Mountain farmers and Weston people will regret the action of the county court now in session, in denying the petition for the im-provement of the county road leading up the foothills east of town. Commissioner Adams has visited the road and reported to the court that it is already in good condition. However, a large number of people who travel over the road have an opinion different from that of Mr. Adams.

The E. O. S. N. S. has opened for the new school year under the most encouraging auspices. The attendance on the first day numattendance on the first day numbered eighty, a large increase over any former record, and eighty-five well. In all, there were 350 head. pupils have so far been enrolled. There will be a big addition to this number, as many old students have not come in, and there are several new pupils in the city who are not yet enrolled.

"I don't expect people to believe it," said Jay Saling to a Leader man, referring to a queer incident at his mountain farm, "but its a fact nevertheless. Coyotes are numerous and impudent up my way, and I actually saw one of them savagely attack a full-grown hog at 75 yards from the house. The hog, which will weigh at least 150 pounds, ran squealing for home, bloody with wounds inflicted by the coyote. The cowardly coyotes are never supposed to attack any animal of good size, but they have been killing off my shotes of dif-ferent sizes, and doubtless the bravest of their number finally mustered courage to fight an adult

[From the Pilot Rock Record.]

John Horn killed an elk last week. Grant Horn and Wm. Kissinger went out to bring it in from the mountains and while there Kissinger killed another.

Mr. Folsom brought to our office last week a stalk of corn from H. C. Smith's place, which measured 11 feet. This knocks the Johnson stalk into a cocked hat.

Some time ago we received a let-ter from Portland addressed to Pilot Rock, which had been mailed at that place and returned to writ-er marked, "no such postoffice in state named." Considering that Pilot Rock is nearly as old as Portland, it is our opinion that Uncle Sam's servants at the latter place ought to post up a little.
