reunblican convention, that we might determine more definitely for ourselves the true aim of that organization in the pres-ent struggle. We have seen the 'boss' in politics more securely enthroned, more servilely obeyed and more dictatorial as to candidates and policy than has ever been witnessed in the field of national politics. "One man, the perfection of his type, representing the millionaires, the banks, the corporations, the truste and every other remorseless and plutocratic element in our country's life, has, through the power of money, dictated the nomination of Mr. McKinley, and has shaped the platform of his party. "This convention, slavishly responding to the will of the money power, has forced an issue which must be met. It is a challenge to the yeomen of the land; if it shall succeed, the fetters of a tyranny more grinding than that of the czars and amperors, will be riveted upon the plain cople of the country, fetters which must be indefinitely worn with the contemptible spirit inseparable from willing seris, or in the end be broken with the irresignible power of a mighty revolution. "That issue is formulated in the demand that 'the existing gold standard must be preserved,' and for the enact-ment of 'all measures designated to main-tain, inviolably the obligations of the United States and all our money-either coin or paper-at the present standard.'

"This means that silver shall be permanently degraded into mere money of change, and that it be deprived of its legal-tender quality, except for some pairry sum; that the rational banks shall be swollen into a power of triple their present ability to contract the volume of and commercial life, while from time to time it terrorizes the voters into choice of its tools for all legislative, judicial and administrative positions. "The money power has forced this issue now, because, in its judgment, those those whom its policy would enslave are divided into hostile political families, which caunot be united in time to resist its onset. It regards it as impossible that harmonious action can be secured between the different organizations that favor money reform and resistance to its insatiate greed. With populists, silver democrats and independent bimetallists supporting différent nominees for presi dent and the national congress, it feels assured of victory, and it has determined to press, without abatement, the advant-age which this apparently lamentable condition raises up before you.

that has menaced the country since the civil war, though simply citizen members of the people's party, we venture to make momentous suggestions to you, our brethern. In doing this we have neither desire nor thought to impair, in the least degree, the efficiency of our noble organ-ization, the start as it is with the libert ization, charged as it is with the liberties of present and future generations, and whose integrity and growth is essential to the perpetuation of our free institu-tions. Our constant aim will be to defend it from foes within and without, and to preserve it as a power consecrated forever to the defense of humanity's dearest rights upon the American continent. "In view of this submisson by the republican convention of the most extreme demands ever made upon Americans by the money power, every thought of American manhood, should from this hour, tend toward creating and cementing a union between those who would resist the conspiracy of wholesale robbery and grinding oppression. 'Measures must be gained or defeated through men. After all, the chief prob-lem in this crisis is to find a man upou over national action and its enforcement, Pa. Sold by Osburn.

air out, or the house may be torn up or turned over. It is imprisoned air that causes most of the destruction to build-

These are practical hints and they are supported by what occurred at St. Louis. It was found there that in many cases the cornered air wrecked the buildings by trying to force itself out. Something like an explosion took place. But when it comes to building houses on the prairie the first thing thought of is shelter. It is commonly the case that those building their first homes have not the means, even if they knew how, to add security. And then it is questionable if any house is secure when struck by a genuine tor-nado. The path of such a storm is gen-erally swept clean of all obstructions.

England Paying Her Debt. The revenue surplus of Great Britain and the prospect that some of it will be devoted to payment of the national debt auses great discontent among fund holders, who prefer consols at a premium which reduces the rate of interest below 21/2 per cent., to any other investment in sight, This preference and the rapid rise of consols give new proof of the enormous and increasing amount of idle money in Great Britain, and, for that matter, throughout Europe. The rapidly growing mass of savings throughout the old world is already so great that the pay-ment of debt by such a government as that of Great Britain or the refunding of debt by such a government as that of France is an operation that awakens so much discontent that grave political re-sults are involved. The notion that it is the duty of the government to borrow money and pay interest to afford a safe investment to its subjects was not put into plain words, but it seems to undermoney, to absorb the earnings of indus-try, and to grip the throat of all industrial lie a good deal of the discussion of the subject The Beer Feet.

The very popular theory has been ad-vanced of late that all women who partake to any extent of malt liquors have large feet. The women of England, Germany and Holland are quoted as examples of big-footed beer-drinkers; while the women of wine-drinking countries, like Spain, France and Italy are said to have small and shapely feet. This ingenious theory may have origin-ated in a Keeley cure for women, where Trilby-like extremities were guaranteed to temperance ladies, and Cinderella feet to total abstainers. At any rate, whether drinking affects the size of them or not, everyone has observed that a jag settles in a drunkard's feet. Apparently it pro-duces a misunderstanding, so that one foot does not know what the other foot is "In this, the most threatening crisis doing or where it is going, and unfortuthat makes for temperance is good, and the theory of drink making big feet may be a powerful weapon in the hands of the prehibitionists.

Ending Monday, Week June 22.

Thunder storm conditions prevailed over the southern portion on the 17th and 21st which in sections gave rain - on the 17th only a few sprinkles occurred, while on the 21st good showers fell; except there no rain fell during the past week. The weather for the most part has been clear and warm. The temperature for the week averaged 87 degrees and the cold of nights 58 degrees. The highest was 90 degrees on the 21st. East and south of the Blue mountains the temperature averaged 64 degrees and the cold of night 49 degrees. These temperatures are from 8 to ten degrees higher than during the week preceding, and are about normal for this season of the year.

The warm weather has been generally beneficial. Morrow county correspond ents report two days of hot winds the past week which have been injurious to the wheat crop. With this exception the weather is reported as favorable. The most glowing reports as to the wheat crop comes from Umatilla county. The wheat crop is reported to be excellent in all counties except Morrow, and in this county there has been no really injurious weather so far. Haying continues. The first crop of alfalfa has been cut and wheat hay will coon be cut. Barley, rye, oats and corn have been most favorably affected by the weather. As a rule the weather in June determines the cereal crop of Eastern Oregon, but as the season is some two weeks late this year, the weather up to July 15 will affect the crops ; so far however, good weather conditions have generally prevailed.

The reports this week indicate that fruit is dropping. The injurious nuch effects of the cold rains are now being shown. Peaches, apricots and prunes are falling in large quantities. Apples and pears are falling to some extent, and it must be now acknowledged that the fruit has been injured by the April and May weather. The extent of the injury is not now known, but the correspondents agree that it will be considerable. Large shipments of strawberries continue to be made. The weather has apparently not been detrimental to the berries, for the reports indicate that large crops are in sight. Cherries are ripening rapidly, and large shipments are being made. A summary of the reports, would be: Grain crops favorably affected by the little Freddie was coughing just as though he had the croup, and for him (Mr. Burton) to go and bring the doctor. Thereupon, Mr. Burton aroused himself, and assisted by his wife, got into his clothes. As his wife was beloing him on with his overcoat she asked him, "Thomas, have you your revolver?" "No, had I better take it?" "I should think so. It's late and the streets are fearfully dark."

She handed him the weapon, which he cautiously slipped into the side pocket of his overcoat, where he could keep his hand on it. It was indeed, a very dark night. He could scarcely discern the shape of trees, ences and houses. As he turned the corner he ran heavily against another man. They collided fully, and then Mr. Burton jumped backward with his beart in his throat. "Excuse me," said the man in the darkness, and he passed on.

Eurton took a firmer hold on his weapon. Then he hoppened to think of something. He felt for his watch. It was gone. The fellow had bumped into him so as to slip the watch from his pocket. Burton drew his revolver and ran after the robber, who began to run. "Stop, or I'll shoot !" shouted Burton. The man stopped and leaned sgainst a

"Now," said Burton, with the revol-ver advanced, "You give me that watch !' The robber handed it over.

"Now you skip!" The fellow ran.

When Burton reached home he was cale and excited, but quite exultant.

"A footpad ran into me and grabbed by watch," said he, "but I drew my my gun and made him give it back " "Why, Thomas!" exclaimed his dia-mayed wife, "I took the watch out of your vest pocket before you started." The doctor came in a half bour later: He was sgitated, and he explained that he had been called away on an urgent case at the time when Mr. Burton called at his house "And right at this next corner," he added, "I was held up by the most villainors looking highway man you ever new and rabbed of my watch."

are similar to those found in Nolan's sheet-iron structure further up town and in the several other gaming-houses of the camp. With this equipment Wolfe expects to retrieve in a measure his shat tered fortune, but the games are very light in the camp just now. There is little money coming into the camp, and pay-days have not been very regular nor large for several months. The reopening of a number of the big mines, however and the extra amount of wages paid to mechanics engaged in the work of rebuilding the town make the outlook somewhat encouraging.
