

FOR FEMININE READERS.

A Pleasant Employment for Young Ladies.

There are in Chicago perhaps forty or fifty working girls who are inclined to congratulate themselves on their comparatively easy lot. They are employed in the different sewing machine companies represented here to teach purchasers of machines the uses and care of them.

The difference between a Tam O'Shanter and a deer-stalker hat is that the former is ornamented with a brooch and feather or with rosettes, while a twisted veil and a bow are worn with the latter.

High coiffures prevail in Paris. The coil of hair on the top of the head is held in place by gold or silver headed pins, and the forehead is covered with little round rings of hair termed statue curls, which are decidedly stiff in effect and unbecoming to most faces.

"Baby" is the name given to the little bonnets with full satin linings and narrow satin strings now in favor in Paris. They are trimmed outside with a wreath of fine flowers with a tuft rising high in front, and sometimes have a spray of flowers resting on the hair.

Coquettish Mexican Women.

A letter to the Newark (N. J.) Advertiser says: The favorite hour for strolling about the streets here for the ladies, is in the morning from about 9 till 12 o'clock. During those hours you encounter throngs of ladies, both Mexican and foreigners, walking leisurely along, staring in the shop windows, occasionally entering to make their purchases or to pull over the dress goods and trimmings and drive the clerks distracted in the good old American lady's fashion, and then depart without buying anything, just the same as in the cities of the North.

Fashion Notes.

Parasols made of successive rows of lace are very popular. It is no longer fashionable to draw the gloves over the sleeves.

Bonnets overlaid with red and gold embroidery are much favored.

Ruchings and quillings are completely out of style this year in Paris.

Velvet trimming is now rarely used for trimming dresses intended for street wear.

The favorite wrap this season is short in the back, and long and paneled in front.

Foulard, on account of its clinging propensities, is the favorite silk in Russia.

The most popular stockings are those with a design of large squares of different colors.

Three, five or seven rows of ribbon velvet make the fashionable trimming for dress skirts in Paris.

A stylish collar is made of black Spanish lace, plaited and dotted with gold, over stiff net. The edges are wired, and the very broad frill is ornamented with tiny pearl beads.

Long, plain velvet coats are imported for winter wear. They have borders of fur, chenille or embroidery in jet done on the garment itself. The more fluffy the border the more fashionable.

Traveling dresses made of checked tweed, with a kilted skirt, round drapery, and a short, round bodice with a plaited back, collar open at neck for tie, are all the rage on the other side of the Atlantic.

Armholes of dresses are seen this season trimmed in a new manner. A piece of medium sized velvet or ribbon goes entirely around, and the two ends which meet on the shoulder at the top are tied in a graceful looped bow.

A pretty use of the somewhat over-worked white muslin hat trimming appeared the other day in its use upon a brown hat bound with brown velvet. It was twisted lightly about the crown and fastened with a spray of scarlet salvia.

Arnholes of dresses are seen this season trimmed in a new manner. A piece of medium sized velvet or ribbon goes entirely around, and the two ends which meet on the shoulder at the top are tied in a graceful looped bow.

Noted Men's Hat.

Have you observed, writes a Washington correspondent of the Boston Traveller, that as soon as a man springs into public notice he at once seeks some distinctive article of head-gear? It is a little difficult to tell why this is, but it is nevertheless a fact.

Certainly it must be a great puzzle for him to pick out his latest purchase from among the large stock which he must have on hand. His hats are made to be brushed either or both ways, and they usually are. They are built very high, with a bulging crown and a rolling brim, something after the style of the headgear worn in the pictures of the allegorical "Uncle Sam."

Secretary Lincoln's silk hat is usually stylish and dressy, while Secretary Teller's makes him look like an Episcopal bishop. Postmaster-General Gresham has developed a genuine fondness for his old black slouch hat, which he throws down anywhere.

Commissioner Loring wears the most dignified-looking silk hat in Washington. No one would ever think of such a thing as rubbing that hat the wrong way, and as for crushing it, the idea would be preposterous.

General Rosencrans affects the military slouch hat, while General Sheridan wears a light derby of a fashionable make. Before he was elected speaker, Mr. Carlisle always wore a slouch hat; now he wears a tall silk one with a narrow brim, which looks as though it was three sizes too small.

Senator Mahone wears a light brown slouch hat on the left side of his head, which gives him a dashing appearance. Judge Lawrence, the eccentric first controller of the treasury department, wears a flat-crowned hat with a wide brim. This is savagely pushed down on his head, just as though he had given an adverse decision of 10,000 words.

It almost covers his ears, but don't; that is, one can see the ears. These are a very few of the immense number of distinguished-looking hats which may be seen in Washington.

A Straw Watch.

The Bohemians speak enthusiastically of the feat performed by a young prisoner sentenced for five years to Karthauss. It is a straw watch five centimeters in diameter by two in thickness. The work comprise a few bits of straw, some cotton, two needles and a pin, a small piece of paper forming the dial. It is said to go for six hours, and could be made to go twelve with a few improvements. It does not seem to occur to the convict's admiring countrymen that he could have turned his time to a better purpose than the construction of a curious and useless toy.

Penny dinners for school children have been instituted under the direction of the London School board.

THE ARMY OF TYPES.

Oh, a glorious fame is the fame of the fray For the banner of Stars and Stripes! But the mightiest soldiers of all are they Who march in the Army of Types!

How they come at the wave of the Captain's hand, How they gather with rattle and click, And leap to the ranks at the silent command, On the forming ground of the stick!

And whether it storm or whether it shine, And ever by day and by night, With a click, click, click, they fall into line, And march away to the fight.

Each soldier moves on his squad of a word, To the drum of the age in the van, And armed with a two-edged invisible sword That cuts through the spirit of man.

Where Ignorance sits on her shadowy throne, Built round by the walls of old night, They crumble and crush into powder the stones, And let in the legions of light.

Where Tyranny reigns with his foot and his yoke On the neck of the poor and the just, They cease not to smite till the fetters are broke, And the tyrant is laid in the dust.

Oh, Army of Freedom! and Army of Light! Oh, host of our God! battle on! Till the people shall rule in their God given right, And the long night of error is gone!

Oh, a glorious fame is the fame of the fray For the banner of Stars and Stripes, But the mightiest soldiers of all are they Who march in the Army of Types!

-A. P. Miller, in the Model Printer.

Life is short - only four letters in it. Three-quarters of it is a "lie," and a half of it is an "if." Put this on "file" if you would as "lief." - Chicago Tribune.

They have rough hygienic principles in Boston. A prominent physician of the Hub is quoted as saying: "If a child does not thrive on fresh milk, boil it." Boiled children is evidently the last Boston craze, but will never become popular. - The Hoosier.

"Doctor, I want to thank you for your great medicine." "It helped you, did it?" asked the doctor very much pleased. "It helped me wonderfully." "How many bottles did you find it necessary to take?" "Oh, I didn't take any of it. My uncle took one bottle and I am his sole heir." -

WORDS OF WISDOM.

Remorse is the echo of a lost virtue. Pride costs us much more than hunger, thirst and cold.

To hate excellence is to be at its extreme opposite pole. Contact with the world either breaks or hardens the heart.

Mind and have a care for a silent dog and a too still water. Soft words, warm friends; bitter words, lasting enemies.

He hath riches sufficient who hath enough to be charitable. To read without reflecting, is like eating without digesting.

A philosopher is one who unflinchingly "accepts the situation." Those only who can command themselves are fit to command others.

Everybody sees the cloud on the horizon, but who thinks of the clear blue sky above it? He that cares only for himself, has but few pleasures, and these are generally of the lowest order.

Learning is wealth to the poor, an honor to the rich, an aid to the young, and a support and comfort to the aged.

Nothing sinks a young man into low company, both of women and men, so surely as timidity and diffidence of himself. If he thinks that he shall not, he may depend upon it he will not please.

But with proper endeavors to please, and a degree of persuasion that he shall, it is almost certain that he will.

With children we must mix gentleness with firmness; they must not always have their own way, but they must not always be thwarted. If we never have headaches through rebuking them, we shall have plenty of headaches when they grow up. Be obeyed at all costs. If you yield up your authority once you will hardly ever get it again.

The south takes the lead in raising sun flowers. A single stalk has been found in Georgia upon which were growing 118 distinct flowers, and Kentucky is credited with a stalk bearing 105 flowers.

To insure a cheerful disposition take this well known medicine, which will remove the prime cause, and restore the mind to its natural equilibrium.
