PHARISAICAL.

That the claim that women seek the ballot in hopes to "purify politics" is a hypocritical pretense, or is put forward by those who are incapable of distinguishing between purity and the reverse, is abundantly proven by the action of representative suffragists from one end of the land to the other supporting Blaine, the tattooed candidate, while not one of them dare attempt a defense of his character for honesty, probity and integrity. They could not but have known that their favorite was corrupt and venal to the last degree, that he had prostituted official position in the pursuit of private gain, that all of his methods had been notoriously indefensible, unscrupulous and debasing, and that no distinctive public act of his had, in the past, been such as should rightly have commended him to the support of conscientious, upright, disinterested voters. That he should bave been the pet, aye, the idol, of all official rogues as well as of those who expected to be, was but natural; and that he was supported by thousands of honest voters for the sake of the "party," who lay no claim to distinction on the score of excessive "purity," is also true; but that such a man, such a candidate, could have enlisted in his behalf an army of expectant voters who claim the ballot on the score of their exceptional "purity," is what staggers us. They opposed with all the forces they were able to bring to bear, the election of a man against whom no whisper of official delinquency or dishonor had ever been uttered, a man whose record stood unimpeached and unimpeachable. And it will not do to take refuge behind the "Mariah Halpin" story, for Blaine's social record will loom up to confound them. Let us hear no more of the "purfying" dodge, at least.

DISTRUST OF THE WESTERN UNION.

We know of nothing which the recent campaign has brought to light in a more forcible way than the distrust with which business men regard information coming over the wires of the Western Union Telegraph Company. Whether their belief is true or not, the fact remains that Wall street credits the management with using its power to further stock jobbing and political schemes of all sorts, and mistrusts information given out by its agency where the dissemination may have some effect upon the political or financial pro jects of Jay Gould. It is extremely unfortunate that this should be the case. People distrust everything that Gould owns, manages, says, or causes to be said. They are afraid that he will pry into their business affairs whenever they send or receive any important message. Yesterday, for instance, the street generally cedited the Western Union with fine manipulation of political news of this State, having for its object the breaking by degrees the force of the news that Grover Cleveland had been elected President. Tomorrow they will probably discover Calls promptly attended in any part of the comp other cause of complaint, and some other cause of complaint, and as in the case of the Ohio election, lay the blame on the head of Mr. Gould. We never heard of such complaints when Mr. Vanderbilt was the moving power in the management and probably because he is better at minding his own business than interfereing with other people's.

It is said that Blaine has sold his plumes at auction.

The N. Y. World says: "Claus Spreckles' Hawaiian sugar monopoly of San Francisco has caused much trouble to Eastern refiners, and determined efforts have been made to secure the abrogation of the treaty with the Hawaiian islands, allowing the free entry of sugar grown in that country, it being considered unfair to Eastern refiners, who have to pay duty on their importations from Cuba, but Claus Spreckles has been a power with Regublican administrations, and all efforts to overcome the monopoly have failed. Spreckles has been able to ship sugar as far East as St. Louis and undersell all Eastern re-

It has been an open secret for many years that San Francisco merchants could buy San Francisco sugar in St. Louis cheaper than the same grades could be had of Claus Spreckles right at home. But they cannot ship sugar from Eastern re fineries to compete with Spreckles at home, on account of an arrangement the latter has made with the Central and Southern Pacific monopolies affecting freights from the East on sugars. We, of this Coast have a special interest in the abrogation of the Spreckles treaty. By reason of his monopoly of the sugar interests of the Coast, he fleeces us at his own sweet will. Abrogate the treaty. It is a stupendious iniquity.

Cleveland's vote in New York is 69,657 and Blaine's vote is 68,481. Cleveland's plurality, 1,241.
