Bid of a Lingering Cough

You can get relief from racking, hacking coughs, from whoozy, sneezy, oraching, from raw, inflamed throat and tight chest. W. G. Glazier, Bentonville, Ark., writes: "I can recommend Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. I used it for a cough that I had for years, and was said to have consumption but it cured me." Sold everywhere.

BREEDING ANIMALS ARE BEING SLAUGHTERED

Farmers Are Not Getting Rich Even With Higher Prices, However, Says Farm Journal.

Consumers complain that meat prices are almost prohibitory. But the grower protests that he is not to blame; that conditions bear as hard on him as on the consumers, as prices of feed, labor and supplies have run ahead of the price he is getting for his produce, and he is actually losing money instead of piling up profits as many city dwellers think, says the Oregon Farmer.

The facts bear him out. He is quitting the business here and there, and that is the real test, for farmer is not going to relinquish a profitable line of industry to engage in something new.

At a recent conference at Lincoln, Neb., of men interested in the live stock industry and professors from western agricultural colleges the alarming statement was made that there are 6,000,000 less breeding cattle in the United States than there were 15 years ago. Yet population has grown and Europe is making extraordinary demands. Is it surprising that meat prices are up and going higher every month?

The further information was given at the Lincoln conference that the first four months of the present year showed 951,000 fewer hogs on the market than the same four months of last year. That is a decrease of 19 per cent. With feeders all over the country virtually gone, brood animals sold, hay and grain at prohibitive figures and slight prospects of relief, the conference decided drastic action was necessary. To supply the country with meat under present conditions, to say nothing of sending provisions abroad, presents a serious condition, and the Lincoln conference threw little light on its solution.

The problem staggers the experts and alarms the nation.

FROM Morris Heights

By J. J. MORRIS

A registered Jersey cow was added to the herd at this farm last Monday. She was the highest testing cow sold at the W. A. Forest sale at McMinnville on June 12th. She made 333 pounds of butter in one year when she was one year and seven months old. She is now four years old.

If you want people to take an interest in you and ask you strange questions and look mysteriously at you when you are outside, tell them you are from Coos county. Coos seems to be the last frontier, the best place in the West to get a start.
