and one or two others who may have to stay out next year to earn money, will also be lost. The yearly athletics shows a deficit of about $500, and the student body will owe from $700 to $900 at the beginning of the next semester. It owed $2500, however, in September, 1914. This year's slight deficit was caused by bad weather at the O. A. C. game and the cancellation of the game with Washington, otherwise there would have been a substantial profit.

LETTER WRITING WEEK SET FOR JUNE 12 TO 17

Everyone Urged To Participate In Scheme To Advertise Southwestern Oregon

Commercial bodies throughout the Coos and Curry counties are urging the people of their districts to take active part in the letter writing campaign that can not be closely estimated last week of June 12 to 17. The idea is to get every man, woman and child in Southwestern Oregon to write at least one letter during the week to some friend or relative in other parts of the country, telling of the wonderful resources and attractions of this part of the country.

During the winter just passed the Portland Chamber of Commerce staged an Oregon Letter Writing Week, thousands of letters being written to people throughout the world by citizens of the northern part of the state. The advertising value of this campaign cannot be loosely estimated, but it is known to have done much good.

In writing the letters, it is suggested that photographs and booklets be enclosed and the correspondence be supplied by sending copies of local papers to your friends.

One Bandon woman, with several friends and relatives in different parts of the country, has a novel scheme which she intends to carry out. In the past she has gathered a number of photos of points of interest in and around Bandon. To each of her correspondents she is going to send at least one of these pictures, along with a two or three page letter devoted entirely to a description of the photo.

The Tuxedo Hour by Walt Mason

Tuxedo's bully all the time; it makes the passing hours sublime, and by its soft and gracious curves it soothes the soul and rests the nerves, and fills my bosom, once again, with peace on earth, good will to men. But best I like it when I've fed this face of mine with jam and bread. When I have dined on Irish stew and beans and boiled potatoes, too, and pie and eggs and cheese and tripe, 'tis then I best enjoy my pipe. When from the table I withdraw, I grip my briar with my jaw, and fill it with Tuxedo mild—the pure Tuxedo undefiled—and smoke away in perfect bliss; no pleasure can compare with this. And in the curling smoke I see a world that seemeth good to me. A world that's debonair and gay, its woes and worries done away. The plans that seemed foredoomed to fail, the work that seemed of no avail, now seem the rosy glow of hope, and I endorse all sunny days. 'Tis thus in my Tuxedo hour; the world that seemed so dark and dour, is blooming like a spring, and I'm in mood to laugh and sing.
