New Sanitary Fixtures

Sanito Grocery Installs Refrigerator Counter—Great Convenience.

In order to bring his store right up-to-date in every respect, Harry Hornung, proprietor of the Sanito Grocery, has just installed a new 8-foot McCray refrigerator counter. This is an important adjunct as it makes it possible for him to carry large stocks of butter, cheese, cold meats, eggs, and such other products likely to spoil when not kept cool. The counter has a 250 pound ice capacity. It is an improved sanitary model and an attractive fixture which makes the articles it contains look more appetizing.

Through consistent advertising and judicious merchandising, Mr. Hornung has built up a splendid business, which he is gradually enlarging and improving.

Alluring Prospects

The South Slough country is being combed fine by black sand experts from the outside and many samples are being sent out for assays. The black sand deposits are rich between South Slough and the Coquille river, west of Sevenmile and the old beach lies continuous along this vast stretch. The values run about the same all over the region and if a successful process of concentration is arrived at, a vast amount of gold and platinum will be taken out without a doubt and it will take many years to work the entire beach. The Treadwells, who are the biggest low-grade outfit on the coast, have had an experimental plant at work on Cut creek, where the Bandon road crosses, for the past three years and have spent a large sum of money prospecting. The manager, Mr. Bradford, feels very confident that they have a fine proposition and claims if efforts continue successfully a large plant will be set up within the next few months.—Marshfield Sun.

Last Sunday afternoon while Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Lewellen and some friends, after spending the day on the beach at Bandon, were returning home when they narrowly escaped a bad smash-up in a collision with another auto going in the opposite direction. Each driver saw the other car just in time to avert a heavy impact, and Mr. Lewellen states that when the cars struck, his machine was stopped, while the other was just barely moving, and a slightly bent fender on the stranger's car and a punctured radiator on the Lewellen car was the extent of the damage. The rumor in circulation here the fore part of the week that the Lewellen car had rolled down the side of an embankment was entirely without foundation.—Myrtle Point Enterprise.

How to Get Rid of a Cold

Read how C. E. Summers, Holdrege, Neb., got rid of his cold: "I contracted a severe cough and cold and could hardly sleep. By using Foley's Honey and Tar as directed my cough was entirely cured and I give it full credit for my speedy recovery." Foley's always soothes and heals. Children love it.—ORANGE PHARMACY.

Indiana Man's Experience

Frank Moseley, Moore's Hill, Ind., writes: "I was troubled with almost constant pains in my sides and back. Great relief was apparent after the first dose of Foley Kidney Pills and in 18 hours all pain left me." Foley Kidney Pills make kidneys active and healthful and stop sleep-disturbing bladder ailments.—ORANGE PHARMACY.

CIVIC PROBLEMS.

One might with good reason question wherein a city profits through its improvements if they injuriously react upon the home life of its people. In our American communities there is an enlarging group of citizens who are finding their environment growing adverse, their homes growing smaller and the free space surrounding such where their children may play under parental oversight more restricted. Our cities are themselves growing larger. The census of 1910 shows an urban increase in population of 34.8 per cent as contrasted with a rural increase of only 11.2 per cent. In keeping with this growth there has gone an increase in urban wealth with enlarged municipal appropriations for public improvements that steadily force up taxes, both because of the cost of such improvements and their reaction on social welfare. Various reasons have been assigned for this. Undoubtedly there should be a greater centralization of authority in the management of municipal affairs which would bring about a better coordination of the subdepartments and produce greater administrative efficiency. — Carl Aronovici in Town Development Magazine.

CITY AND RURAL MARKETS.

Advantages of Co-operation in Marketing Farm Products.

The advantages of co-operation in the marketing of farm products are emphasized in the annual report of the office of markets and rural organization of the department of agriculture which has just been published. "The conclusion seems warranted," says the report, "that in communities where co-operation is practically applied to the farmer's business the results obtained are far more satisfactory than those secured by individual methods." It is estimated that farmers' co-operative marketing and purchasing organizations will transact this year a total business amounting to more than $1,400,000,000. Agricultural co-operation in the United States is therefore far more prevalent than is generally believed, but it is not yet upon a sufficiently strong business basis. For this reason the office of markets has studied the various methods employed by these associations and has worked to devise means by which these methods can be perfected. The studies also have included the prevailing methods of marketing perishable products—grain, cotton, cotton seed, live stock and animal products.

Studies have also been made of city markets in order to secure in this way information which may open up outlets for farm products. In this connection the report calls attention to the experimental work in distributing time-ly market information concerning perishable products. An effort has been made to keep producers informed of arrivals and conditions in the large markets and, on the other hand, to keep dealers informed of shipments from the important producing sections. Strawberries, peaches, tomatoes and cantaloupes were the crops covered in this way during the past season. There is evidence, says the report, that as a result of this service distribution has been improved, glutted markets have been prevented to some extent, total shipments from several districts have been greater than they would have been otherwise, and large bodies of growers have received accurate and disinterested information concerning prevailing conditions in competing producing areas and in distant markets. Several important newspapers have co-operated in this work by publishing these reports.

The work of encouraging the proper preparation of products for market has been continued. The ultimate aim of this campaign of education is the national standardization of market grades and also packages or containers. Investigation into the problems of transportation and storage has been continued with a view to determining the causes of the great loss of food-stuffs between the producer and the consumer. Experimental shipments by parcel post and express were made during the year with many kinds of fruits and berries, lettuce, milk, butter, eggs, sirup and vegetables. In nearly every case it was found that the success of the shipment depended upon the judgment used in selecting the quality of the product and the type of container.

Another important division of the work of the office for the past year is its rural organization investigations and in particular its study of the problems of rural credit and insurance.

Young Men For Civic Work.

For the purpose of utilizing the energy and enthusiasm of the young men of New Orleans, La., in behalf of the development of the community a young men's branch of the New Orleans Association of Commerce has been organized. The efforts of this branch of the association will be directed to the training of men at an earlier period than has formerly been the practice in the work of co-operating for the civic and commercial advancement of the community. Operating under a plan which has been worked out with great care, it is anticipated that by this means many trained leaders and workers will be produced within the association.

Smooths Out the Wrinkles

Worry causes more wrinkles on young faces than is traced thereon by the fingers of Old Father Time. And all household duties are sources of worry, either in the doing or in having them done.

The old rhyme "man works from sun to sun—woman's work is never done," always will be thus until women decide to banish worry by taking advantage of the many truly labor saving and trouble abolishing household devices, which they can now obtain and use at trifling cost.

The G-E Electric Flatiron

is one of these. It does a week's ironing at a cost of about fifteen cents for electricity. It smooths out all ironing day troubles, also, the crew's feet and wrinkles, which "worry" paints on faces young and old. Come in and try one. We handle all the latest types and sizes of G-E Irons.
