THE Spokane Daily Times says the most ardent advocates of the restoration of silver to the position given to the founders of our government scarcely hope for tavorable congressional enactment during the present session. Yet it is gratifying to note the rapid change of sentiment in favor of the white metal all over the world. England has been the leader in the movement in favor of the single gold standard, but even there the money of the common people is no longer without able and persistent advocates. Wall street in our own country, and the Eastern money centers, have persistently fought against anything looking toward a re-enactment of the financial legislation arguments in favor of a return to framers of our Constitution and able | done heretofore. advocates of free coinage may now be found among the leading bankers and most prominent financiers.

CLARK WALTER, MANAGER, ATHENA, OR.

Life in the French penal colony at New Caledonia has been pictured as so agreeable, both by reason of the cli-mate as well as the leniency with which convicts have been treated, that transportation seems to have lost most of its terrors. Criminals do not conceal their preference for a long sen-tence in the beautiful Pacific island to a much shorter term with hard labor in one of the penitentiaries at home and when perpetrating a misdeed have sought as a rule to render their offense sought as a rule to render their offense as serious as possible, so as to entail transportation if captured. It is with a view of putting an end to this senti-ment thr' the French government has now dee and to stop sending convicts to New Caledonia, and is making ar-rangements to deport them instead to Gaboon, the fever-stricken and most pestilential of all districts of French Congoland in Africa. Things Learned in the Morgue. The old keeper of the morgue in this city, who has seen hundreds of unknown bodies exhibited for identificaknown bodies exhibited for identifica-tion, has arrived at some interesting conclusions, says the Philadelphia Rec-ord. If the face of the dead person is perfectly composed and natural, of course, intimate friends or relatives recognize them immediately. But, he says, if the face is distorted through pain or disfigured by injuries, a casual acquaintance can identify the body much casier than the closest relation. much easier than the closest relation. lle explains this by saying that people who have known a person well for a long time lose sight of the features and see rather the personality reflected in the lines of the face. A casual acquaintance notes the features, and can recognize them when seen again, even if consideably distorted.

Here is an anecdote about a young fine or tax legally assessed against him. The marshal shall be appointed by the mayor, by and with the consent and approval of the common Council.

Section 3. All acts and parts of acts in conflict with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed; and inasmuch as the city of Athena is gram from the young housekeeper to this effect: "What shall I do with the rest of the dough? Please answer."

The pope is fond of sitting in his gar-den with his secretary on clear, warm days. He is a most attractive figure, seated thus, in his pure white robes of exquisite texture and immaculate cleanliness. He is a precise and fas-tidious man, and on those robes is never seen a trace of the snuff to which Pic Nono was so devoted. The face of Leo XIII. is a benevolent one, and his fine skin and white hair combine with his gentle expression to create the atmos-phere of purity and sweetness about him.
