 District Clerk, Dist. No. 29

Service at St. John's Episcopal church on Christmas day: Morning at 11 o'clock; Sunday school service Christmas eve at 7:30 o'clock, p. m.

J. Ira Sidwell says "safety first: Loosen up a few buttons before you start in on that Christmas dinner."

Yuletide Culprits In "Ye Olden Time"

THE first century of colonial life saw few set times and days for pleasure. The holy days of the English church were as stentch to the Puritan nostrils, and their public celebration was at once rigidly forbidden by the laws of New England.

New holidays were not quickly evolved, and the sober gatherings for matters of church and state for a time took their place. The hatred of "wanton bacchanalian Christmas" spent throughout England, as Cotton said, in "reveling, dicing, carding, masking, mummery, consumed in comotations, in interludes, in excess of wine, in mad mirth," was the natural reaction of intelligent and thoughtful minds against the excesses of a festival which had ceased to be a Christian holiday, but was dominated by a lord of misrule who did not hesitate to invade the churches in time of service in his noisy revels and sports. English churchmen long ago revolted against such Christmas observance.

Of the first pilgrim Christmas we know but little, save that it was spent, as was many a later one, in work. By 1659 the Puritans had grown to hate Christmas more and more. It was, to use Shakespeare's words, "the bug that feared them all." The very name smacked to them of incense, stole and monkish custom. Any person who observed it as a holiday by forbearing of labor, feasting or any other way was to pay 5 shillings fine, so desirous were they to "bente down every sprout of Episcopacy."

Judge Sewall watched jealously the feeling of the people with regard to Christmas and roted with pleasure on each succeeding year the continuance of common traffic throughout the day. Such entries as this show his attitude: "Dec. 25, 1685. Carts come to town and shops open as usual. Some somehow observe the day, but are vexed, I believe, that the body of people profane it, and blessed be God no authority yet to compel them to keep it."

When the Church of England established Christmas services in Boston a few years later we find the Judge wagging hopeless war against Governor Belcher over it and hear him praising his son for not going with other boy friends to hear the novel and attractive services. He says, "I dehort mine from Christmas keeping and charge them to forbear."—Alice Morse Earle.

Yule Log Must Be of Ash.
 In Devonshire the Yule log, to be a luck bringer, must consist of a bundle of ash sticks bound around with bands of the same tree, nine in number, no more and no fewer. And every time the fagot cracks in the flames the good host must furnish a fresh bowl of liquor to his guests.

The Nampa (Idaho) Leader-Herald had a Christmas special full of good matter and overflowing with ads. It was very interesting, especially to a former resident of that section.

Comments on Our Christmas Number

The Western World of Bandon has published a Christmas edition which is certainly highly creditable to the newspaper and the community. The issue is composed of twenty pages including a colored cover and it represents a large amount of work in gathering the news matter given and also carries a large amount of advertising. The paper gives some interesting facts and stories about Bandon and the Coquille river country and covers the ground thoroughly. It is one of the best things that has been gotten out about Bandon and copies sent to other parts of the country will do much to advance that section of Coos county.—Coos Bay Times.

You deserve statewide recognition for the excellency of that edition.—Samuel Wood.

It's a fine advertisement for this section; I want some extras to send away.—W. R. Wells.

The best thing I've read in a long time; gave several extra copies for me; I want to send them to outside friends.—J. S. Sawyer.

I wish to congratulate you on your Christmas number. It was certainly splendid.—Mrs. Geo. Geisendorfer.

Some issue that.—E. B. Kausrud.

You got out something there you may be proud of; it beats the Oregonian.—W. S. Wells.

It was great. Your title page was very appropriate and the editorial splendid.—Dr. S. J. Mann.

Your subscribers ought to appreciate the effort put forth; it shows enterprise.—H. T. Miller, Parkersburg.

Say, that was a great Christmas edition, boys. Someday we will all appreciate what you fellows have done and are doing toward giving Bandon one of the liveliest papers in the state.—W. L. Beach.

A Christmas edition to be proud of. I want to congratulate you on the interesting reading matter it contains.—J. C. Baker.

A regular magazine and twice as interesting. Bandon ought to be proud of it.—H. C. Dippel.

Allow me to congratulate you on your Christmas edition. It is one among the best weekly newspaper special editions I have ever seen, and I served my term in a press clipping bureau. I would like a copy to send to the manager of the Pacific Paper company at Portland.—Wm. Candlin, Coquille, Oregon.

Boys, that's a great edition. I want a few extra copies.—C. B. Zeek.

A genuine newspaper. Congratulations to you.—W. C. Sellmer.

Gee whiz this is some paper! I'll have to take a layoff and read it.—J. A. Parks.

The World is there with the goods when it comes to boosting.—E. H. Boyle.

The Bandon World issued a fine Christmas number, containing information concerning that section of the coast country.—Coos Bay News.

Such a fine Christmas edition I'll have to cheer you up by advancing the expiration date of my paper by a dollar and a half.—J. L. Foster.

I want to send your paper to a friend who is interested in this section; and I desire if possible to have his subscription start with that big Christmas number.—Capt. O. Wiren.

Old boy, I read your Christmas edition from cover to cover, including the ads and that straight from-the-shoulder editorial on the mail-order business locally. I want to congratulate you on the excellent results of your efforts. She's some paper.—Pat Hanrahan.

A fine Christmas edition. I would judge it took an enormous amount of research work to obtain the information embodied in the various write-ups.—F. J. Chatburn.

An excellent edition and a big boost for the community. You are to be congratulated, both on the splendid reading matter contained and on the neatness of its general appearance.—Supt. L. W. Turnbull.

The World is a community asset.—Atty. G. T. Treadgold.

Typographically perfect, and filled with reading matter far in excess of what you will find the advertising carried at your rate will pay expenses on. From the excellent makeup and general appearance, I would judge you gentlemen have served you apprenticeship in real print shops.—Fred J. Smith, representative of the Mergenthaler Linotype company.

I have just received your Christmas issue and must congratulate you boys on the splendid number you got out. It covers your section thoroughly and is by far the best thing that has ever been gotten out about Bandon. Your people there should certainly take the opportunity to send copies extensively to those on the outside who may be interested in the country. With best wishes for the holidays, I remain, Sincerely yours.—Jack Guyton, Marshfield, Oregon. (Mr. Guyton is representative of the Timberman, and feature story writer for a host of big daily and monthly newspapers.)

A credit to the city and a big boost for the whole community. The write-up were excellent and the photos showed up splendidly.—Roy. A. Rozelle.

Some paper; a good one in all respects.—H. F. Morrison.

Congratulations on your Christmas number. It ought to cheer us all up.—Mayor Geo. P. Topping.

You are to be congratulated on the excellence of the edition. It is brimful of interesting reading and has such a neat appearance.—Miss Amelia Henry, city librarian.

Splendid! I want about half a dozen extra copies to send to friends in the east.—John Dickey.

A copy of the Renton (Wash.) Bulletin's Christmas number has been received. It contains 14 pages of highly interesting matter about that city and community. The Bulletin is published by A. W. Stuart, formerly interested in a local paper. He apparently is in a live town and his advertising patronage indicates a bunch of progressive merchants.

PRETTY CHRISTMAS CUSTOMS.

In some of the small towns on the Riviera a curious custom takes place on Christmas eve, when at the chief church in the town, during the midnight mass, a number of shepherds from the hills make their appearance wearing the picturesque dress of their calling.

The chief shepherd carries a lamb in his arms and, advancing to the high altar, gives it to the priest as a Christmas offering from the shepherds and a symbol of the Nativity.

In some towns of southern Germany a pretty custom prevails on Christmas eve.

A veiled woman walks through the streets after nightfall, carrying a child, chosen for his beauty and goodness to personify the infant Saviour. The cottage windows are left ajar so that the representative of the Christ Child can leave some gift upon the window sill.

Every good child thus finds on Christmas morning fruit and sweets, but the bad children only receive a birch rod, typical of well deserved chastisement.
