"BRICK" POMEROY.

"Brick" Pomerooy has launched another Democrat upon the sea of journalism, this time the United States Democrat, published in New York City, the second and third numbers of which have been received at this office. If M. M. Pomerooy is not eccentric, not to say erratic, he is nothing. With more than an average share of ability and originality, he is yet haunted with the idea of the importance of his personality, and hence is prone to give to all of his important writings a species of personal identity in poor keeping with the spirit of modern impersonal journalism. The Chicago Times when Wilbur F. Storey is dead will proceed the same as before, upward and onward, and beyond the obituary announcement in its columns, the general reader need not be reminded that W. F. Storey ever lived. The same will be true when Medill of the Tribune, of the same city, passes away; and when Watterson of the Courier-Journal is no more. When the Knapps of the St. Louis Republican are dead and gone, that paper will go right along as if nothing had happened.

But, we welcome "Brick" Pomerooy back into the ranks of the great, progressive Democracy. He has been harloting among strange Gods for a few years past, having been struck aback of the reasoning line with the Greenback craze. The Democrat is a large, neat paper, and is afforded for $2 per year.

The libel suit of Blaine against the Indianapolis Sentinel is likely to turn out a boomerang. The Sentinel company are anxious for the case to be pushed, and the prosecution wavers. The Sentinel has seventy-five affidavits to prove its charges. It now transpires that a similar prosecution had been commenced against another paper and withdrawn, Blaine paying expenses. The story that he seduced the woman that became his wife (at the muzzle of a shotgun) is not a new one; and there are many circumstances connected with his marriage that lend color to the theory that all was not right. For instance, his biographer states that he made her acquaintance in Kentucky, and that thereafter they were married in Maine. But the most suspicious thing about the whole affair, is the mutilation just now of the tombstone which marks the last resting place of the first born. That would expose all, and Blaine is the man for the emergency.

The wages of the stitchers in the East Weymouth shoe factory were reduced below the living point, whereupon they threatened a strike. The bosses laid low for a while until a cargo of imported Italian stitchers arrived, when the old hands were unceremoniously bounced. But the trouble of the kid-gloved bosses did not end here. The masters of the factory held a secret meeting and resolved not to last for the Italians. The boot and shoe industry is highly protected.

The United States steamship Tallapoosa was run into and sunk, off the coast of Massachusetts on the night of August 21st. She was struck in the bow by the schooner James S. Lowell, and filled and went down almost instantly.—Dispatch.

The Tallapoosa was one of the very few Government vessels, pronounced seaworthy by a late examining commission, and it was said of her that, though over a million dollars had been expended upon her in the way of repairs she was yet but a dismal hulk. This opinion of the vessel is fully justified now that she has been sunk by a collision with a coasting schooner. Four hundred million dollars have been taken from the people to make a navy, and yet the best vessel the people had to show for this immense expenditure, has been butted to the bottom of the ocean by a common schooner. Turn the rascals out.

We cannot account for the hostility of the Portland Standard to the action of Governor Stoneman in removing James A. Johnson from the position of Registrar in San Francisco upon any other hypothesis than that that sheet is still wedded to its idols, the railroad monopolists. If there has been a man who has stood up squarely for the people against the encroachments of monopolies, that man has been Governor Stoneman of California. All honor to the Governor for the removal of a pliant tool of Stanford & Co., who own forty thousand dollars in the Alta, of which paper Mr. James A. Johnson is editor. Governor Stoneman has shown himself to be made of sterner stuff than to be used by the Stanford crowd, though the same be backed by the Alta, James A. Johnson, the recreant, and Attorney General Marshall.

Under the heading, "Coal Miners' Families Starving," a Coal Center (Pa.) special says:

"The miners' camp was reinforced to-day by the wives, mothers and children of the miners who were arrested last week. In the afternoon, about fifty of them, headed by a gray-haired woman of 70 years of age, marched to the office of Squire Dawson and applied for admission to the poor house, claiming that they had no means of support. The application was refused. The party then took up the line of march to operator Noel's house, but some special officers would not permit them to enter the grounds."

And Blaine says the workingmen are prosperous.

Harrison, Blaine's attorney in the libel case was recently interviewed on the subject of the suit, and, in answer to a question, stated that if the Sentinel company did not press the case it was not likely that it would come up for hearing prior to the election. But the Sentinel crowd are pressing the thing; they have assumed the offensive, and will force the matter to a hearing if possible; however, they fear that Blaine will forestall the investigation by withdrawing the suit and paying the cost as he did a former case he brought involving the same subject matter.

It has been suggested to Jones, the manager of the Blaine campaign, that the "Plumed Knight" be withdrawn from the race and that some acceptable Republican be put upon the track. But Jones replies that to withdraw the Maine statesman under fire, would be a confession of a blunder which it is now too late to correct. It is only defeat with Blaine, while it would be defeat and disgrace with a substitute candidate.

James A. Johnson had been twice elected to Congress from the Third District of California by the Democracy, and then Lieutenant Governor of the State; and, after all, accepted the editorship of Leland Stanford's Democratic(?) organ, the Alta. Vale "Jim" Johnson. To the depths with you.

It is fortunate for the Democracy of California that Governor Stoneman occupies the chair of State. He is firm, far-seeing, incorruptible; and this is why he has been made the target for the poisoned shafts of the minions of monopoly all over the Golden State.
